Bailey Drafts Bill to Drive U.S. Workers Into Service

North Carolinian To Offer Proposal As Substitute for Wheeler 'Father' Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A substitute for the Wheeler bill, leaving the fathers' draft unchanged but hustling into the armed forces every physically fit nonfather in the Government service who cannot prove essentiality, last night was proposed by Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat) of North Carolina.

Bailey asked legislative draftsmen to prepare the substitute bill as Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana turned down suggestions that his own measure be returned to committee, to avoid almost certain defeat.

Preliminary polls had turned up only about 20 votes to block flatly the father's draft, but the Montanan brushed aside proposals for "face-saving" recommital of the bill, and continued to press for a show-down vote.

Debate will open in the Senate Tuesday, and Wheeler himself is expected to talk most of Wednesday, just two days before the October 1 start of father inductions. Some aligned with the Wheeler camp believed he was angling for a possible Administration compromise postponing the start of the draft 30 days or more.

Eyes Nonfathers

Senator Bailey announced meanwhile that his own proposed substitute would remove the occupational deferments of approximately 300,000 military age nonfathers in the Federal service, unless their case as essential men stood up under absolute proof.

To fill the jobs of physically fit bachelors and childless fathers holding Government positions, Bailey's measure would provide for replacements by qualified fathers.

The North Carolina Democrat said his bill will not stop with forcing military age Government bachelors and nonfathers into the armed forces.

"There are too many nonfathers in the Army and Navy who are holding desk jobs in Washington when they should be out fighting this war," he said.

"I am going to provide that uniformed men who are fathers move in behind their desks, and that the childless men in uniforms be shifted to combat duty."

Bailey said he referred to those officers and men whose services in Washington "are not absolutely indispensable," and that again his bill would require "proof."

'Full of Them'

The North Carolinian said it was not his purpose to interfere with the ceiling of fathers if that was necessary, but he did want to make certain that able-bodied childless men went first, particularly in the

Praise the Lord And Buy Bonds, Is New Slogan

Camden, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP).—Lieut. Comdr. Howell M. Forgy, who at Pearl Harbor, coined the phrase, "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition," today proposed a new slogan—"Praise the Lord and buy another bond."

Writing to Camden County headquarters of the Third War Loan campaign, the Haddonfield, N. J., Presbyterian chaplain also contributed a poem to the bond drive:

"Dear Lord,
Lest I continue
My complacent way,
Help me to remember
Somewhere out there
A man died for me today.
As long as there be war,
I then must
Ask and answer
Am I worth dying for?"

'Back the Attack'

William H. Davis, chairman of the National War Labor Board, speaking last night before a huge audience of 49,000 at the "Back the Attack" Army show, said for every man hour of war production lost through strikes there have been 2000 man hours of war work—that is one year of work gained for every hour lost.

". . . It is the best this Nation or any other nation has ever done in wartime or peacetime," he explained.

"Seeing all these powerful weapons brings home with great force a realization of the tremendous adjustment which soldiers, industrialists and workers have had to make to become a functioning part of the modern total war machine."

Soldiers, sailors and Marines have toiled and bled to learn how to use these mighty weapons, Davis said, and the brains, ingenuity, toil and sweat of management and labor on the production front also have brought about great adjustments in converting baby carriage plants to tank arsenals, in adapting peacetime skills to wartime needs.

"I have seen these planes, tanks and guns translated into wages, hours and working conditions," the WLB chief said, "into manpower problems, into management problems.

"And we members of the War Labor Board have seen America's industrialists and workers put aside their old grudges and settle these problems around a conference table so production will roll smoothly to supply our fighting men with the weapons of victory."

Washington's mighty Army show witnessed already by nearly a million and a half visitors in the 16 days it has run, is still drawing capacity crowds.

Four action shows in the arena remain to be shown. This afternoon's special Chemical Warfare Service show and the Ordnance Department's great show, both of which are scheduled for the arena following the changing of the White House Guard and Retreat today and tomorrow, mark the final chapter in the greatest venture of its kind ever attempted by the Army—and the most successful.

Gallinger Public Hearing Slated Monday

Sanitation Charges Levied Against D. C. Institution

Public hearings on charges of insanitary conditions and misappropriations of property at Gallinger Municipal Hospital will begin Monday at 10 a. m. with Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon, chairman of the subcommittee handling the investigation, presiding, the Senate District Committee announced yesterday.

Witnesses will include a number of past and present employes of Gallinger, to whom notices of the hearings will be delivered today by James W. Johnson, assistant clerk to the District Committee.

Meanwhile Gallinger's 150 hogs are to be sent to Lorton Reformatory, the District Commissioners notified Dr. Edgar L. Bocock, hospital superintendent, although maintenance of the herd has been saving the institution an estimated $5000 a year.

The Commissioners' order follows one issued recently by the Health Department thpough its Bureau of Sanitation to keep citizens from violating Section 17 of the public health laws and regulations prohibiting hogs being kept inside the District.

After the order was issued it was found that Gallinger Hospital violated the regulations. Senators inspecting the hospital on charges of mistreatment of tubercular patients commented upon the keeping of hogs there.

The Commissioners ordered removal of the herd to Lorton with the provision that credit be given Gallinger for the meat poundage available after slaughtering.

Dr. Bocock had established the herd to make use of garbage and had erected a small slaughter house with a butcher where two to four hogs were slaughtered weekly.

On notification of the Commissioner's ruling yesterday afternoon, Dr. Bocock said the herd would be removed as quickly as possible.

From Rev. Joseph L. Schantz, Protestant chaplain at Gallinger, came a report to Wilbur LaRoe, jr., chairman of the committee on civic affairs for the Washington Federation of Churches, that "while conditions at Gallinger are not perfect, and while all the services are affected by shortage of help and by the wartime load, my conviction is that a reasonably good job is being done under difficult conditions.

War Contract Fund Asked to Aid Conversion

Hearing Scheduled On Law to Advance Payment to Industry

Hearings on legislation providing mandatory advance payments to war contractors when their contracts are terminated, to supply funds for peacetime conversion and reemployment, yesterday were ordered by Senator James E. Murray (Democrat) of Montana.

Murray, chairman of a Military Affairs Subcommittee studying contract terminations, told reporters that such legislation is necessary following an opinion by Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren adverse to advance payment procedure.

The Comptroller General's opinion has not yet been made public, but Senator Murray said the General Accounting Office "opposed partial payments or advance payments on contracts prior to termination without a complete audit of the contract."

Ruling Not Criticized

"I am not critizing the Comptroller General's ruling, but audit of contracts would require considerable time and indefinitely delay payment," said Murray. "Some contracts from the last war have not yet been audited. It seems to me legislation is necessary, and I'm going ahead with hearings on Monday a week."

The Montana Senator estimated that between 50 and 75 billion dollars in war contracts will ultimately be terminated, and "unless some type of prompt and liberal advance payments are made both to the prime contractor and his subcontractors, conv sion to other types of production will be seriously handicapped and widespread unemployment and insolvency will ensue."

He said this would be particularly disastrous for smaller contractors and subcontractors, since many of the large prime contractors have termination safeguards in their contracts.

Murray indicated the Comptroller General's opinion will be made public today. In other quarters it was said the General Accounting Office already has advised procurement agencies that there is no basis in law for termination costs, other than on completed equipment ordered by the Government. Incomplete material, or items still in process of manufacture, would have only scrap value under this view, and such items as dismissal

50 Million Tons of Shipping Seen as Big Postwar Problem

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission disclosed in "a report to the American people" yesterday that merchant shipping will total 50 million deadweight tons by the end of 1944, thus meeting war needs but creating a tremendous peacetime surplus which "some international body" is expected to distribute among the nations.

The expected surplus of merchant shipping was said to be from 15 to 20 million deadweight tons on basis of anticipated United States needs for about 15 to 20 deadweight tons. Before Pearl Harbor, the United States Merchant Marine totaled about 10,500,000 deadweight tons.

Although the admiral did not elaborate on the statement, maritime officials said they understood that much of the new American shipping will be disposed of on some equitable basis at an international conference under terms of an understanding between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

This understanding, announced early in the war, generally calls for America to build or concentrate on merchant vessels for war shipping while England will stick to construction of war vessels.

Maritime officials said this country will probably retain all of the fast Victory ships and turn over the slower Liberty ships for international disposition. Present delivery schedules for 1944 alone call for 339 Victory ships, 820 Liberty ships, 300 C-type cargoes, and 340 tankers.

Suggested methods of disposing of surplus peacetime shipping, as disclosed at the Maritime Commis-

Finschhafen Airfield Taken; Artillery Pounds At Base Itself

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Saturday), Sept. 25.—The airdrome at Finschhafen, New Guinea, has been captured by Australian veterans of desert warfare who now are within three-quarters of a mile of investing the Japanese coastal base itself, Gen Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Australians, who overran the third air base to fall into MacArthur's hands since September 11—the Salamaua airdrome was seized on that date, Lae five days later—now are exchanging fire with the Japanese across the Bumi River just north of Finschhafen.

These Aussies landed Wednesday, under warship and bomber cover, 6 miles north of their objective and headquarters disclosed today that they coolly ran into Japanese mortar and machine-gun fire. A half-hour later they had wiped out the opposition and held a strong beachhead.

Base Under Artillery Fire

Then they moved steadily south and put Finschhafen under artillery fire.

While pressure was being increased on Finschhafen's garrison, Mitchell medium bombers flew low in a sector some 70 miles to the west to hammer the rear door of the Markham Valley, where enemy remnants may be trying to retreat after the fall of Lae and Salamaua.

Many tons of bombs and 41,000 rounds of ammunition started fires in enemy villages, exploding ammunition dumps and silencing anti-aircraft positions.

Encountering no enemy fighter opposition, all the Mitchells returned. Other air activity was on a greatly reduced scale.

Destroyer Attacked

Patrolling Catalinas attacked a Japanese destroyer in the Bismarck Sea in the New Britain vicinity September 23 and cargo vessels south of Cape St. George, New Ireland. Results were not given.

General MacArthur's forces on the Huon Peninsula now are on the verge of capturing their third New Guinea coastal base this month by using the simple rule of checkers that a king can jump a man from any direction.

Salamaua and Lae fell last week after the Allies jumped over them with paratroopers and around them with amphibious forces and then attacked from the front instead of the rear.

Barefoot Boy May Reappear, Shoe Man Says

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration will have to relax its order stretching the new shoe ration stamp to six months or there will be many children running around barefoot, Business Manager Harry J. Deters of the Greater Buffalo Shoe Retailers Association said today.

"Growing children will need about five pairs a year of the present-day shoes because of the inferior grade of leather," he said, adding, a survey of 290 shoe retailers in five western New York counties completed September 1 disclosed "the sales of small children's shoes showed the largest increase—48.2 per cent—from a year ago."

"This," he said, "reflects not only an increased demand because of a larger population in the area, but also the rapidity with which children's shoes are wearing out."

14 Miners Perish In Pa. Explosion

Minersville, Pa., Sept. 24 (AP).—Fourteen men were killed when an explosion ripped through the fifth level of the Moffett Schrader at nearby Forrestville today.

Rescue workers working feverishly to reach miners trapped by the blast brought four bodies to the surface at 10 p. m. (E. W. T.) and reported 10 other bodies were still underground.

Removed to Pottsville Hospital were nine workmen, including at least three reported to be in serious condition.

Mighty Surge Carries Russians To Gates of Kiev And Smolensk

By James M. Long
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), Sept. 25.—The battle for the Dnieper River defense line began today as the Russians surged forward in force along a 300-mile front on the eastern bank and knocked at the gates of Smolensk in the north and Kiev in the south, Moscow announced.

German reports said the Russians had tried to cross the Dnieper only one mile above Kiev where the Desna joins the Dnieper but the Soviet communique made no mention of a crossing, nor an attempt to cross.

The Soviet monitor here, incorrectly transcribing a Moscow broadcast of the communique, first said the Dnieper had been crossed in the Gomel sector but later changed its version of the communique to tell of a crossing of the Iput River, some 70 miles east of the Dnieper.

Nevertheless, the Russians, according to Moscow reports, were already at the river in many places and the Germans themselves mentioned an attempted Soviet crossing below Gomel at a point where the Pripet River enters the Dnieper.

Tentacles Tighten

In the fighting for Smolensk the Soviets announced the capture of Korelly, 7 miles northeast of Hitler's former headquarters and on the northwest they tightened another tentacle that may soon throttle that big rail center prize. The Roslavl-Smolensk high road also was seized.

Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, heard the thunder of approaching Soviet guns at Borispol, 17 miles to the southeast. The Rusians had already swept through Lyeski, 18 miles northeast.

The Moscow communique said that in the Kiev battle the Germans launched several counterattacks "but after losing over 400 officers and men killed were forced to roll back."

The communique also told of Germans in many sectors retreating so rapidly they were abandoning artillery, infantry, armaments and munitions.

Fleeing Nazis Jam Roads

A Moscow radio commentator, recorded by Reuters, said the "roads leading to the west are jammed with German transport columns, offering excellent targets to the Soviet air force which is holding enemy communications in

Shirttail Give You the Creeps? U. S. Will Help

By the Associated Press

Lady, does your slip tend to creep up your back? Sir, do you have trouble keeping your shirttail in?

The Government is working on your problem, and reported tonight the development of a gadget that will determine a fabric's "creep rating."

"It's a "friction meter" which the Commerce Department said was devised by Edwin C. Dreby, research associate of the American Society for Testing Materials at the National Bureau of Standards.

In addition to telling, in cold mathematical figures, which slip or shirt is more apt to creep than another, it will show at a glance which sleeve lining you can slip your arm into with a minimum of wear.

Or in the words of the Commerce Department, it will "evaluate the coefficient of friction of fabrics."

Has Tooth Pulled, Leaps to Death

New York, Sept. 24 (INS).—A young Chinese who had just had a tooth extracted dived out of a second-story window in a dentist's office today and was killed.

He was identified as Tung Wing Lung, 30. The dentist, Dr. Leon Harris, said Tung was just regaining consciousness after having been administered gas for the extraction, when he wrenched free from Harris and a nurse and plunged through the window.

Lewis W. Douglas Reported Due to Take Over Welles' Post

By Thomas F. Reynolds
Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Lewis W. Douglas, ultraconservative Democrat, opponent of many New Deal policies and supporter of Wendell L. Willkie in 1940, is scheduled to succeed Sumner Welles as Undersecretary of State, it was reported in informed circles here last night.

Under pressure from Harry L. Hopkins and W. Averell Harriman, President Roosevelt's lend-lease expediter in London, Secretary of State Cordell Hull is understood to have acquiesced to the appointment of Douglas to the important No. 2 foreign policy post.

Mr. Roosevelt as yet has made no public acknowledgment that Welles' resignation was submitted, but informed quarters said that Welles was forced out by Hull in a final White House showdown with the declaration that "it must be either Welles or me."

As one of the organizers and active members of the "Democrats for Willkie" Clubs in 1940, Douglas is a spokesman for the extreme right wing of the Democratic Party despite the fact that he currently is back in the Administration as deputy administrator of the War Shipping Administration.

Hull, it was reported, had sought to name Norman Armour, Ambassador to Argentina, as his top assistant. Armour was called back

Well-informed sources said Douglas was the candidate of both Harriman and Hopkins, who brought a cross-fire of pressure to bear on

Sen. La Follette May Attend 3-Way Parley

Foreign Relations Unit Of Senate Hopes To Send Delegate

Post Staff Writer

Reports that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will have a representative at the forthcoming tripartite meetings of Allied foreign ministers were current on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Speculation centered about the selection of the Senator to represent the committee with the name of Senator La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin emerging as that of the likely candidate.

Obviously Chairman Connally (Democrat) of Texas, who revealed, as was reported in an exclusive story in The Post yesterday, that the committee would not report out a postwar peace resolution until after tripartite conferences of United States, Great Britain and Russia, would be the first invited.

George Ranking

Senator George (Democrat) of Georgia is ranking majority member and if such an invitation has been extended and accepted he would be next in line for the task.

It is La Follette's age (49), which would better enable him to endure the rigors of wartime foreign travel, and questions of political expediency which gave rise to rumors that the invitation had been extended to him.

Reports are that La Follette might have been selected by the

De Gaulle, Giraud Row Is Reported

This Time Its Over Corsican Campaign, Broadcaster Asserts

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 24.—Don Hollenbeck, NBC correspondent in Algiers, tonight quoted "reliable sources" as saying that a dispute had flared between Generals Henri Giraud and Charles de Gaulle over the Corsican campaign and that De Gaulle cried, "you stole my Corsica!" and tried to have Giraud ousted as French commander in chief.

Hollenbeck said De Gaulle was said to have been "particularly incensed at what he feels is Giraud's unfair attitude toward the Italians on Corsica."

The correspondent quoted "reliable informants" as saying that "Giraud is accused of slighting the real contribution made by the Italians towards the success of the present drive against the German forces, and has given them credit only as labor troops."

Hollenbeck reported that information indicated that the Corsican campaign began entirely as a "home-grown affair, staged by Corsican patriots who had no particular interest in either general.

The moment the uprising became known in Algiers, Giraud rushed a battalion of soldiers to the island, and was immediately accused by de Gaulle of trying to engineer a coup."

The correspondent quoted informants as saying the disagreement came to a head during a stormy meeting of the French Com-

Coordinate Efforts, Needs

Board Will Act as Liaison Between Home Front, Military

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday created a Joint Production Survey Committee of four high-ranking Army and Navy officers "to provide machinery for full coordination of the military and civilian branches of our Government," and to advise the joint chiefs of staff "on changes in the procurement programs of the armed services in the light of war developments, production progress, and changing military strategy."

"With critical shortages in material and manpower," the President said, "we must see that we produce only what we need and that the waste, unavoidably present in war, is kept at a minimum."

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, who released the text of a statement by the President at a specially called press conference explained, "There must be closer cooperation between the military front and the home front."

The new committee will provide machinery to continue reviewing the procurement programs of the armed services to avoid waste, the President said. Byrnes disclosed that special boards set up to review the procurement programs of the War and Navy Departments had completed their assignments and would be replaced by the committee.

The special boards have made recommendations for substantial changes in existing programs which will result in an actual cash saving to the Government, Byrnes said. He declined to release details of their recommendations.

Byrnes cautioned not to expect any general expansion of production for civilians as a result of these changes because of manpower shortages, although he ac-

Rough Fighting

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 24.—The American Fifth Army, in full offensive, lunged toward tortured Naples tonight behind a violent artillery and air barrage which reduced stout German mountain positions and blocked enemy roads just behind the "bitter and severe" fighting.

Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, main towns of southern Corsica, fell to French troops, patriots and American Rangers who were steadily herding the Germans to the northeast corner of the island, from which they were trying desperately to escape by air and sea.

The vulnerability of the German-held Balkans to Allied attack across the Adriatic was demonstrated by a bold raid of motor torpedo boats which sank a loaded ammunition ship and another vessel in the Albanian bay of Valona. They damaged two more and escaped without damage or casualty before coastal guns could find their range.

Eighth Army Mopping Up

The American and British troops of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army exerted so much pressure before Naples that the British Eighth army was able to mop up virtually all Italy south of a line east of Salerno to the Adriatic above Bari. Impeded only by demolitions, the Eighth Army captured Atlamura, 42 miles northwest of Taranto, and Matera, 10 miles south of Altamura. An arm of the Fifth Army scooped up the mountain town of Oliveto-Citra, 24 miles east of Salerno.

A front dispatch said slow but steady gains were being made in the battle for the mountain passes leading into the Plain of Naples, with the Allies digging in and routing the Germans from one defile after another, thus tightening the pressure on Naples.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers, meanwhile, said "the Germans have been compelled to regroup their forces in Italy."

Prelate Visiting In Russia Finds Church Liberty

Moscow, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Archbishop of York, visiting the Soviet Union at the invitation of the Russian church, said today he had found complete freedom of worship and had seen no indications why it should not continue after the war.

At a press conference in the National Hotel, across the square from the Kremlin, the archbishop said: "I most certainly believe freedom of worship exists here. I am also quite sure the churches can freely hold services."

The archbishop said he had brought an invitation to Russian churchmen to visit England and that the invitation had been accepted.

The archbishop declared he had been greatly impressed by the size of the congregations and their "obvious earnestness." He said he saw no indication that the church was currently being exploited as part of the war effort.

Strategy Enters MacArthur Furor

Differences of Opinion Cited as to Value Of India vs. Australia as Offensive Base

[Editor's note: Just what did General MacArthur have in mind when he issued his statement of September 22 commenting on press reports that his part in the war was to be curtailed and his command subordinated? C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press Bureau chief at MacArthur's headquarters, herewith outlines the background for the statement.

By C. Yates McDaniel

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Saturday), Sept. 25.—The vital issue brought into the open by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's statement implying that his role in the war might be curtailed, is not who is to direct the major assault on Japan, but from what base or basic area such an offensive is to be mounted.

Expected official reaction has not been forthcoming from Washington, London or Canberra, but a London announcement did set a dividing line between the commands of General MacArthur and Lord Louis Mountbatten in southeast Asia.

When MacArthur said he was willing to accept a subordinate role, discussion immediately arose as to whether the major attack against Japan would be made by Lord Mountbatten's forces in India or those under the Southwest Pacific command.

MacArthur said he favored "massive strokes against only main strategic objectives" instead of "island hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress."

What Will Strategy Dictate?

Thus he brought into the open the question that still is up in the air—what direction will Allied strategy follow in order to achieve the maximum damage to the enemy at the lowest cost in men and materiel?

There are four available base areas from which the Allies could pivot striking forces against Japan's far-flung empire. These are Alaska-Aleutians, Hawaii-Midway, Australia-New Guinea-Solomons, and India-Ceylon.

The Aleutians are somewhat more distant from the centers of American production and supply than Hawaii, but Kiska and even Dutch Harbor, are much nearer than other bases to the heart of Japan proper. Aleutian-based bombers have already demonstrated that they are within the range of Japanese-held Kurile Islands but the difficulties of rough and foggy weather there have not been overcome.

It would be a daring commander indeed who would venture to lead an invasion fleet across 2250 statute miles of open seas from Midway to the main island of Japan. Over two-thirds of the distance the invasion fleet would not only be dependent upon carriers for airplane cover but would be within range of enemy planes based on islands.

Both Distant From Japan

The Australian and Indian base areas are both distant from Japan proper and approximately equidistant from the enemy's newly won sources of vital war materials. Both areas are approximately the same distance from British and American sources of supply.

India, as a base for large-scale operations, has an apparent advantage over Australia in that it offers a land bridgehead into Japanese-held East Asia and that it possesses a vast reservoir of native fighting and labor power.

India's land connection with Burma threatened to prove a weakness last year but now the British have made India reasonably secure from invasion. India still represents definite weaknesses. Chief of these is its native population of subject peoples among whom discontent is prevented from open eruption by stern repressive measures.

Even if these weaknesses could be overcome—as they no doubt would be if major attention were focused there—the chances of success of such an undertaking should be weighed against basic geographical and military facts which still lare discernible through the mental fog generated by the very sincerity and urgency of our desire to give effective succor to long-suffering China.

All leaders seem to agree that we must, to achieve a decisive, smashing victory over the Japanese military machine, make the fullest use of China's bases, her manpower and, above all, her unbreakable will to fight to victory.

Heroic Exertions Needed

Heroic exertions might succeed in pushing the Allied armies across northern Burma to the Chinese border. That would mean the reopening of the Burma Road. Those of us who worked in Burma and China during the bitter pre-Pearl Harbor years know that the Burma Road, far from being an end in itself, was the last and least efficient supply route resorted to by the Chinese in the hope of maintaining minimum resistance after the lifelines from Hongkong, Tonkin Gulf and nothern Indo-China had been successively cut by the Japanese.

Allied engineers could increase its carrying capacity many times, but it would have to carry a volume that would pale its prewar traffic into insignificance.

Lord Mountbatten is unlikely to disclose the method or objectives of promised operations by the East Asia Command.

Existing and well-established bases at Ceylon, only a thousand miles from the tip of Sumatra and a little farther from the narrow waist of the Malayan Peninsula, however, would suggest the possibility of at least a strong feint toward the northwestern end of Sumatra and a stronger thrust designed to cut Japanese communications between Siam and Singapore.

Such a daring move would strike at the heart of the enemy's military and economic hold in southeast Asia but it likely would prove costly. Even if successful it would still leave the Allies with the necessity of undertaking equally ambitious overland and amphibious campaigns to become firmly established in the Hongkong area.

Australia as Offensive Base

Now that the dark days of threatened invasion are past, laymen and officials of Australia are seeing their country, not as a defensive battleground, but as a base from which the Allies could commence the formidable task of rolling back the Japanese tide.

There is much to support this conception of Australia's role. The commonwealth's population is a mere fraction of India's but Australia's seven million people are almost wholly British or of long-absorbed European stock among whom no Fifth Column or dissident movement has or is likely to make headway.

This population, though unable to provide a combat army large enough to launch a major offensive, is probably as thoroughly mobilized for war effort as any member of the British Commonwealth or the United States.

Unlike India, Australia can feed a much larger civilian and military population than she now supports. Furthermore, her admitted weakness in heavy industry and lack of certain essential war materials can be overcome by shipments from abroad over air and sea routes which so far have been subject to little worse than harrassment.

From a strictly military viewpoint it should not be forgotten that American and Australian divisions already in the Southwest Pacific form the core of a reconquest army.

The Southwest Pacific Command moreover, is comprised of a team of land, air and amphibious experts who aggregate more practical experience with our enemy in the Pacific than probably all other commands together could muster.

"Island Hopping"

Some critics have written off the achievements in the Solomons and New Guinea as "island hopping." Strictly speaking some of these thrusts—all of which have been successful—were island hopping.

But, as Prime Minister Churchill said of a similar island-hopping venture—the invasion of Sicily—the Guadalcanal, New Georgia and New Guinea moves were essential preliminaries to the main assault.

MacArthur has not considered any of his advances to date as anything but preparatory. Even the reconquest of New Britain and the web of bases hinged on Rabaul would be a preliminary move destined to remove the strong but reduceable Rabaul fortress which now prevents any deep penetration of the Japanese Empire from the east.

The strategy of MacArthur envisions one or a series of massive strokes, which instead of involving the costly capture of island after island, would carry a powerful Allied force over and around numerous islands as far as the southern Philippines

Reoccupation of Mindanao might prove castly but probably no more than a seaborne invasion of southern Burma or Malaya and possibly far less costly than a series of Guadalcanal campaigns.

Occupation and maintenance of a hold on Mindanao or another of the larger Philippine Islands would require a tremendous Allied effort.

Naval raids, on a larger scale than attempted so far, against Truk, Saipan and other of the enemy's flanking bases would greatly facilitate Allied development of the southern Philippines as a base whence not only could the enemy's supply lines between the Indies, Malaya and Japan be effectively dealt with, but also strong pressure could be expected against Japan's strategically vital bases around the South China Sea.

Such a strategy if matched by formidable exertions from India and Ceylon against the west coast of the south Asian mainland could result not only in complete isolation of Japan from its sources of raw materials but also enable the Allies to gain a foothold along the seaboard of China.

Such an achievement wouldn't cause the collapse of Japan overnight but would be the most decisive stride in that direction yet undertaken.

RAF Daylight Patrols Destroy 100 Foe Planes

London, Sept. 24. (INS).—The Air Ministry announced tonight more than 100 enemy planes have been destroyed by RAF fighters in daylight patrols since September 1.

Around Fiery Vesuvius

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

VIOLENT BARRAGE—With guns and planes battering hard, the American Fifth Army yesterday struck from the Allied front (black line) through the mountains for Naples, moving apparently first toward Avellino, east of Mount Vesuvius, after taking Olivetro Citra. The British Eighth took Altamura and Matera.

dio said Italian officers answered the appeal of Premier Badoglio by reappearing in parts of Italy to lead patriot forces in open fighting against the German army and sabotage Nazi defenses. The broadcast said these efforts to liberate Italy were now going on at a far greater scale than at any time since the Italian armistice was signed, and were hampering seriously German attempts at reinforcement.)

Main Body Makes Progress

The main body of the Fifth Army made slow progress in the mountains north of Salerno, but there was evidence of ground gained within sight of smoking Mt. Vesuvius.

An Air Force statement said American Mitchell bombers "blocked roads and hit targets just behind the enemy lines near San Severino and Sarno." Sarno is 19 miles east and slightly south of Naples on the east side of Vesuvius. San Servino is seven miles north of Salerno.

Indicating that the Germans had been forced to move their artillery back from their original lines, the Air Force bulletin announced that fighter-bombers had pummeled positions west of Avellino, a road junction 16 miles north of Salerno and 25 miles east of Naples.

(This suggested that Clark was hurling his main weight toward Avellino in a wide flanking movement to the east of Naples and Vesuvius. The volcano compresses the main highway from Salerno to Naples into a narrow coastal defile.)

The heavy pressure of the Fifth Army threatened the roads leading into Naples, second largest Italian port with a population of 925,000. German demolitions have wrecked the waterfront and blocked the docks with the hulks of at least 30 Italian ships. Industrial and rail centers also have been put to the torch.

Meet Heavy Fire

Clark's men encountered heavy artillery and mortar fire and extensive minefields in their forward drive. They struck at dawn to open a new phase in the battle for Italy after firmly consolidating their hard-won hold on the Salerno sector, 20 to 40 miles below their current objective.

A military spokesman said:

"The enemy obviously intends to hold on as long as possible. Progress is slow north of Salerno, but the fighting is bitter and severe. The enemy has reconstructed his whole line and put strength where it is needed. The Eighth Army has been able to advance 30 miles northward because of General Clark's operations."

Reinforcements and supplies were being landed constantly on the Salerno beaches to increase the power of Clark's smash. General Eisenhower's communique gave few details of the offensive, stating merely that "the Fifth Army is exerting increased pressure."

The Germans were ensconced in strong mountain positions, but beyond this final range lay the flat Plains of Naples on which tanks and self-propelled artillery could maneuver easily.

Bastia Hard Hit

The conquest of Corsica, the French Island just 100 miles south of France itself, was near its end. Besides Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, the hardy Corsican patriots, French and United States troops seized Murato and Santo Stefano. The escape port of Bastia, to which the survivors of the estimated 12,000-man German force were in flight, was rendered virtually useless by air attacks.

Two ships loaded with weapons, ammunition dumps and numerous tanks along the quayside awaiting embarkation were destroyed. The French communique said its air force was participating in the Corsican operation but did not say whether the planes were using island airports.

RAF Beaufighters shot down seven, and possibly more, big Nazi transport planes crammed with evacuating troops flying toward Leghorn. Allied naval forces were on the watch for shipping attempting to escape from Bastia. Fliers reporting sighted many small boats attempting to run the blockade. The French disclosed that 2 cruisers, 6 destroyers and 3 submarines of the French fleet had aided operations. One cruiser was from Martinique.

The Germans already were beset with the problem of trying to keep well-armed bands of Albanian and Yugoslav patriots under some degree of control, and they were jolted anew by the mosquito fleet raid into the Bay of Valona.

Pisa Airfield Attacked

The foray appeared to give conclusive evidence that the Germans could not dare to move shipping along the Adriatic side of the Balkans, which are barely 50 miles from Allied bases on the heel of Italy.

The Northwest African air forces appeared for the time being to have driven the Germans from the skies over the battlefront. They hammered roads and junctions, gun emplacements and bridges, troops and transports, as well as railways throughout the battle area. Principal targets were around Avellino, Benevento, Cancello and Capua—all in the Naples area.

Night bombers flew north beyond Leghorn to attack rail yards and an airport at Pisa. Mosquitoes hit the Vitero air base north of Rome.

Marauders shattered a bridge at Cancello, exploding a truck crossing it at the time. A road junction at Capua was tangled. Ten trucks were demolished on the road linking Benevento and Avellino.

Middle East bombers pounded the Maritza and Calato airdromes on Rhodes in the Dodecanese.

American invader dive bombers were credited with breaking up a German infantry attack with a barrage of 500-pound explosives east of Salerno. An Army message said:

"The enemy was unable to advance because of this attack, which was most successful. Hits were observed among infantry."

mittee on National Liberation.

The NBC correspondent said that according to impartial Frenchmen, the Italians on Corsica were the really decisive factor in the uprising's success. He added that those of the garrison of 40,000 Italians who did not fight actively turned their equipment over to patriots who did, and that the Nazis promptly recognized the uselessness of attempting to defend the island and began to withdraw at once behind rearguards.

Hollenbeck said that the reappearance of the "old row" between the two generals meant that hoped-for unity in the committee "has taken a bad kick in its first real test in Corsica."

"Personalities still seem bigger than France to the men who are trying to win France back," Hollenbeck said.

the rear under a steady hail of fire."

Other Red Army gains saw the Germans backing up to the Kerch Strait on their last feeble foothold in the Caucasus. The last town on the southern coast of the Taman Peninsula fell to the Russians as they captured Blagovyeschchenskaya, 15 miles north of Anapa, already taken. The road center of Gostagaevskaya, northeast of Anapa, also fell to the Russians.

The Russians also closed on Zaporozhe, Dnepropetrovsk, Kremenchug and Cherkasi, all important Ukraine towns on the lower Dnieper.

German broadcasts painted a dark picture of the Nazi plight in the east.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, German front correspondent whose dispatch was broadcast by Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said that on the Smolensk front "the Soviets were favored in their bringing up reinforcements by the fact that unfavorable weather conditions prevented the employment of the German Luftwaffe (air force), so that the German ground troops had to bear the brunt of the hard defense struggle.

"The German formations here were faced with the extremely difficult task of holding their positions against the numerically superior enemy. At only a few points, however, did the Russians succeed in gaining ground . . ."

The German communique said "Soviet attempts to cross the middle Dnieper in several places were frustrated."

Col. Ludwig Sertorius, German radio commentator, broadcast that Soviet frontal attacks around Kiev, where the Red army was last reported 18 miles away, "again increased in violence."

The first Russian announcement that the Red army had reached the middle Dnieper came from the army newspaper Red Star, which said Soviet columns drove through Novomoskovsk to the banks of the great stream and also reached it at other points.

The Soviet communique told of the capture of Borispol, 17 miles southeast of Kiev, and of two towns about 45 miles northeast of Kremenchug, middle Dnieper town between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk. In the drive on Gomel the Soviets reached Klimov, 48 miles from that White Russian city and 15 miles south of Novozybkov.

The Red army took 466 towns and hamlets in the day's drives.

The communique also told of the capture of Tsarichanka, 17 miles from the Dnieper north of Dnepropetrovsk, and of continuing advances up to 5 miles in the Caucasus.

One Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press admitted that the battle "raging in the whole Smolensk region has become very embittered indeed," but said that "the battle for the Dnieper River line into which the enemy has entered with great expectations is in its initial phase only.

"On the whole," the broadcast continued, "the present fighting is still going on before the great water barrier. It is by no means certain that the German high command has the intention of letting the enemy approach the river at all points before showing the Soviets what can be done in the way of resistance with the help of the strategical defense line equipped with all the facilities that modern technique has to offer and favored by terrain excellently suited for defensive operations."

Nazis Hope for Rain

The broadcast, discussing the most important military question in Russia today—whether the Soviet offensive could force the Dnieper line—contended that the rainy autumn season will begin within a few weeks and turn the the black earth district east of Kiev, Kremenchug, Dnepropetrovsk and Zaparozhe "into a bottomless swamp."

Around-Clock Raids Go Into 3d Day

By Gladwin Hill

Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 24.—A big fleet of RAF night bombers hit four big German industrial centers—including the important twin cities of Mannheim-Ludwigshafen—and American Marauders again raided Evreuxfauville Airfield near Paris in daylight today, carrying the Allies' latest large-scale round-the-clock aerial assault from Britain into its third straight day.

A joint British-American communique said that during the day Eighth Air Force Marauders attacked Nazi airfields at Evereux-Fauville and Beauvais-Tille while RAF Mitchells blasted a railway center at Amiens and airfields at Brest-Lanvoc, Brest-Guipavas and St. Omer-Lonfleunesse. Typhoon bombers also bombed the latter airfield. At the same time, United States Thunderbolts made supporting sweeps over France and Belgium.

RAF, Dominion and Allied fighters escorting the bombers shot down 20 enemy planes and the Marauders destroyed 1. Nine Allied planes were missing.

Other German night targets were historic Aachen (also known as Aix-la-Chapelle, near Cologne and Darmstadt near Mannheim.

The RAF lost 32 bombers, 2 less than when it hurled 1500 long tons of explosives in 45 minutes on the twin cities less than three weeks ago.

Nazi night fighters, strongly on the defensive, again used the tactic of dropping myriad flares along the ingoing and outcoming bomber lanes, making the night almost as bright as day, one pilot reported.

Transshipment Point

Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, on the western German border at the junction of the Rhine and the Neckar Rivers, is an important transshipment point for supplies to Italy. Darmstadt is on the key supply line to Hitler's Belgian-French coastal "Atlantic Wall."

The quadruple night assault was another blow in the RAF's new drive against Nazi consumer goods and finished-product factories, as contrasted with those earlier blows against the plants which do first-stage processing of raw materials for the enemy's war machine.

Mannheim-Ludwigshafen has been cited by the British ministry of economic warfare as a typical final stage manufacturing center turning out tanks, trucks, Diesel engines and armorplate. At Darmstadt are the Merck chemical works, one of Germany's leading drug and medicine producers. At Aachen, consumer items like cloth, glass, pins and needles were made before the war in factories which now are likely converted to important small war implements.

Four Major Campaigns On

The RAF now has at least four major campaigns going—against strategic targets such as the Modane Alpine Tunnel hit September 16; against basic raw material processing plants illustrated in raids on the big rubber center at Mont Lucon September 15 and on Hanover Wednesday night; against final stage manufacturing, and finally against morale and administration (combined with industrial objectives), as in the devastation raids on Hamburg.

The Marauders' new foray was their third in two days, Thursday they hit both the Conches and the Beauvais-Tille airfields. It brought the toll of Luftwaffe bases hit this month to more than 40 different ones, some of which have been hit as many as six times.

The raids Thursday night and Friday backed up two smashes by American Flying Fortresses by day Thursday at Nantes, their first double-header raid of the war.

D. C. Man on Fortress Crew Which Has 21 Decorations

By the Associated Press

At a U. S. Bomber Base In England, Sept. 24.—The men who flew in the Flying Fortress Wabbit Twacks have received nine Silver Stars, seven Distinguished Flying crosses and five Purple Hearts, to become one of the most decorated American crews in the European theater.

COOPER

The awards came after the ship received 500 bullet and antiaircraft holes while shooting down seven Germans confirmed and four probables in a single raid.

This was only one of the "Twack's" exploits but on it the crew said that Pilot Capt. Walter E. Flagg of Susanville, Calif., did "one of the sweetest jobs of flying ever seen," maneuvering his crippled plane home despite the attacks of 25 Nazi fighters.

D. C. Man Included

The newly decorated crew members and their decorations are:

Copilot Lieut. Maxwell P. Barret of Frankfort, Ky., Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross.

Navigator Capt. Merle L. Hamilton of Orchard, Nebr., Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross.

Bombardier Capt. Robert P. Millikin of Adrian, Mich., Silver Star, Purple Heart.

Radioman Sergt. William E. Morgan of Flint, Mich., Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Purple Heart.

Ball Turret Gunner Sergt. John Solinsky of Cleveland, Silver Star, Purple Heart.

Waist Gunner Sergt. John J. Wagner of Cleveland, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Purple Heart.

Tail Gunner Sergt. Budd R. Schmidt of Brewster, Wash., Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross.

Waist Gunner Sergt. Hal R. Cooper of 5740 Colorado ave., Washington, D. C., Distinguished Flying Cross, Purple Heart.

[Sergeant Cooper, who is 32 years old, was formerly a reporter for the Associated Press in Washington, coming here in 1937 from the Chicago Bureau of the Associated Press. He obtained a leave of absence in April, 1942, to join the Army.—Editor's note.]

Cooper was sick when the plane went on its most spectacular mission and his place was taken by another sergeant who is now listed as missing in action after a single mission on another flying fortress.

Attacked by 25 Nazis

"Wabbit Twacks" was ten minutes away from its target, a German airfield in France, on July 11, when the propellor of number one engine went out. Unable to remain in formation, the plane was immediately attacked by 25 Nazis fighters. At 24,000 fet Flagg sideslipped, speeded, slowed and dove to throw off the German aim until the plane was only 20 feet above the English Channel.

"All the way down Flagg kept talking into the interphone in such a way we just couldn't get excited," Hamilton said. He kept saying, 'How are the blank-blank-blanks doing? Why don't they come closer so we can really go to work on them? Everything up here is under control. Keep up the good work'."

Waist Gunner Wagner said that despite the violent maneuvers Flagg flew the ship so smoothly "it was like shooting from a table." He said Flagg was the coolest man in the crew and added: "Everywhere I looked I could see daylight. Thirty-nine shells hit the ship and all exploded. There were innumerable machine-gun hits and at least four holes in every gas tank. The wings were riddled and the whole tail almost shot off."

Ground crews who inspected "Wabbit Twacks" said it seemed impossible that the ship could have returned.

U. S. Output Called 50% Over Axis'

Will Be Twice That Of Nazis, Japs in '44, Nelson Declares

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 24.—Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chairman, told the British tonight that American war production this year would be at least one and a half times the combined output of Germany and Japan and next year probably would be twice as great.

Speaking at a dinner given by the British government in his honor, the American production chief said he thought his figures might interest the Germans as well as his audience.

He said the United States alone produced 110,000 military planes since January 1, 1942, "and the production curve is still rising."

"Very soon we will be turning out a complete plane every five minutes around the clock, every day of the month."

Also since January 1, 1942, Nelson said America produced 60,000 tanks and tank chassis, 53,000 scout cars and carriers and 1,100,000 trucks and trailers.

"More than 21 million deadweight tons of merchant vessels and nearly 3 million displacement tons of naval vessels have come from our shipyards during this time," he said.

As for artillery and ammunition, he said enough had been manufactured "to let us fire nearly 2000 shots at every soldier in the Axis armies."

Emphasizing that he was speaking only of American production exclusive of the other United Nations, Nelson said:

"Let the German people exercise their imagination on the total of our combined war production. Let them understand how hopeless is the struggle they are waging in a war where mechanical production is the foundation of every military campaign."

Nelson struck sharply at what he termed "the diplomacy of squeeze and grab," saying that already in some quarters peace was being discussed in terms of new power combinations by which one group of nations could get the better of another.

"I wonder how long the people of the world will tolerate that negative and dangerous attitude," Nelson said.

"I have a feeling that the time is here when frankness and simplicity will prove to be the most effective tools of international statement."

Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, Nelson's British counterpart, in introducing the American, said there has been only one "diminution in the production effort" of the United States and Britain in the last year—and that had been in the US war production chief's waistline.

For the Wives

Murray Asks Higher Army Benefits

President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations asked Congress yesterday to boost to $126 a month the family allowance for a serviceman with a wife and two children.

The figure—far higher than any proposed in Congress—would "assure tolerable living conditions for the families of our men now taking the offensive," Murray wrote House leaders.

The present family allowance is $50 for a wife, $12 for the first child and $10 for additional children. Murray wants $55 for a wife, $35 for the first child and $30 each for others.

A Senate-passed bill to raise the allowance for a wife and two children to $89 a month by allowing $28 for the first child and $11 for others is pending in the House Military Committee, but immediate action is unlikely. That bill would increase the present allowance about 10 per cent, but some House members object to any kind of a flat increase, contending it would be inequitable.

The highest increase yet proposed in Congress was 15 per cent, and it got scant attention.

Murray said the Senate bill is "more than $10 a month below the absolute minimum of necessity."

"It is not enough," he said, "to give lip service to the principle of increased support for servicemen's dependents without making certain that the support will be at adequate levels." He asked the House to "consider realistically the needs of American families."

Bailey Drafting New Service Bill

Government service "which is full of them."

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (Democrat), of South Carolina earlier called on Selective Service to comply with the law requiring monthly reports to Congress "showing as nearly currently as is practicable the names and positions of persons who have been deferred or placed in any class or subdivision of a class . . . because of their employment in or under the Federal Government."

Maybank said Congress passed the law last spring to provide a record so the public would know exactly who was deferred, who asked for the deferment and why.

Maybank said many Government employes "doing work absolutely essential to win this war" have not asked for deferment, and the information should be published in justice to them.

Chairman Andrew May of the House Military Affairs Committee, who has dropped the fight for his own no-father-draft bill similar to Wheeler's, said he will call Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, before his committee next week to explain why military age men are still working in departments which have not requested their deferment.

Chairman John M. Costello of the Military Affairs subcommittee which placed the Government reservoir of military age nonfathers at 300,000, said he thought 150,000 of them could be put into uniform.

Wheeler in Radio Talk

Wheeler joined the congressional drive to tap Government office bachelors ahead of fathers in a radio speech last night. He called on the Selective Service to reach into "that multitude of Government employes who, like swarms of locusts, infest Washington and every city in the land where Government bureaus have been established."

Wheeler made a plea for his own bill, contending, as he has before the Senate Military Committee, that there will be three million soldiers in the United States at the end of 1944 "without drafting another" and that two million more can be raised from 4-F classifications by lowering standards under which professional baseball and football players have been deferred.

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Finnish radio, quoting the Swedish newspaper, Svenska Dagbladet, said today that the former French Premier Edouard Herriot had died in a sanatorium in the "south of France." The broadcast was recorded by United States Government monitors.

Early in September, the Nazis announced that Herriot had fallen "incurably" ill of a mental ailment and was confined to a sanatorium.

Stress Pacific, Knox Urges British Press

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox asked the British press today to educate the English public "to the necessity of fighting this Japanese war."

"Nothing would more disturb the growing American confidence in British cooperation than to believe the British feel that when Hitler is disposed of it will be over," he told a press conference.

Asked if Prime Minister Churchill's recent statement had not dispelled all such feeling, the Secretary replied:

"No, it hasn't been dispelled in America."

He added that during his current visit the attitude he found here "is the real war is in Germany and the other a sideshow."

On the other hand, he conceded that the United States had not concerned itself sufficiently with the necessity of a European victory.

Knox reiterated that the war in the Pacific would be costly to the Allies and bitterly fought by the Japanese to the very end.

"You are a naval people," Knox told the British, "and the war in the Pacific is the greatest naval war that ever has been fought by either of use in the most difficult circumstances and against the best armed foe."

Besides having a good fleet and knowing how to use it, the Japanese benefit by the fact that their main islands lie 7000 miles away and every Allied ship and weapon brought to bear must be transported vast distances, Knox said.

He declared that while the British have been "intent on a successful war against the submarine in the Atlantic, we have been carrying on a submarine war in the Pacific of very considerable size and with gratifying success."

Hungary Seeking Separate Peace, Rumania Reports

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 23 (Delayed) (AP).—The Rumanian radio told listeners yesterday that the Hungarian government was about to resign and quoted Swiss dispatches as declaring that the Hungarians were seeking a separate peace.

(A British broadcast, recorded by CBS in New York today, reported that "a cabinet crisis in Budapest, brought about by the people's wish to follow Italy out of the war, is taking place. A new ultimatum from Hitler is expected any moment.")

The Rumanian radio broadcast, which included vigorous comment on the suffering of Rumanians under Hungarian rule in Transylvania, gave the impression Rumania was trying to convince Germany that Hungary was about to quit the war and that Transylvania consequently should be returned to Rumania.

19 Ships in Convoy Sunk, Berlin Says

London, Set. 24 (AP).—The Berlin radio reported today that German submarines had made a surprise attack on a heavily escorted Allied convoy en route to America, sinking 12 destroyers and 9 merchant ships totaling 46,500 tons.

The German broadcast was unconfirmed by any Allied source, but it recalled Prime Minister Churchill's statement in Commons Tuesday that an Allied convoy was at that moment under attack.

Lieut. John Roosevelt Assigned to Shipyard

Boston, Sept. 24 (AP).—Lieut. John Roosevelt, USNR, youngest son of the President, who already has seen active naval duty in a war zone, now has been assigned to temporary service at the Fore River Shipyard of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp., in suburban Quincy, preliminary to going to sea again, according to information made public by the First Naval District headquarters.

Five D. C. Men on Army, Navy Casualty Lists

Five local servicemen were listed on Army and Navy casualty lists issued yesterday.

Coincident with the War Department announcement that Sergt. Francis D. Gray, 2605 Adams Mill rd. nw., had been wounded in the Southwest Pacific, came a report from Allied headquarters in the area that he had been awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Flying Cross. The award was made to Sergeant Gray for "extraordinary achievement" while participating in bombing missions against enemy airdromes and installations, and attacks on enemy naval vessels and shipping. An aerial gunner on a B-24 Liberator bomber, he previously received the Air Medal for achievements in missions over enemy installations in the South Pacific.

GRAY

Sergeant Gray, the grandson of Mrs. Margaret Mulcahy, 11 West Bellefonte ave., Alexandria, attended Catholic schools in Alexandria and entered the Army in July, 1942. He left for overseas duty on Christmas Day last year.

Sergt. John E. Rogers, 25, was listed as wounded, but his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Rogers, 3009 7th st. ne., has been informed by the War Department that he had been killed.

ROGERS

A member of the Engineer Corps, he had been overseas since May of last year. A letter sent to his mother on August 14 told that he had been in combat but that everything was now quiet. He was killed August 22.

Middleweight Golden Gloves boxing champion here in 1940, he represented Washington in contests in New York. He was a member of the National Guard team and had participated in amateur contests for the Olympic Athletic Club. He was a native of Washington and a graduate of McKinley High. Before entering the Army in February, 1942, he was employed by the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Listed as killed in action while stationed in Europe was Lieut. Robert P. Grover, whose brother, Fred B. Grover, lives at 1723 G st. nw.

Seaman First Class Leon Oscar Fowler, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fowler, 2311 North 18th st., Arlington, was wounded while serving with the Coast Guard, the Navy announced yesterday.

knowledged that civilians probably would get increased amounts of some items.

Byrnes explained that the new committee would channel information to the chiefs of staff on home front conditions—information on food, manpower, and materials. The British chiefs of staff have a secretariat to provide this information, he said, but American officers have found that they do not have as much information about the American home front as the British have about their home front.

A reporter asked Byrnes whether the new agency would absorb some of the production planning functions of the War Production Board. Byrnes replied that there would be no conflict, that the two agencies had "parallel functions." Observers speculated on the possibility that the new set-up would withdraw further policy-making authority from WPB, leaving the original production agency with the job of carrying out policy directives from Byrnes and the chiefs of staff.

Contract Methods Changed

Byrnes disclosed that the various procurement agencies already have largely abandoned cost-plus-fixed-fee contracting in favor of contracting plans which provide manufacturers with an incentive to reduce costs. Only the War Department, he said, has found it necessary to retain cost-plus contracting for some aircraft contracts where the contractors don't have sufficient capital to operate on another basis.

Bernard M. Baruch, head of the World War I War Industries Board, condemned cost-plus contracting in his recent report on manpower problems.

The text of the President's statement announcing the new production committee follows:

"The joint chiefs of staff, at my suggestion, have created the joint production survey committee as a new staff body charged with advising the joint chiefs on changes in the procurement programs of the armed services in the light of war developments, production progress, and changing military strategy.

"The committee is also to provide machinery for full coordination of the military and civilian branches of our Government by establishing close working relationship between the joint chiefs of staff and the Office of War Mobilization.

"The committee will work closely and constantly with representatives of the Office of War Mobilization, advise the chiefs of staff with regard to problems raised by that office which involve the military production programs, and cooperate with that office in the endeavor to promote economies in the use of materiel and manpower in the overall production program.

"The committee will be composed of four high-ranking officers, two from the Army and two from the Navy, no one of whom has present responsibility for the establishment of the current procurement programs. Representatives from the Office of War Mobilization will attend meetings of the committee as associate members when matters of interest to that office are under consideration. The service members are to be responsible, individually and collectively, only to the joint chiefs of staff.

Constant Attention Required

"Constant attention is required to insure that our military programs are kept in step to altered military objectives, and that production programs are changed in accordance with lessons from the battlefields and the assembly lines.

"With critical shortages in material and manpower, we must see that we produce only what we need and that the waste, unavoidably present in war, is kept to a minimum.

"Recently reports have been made by procurement review boards set up within the Army and Navy by order of the chiefs of staff at the suggestion of the Office of War Mobilization. These reports made important recommendations including, on the part of both the Army and Navy, requests for the establishment of machinery for continuing review. The joint production survey committee will provide this machinery.

"The committee has authority to request assistance, information, studies and estimates from all departments of the Army and Navy and agencies of the joint chiefs of staff, and may attend meetings of the joint chiefs, or their supporting agencies."

Hearings Begin On New Revenue Bill October 4

Congress' first hearings on the 1944 revenue bill will be held October 4 before the House Ways and Means Committee, Chairman Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina announced yesterday.

The hearings will center on raising additional revenue, he said, but will also include "careful consideration" on simplifying actual tax returns. Administration hopes are fixed on 12 billion dollars in new revenue, but few Congressmen believe that will be reached.

In a forecast of fast action on the tax bill, Doughton said that "it is extremely important that the revenue bill be passed before the end of this year to avoid retroactive taxation."

Cafeteria Soda Bar Proves '89'

By Helene Champlain
Post Staff Writer

Old-time corner-drugstore habitues, who shuddered when the first sandwich invaded the medicinal atmosphere, were equally unprepared for the latest in pharmacy alterations—a cafeteria-styled soda fountain—but they're learning.

Those interested in innovations may test the new service at Peoples Drug Store No. 38, 5550 Connecticut ave. nw., where the experiment was initiated this week. The cafeteria system will receive a second trial today at Store No. 14, 1144 Connecticut ave. nw., and other stores of the chain may follow suit, depending on public reaction.

Yesterday, the reaction was all on the favorable side: Patrons of the cafeteria-fountain combination vouched for it as "a wonderful idea," while those behind the fountain, in their own lingo, agreed it was "89." There was a little confusion, but no complaints. Even silver-foxed matriarchs were willingly trucking trays of food.

Customers are quickly initiated, too. A few minutes after the new cafeteria system had been explained to her, an elderly woman relayed the information to another who had been waiting vainly for service at one of the fountains. "It's a cafeteria now," she confided, while the other looked about thoughtfully and said, "Oh, is that what it is?"

It works this way: Instead of distributing six clerks among the three fountain sections, three only operate at one of them, where the stools have been removed. Orders are filled more quickly with this concentration of help and supplies, and patrons stand in line for their food, then bring it to the empty sections, themselves. A busgirl removes the dishes, but customers are on their own for all other services.

The wartime innovation has brought about at least one casualty: fast-going is the picturesque lingo of the soda jerker. With clerks confined in a few feet of space, there's no longer a need to signal "81" for a glass of water or "let it walk" for an outgoing order.

Advances Sought To Aid Conversion

pay for workers and reconversion costs would not be allowed.

Between five and seven billion dollars in war contracts already have been terminated and war procurement agencies for weeks have been conferring on a possible uniform termination contract for the bulk of terminations that will come as the war nears a successful conclusion. The Comptroller General's ruling is understood to have upset the plans of some agencies and resulted in the push for legislation.

Murray indicated he will proceed with hearings on the basis of a bill he introduced last summer, providing for uniform policies and procedures under direction of the chairman of the WPB. Mandatory advance payments to war contractors and subcontractors, of not less than 75 per cent of the amount of claims, are provided, with provision that payment be made in not less than 30 days after certification. Allowance would be made for direct or guaranteed loans above the 75 per cent minimum.

The procurement agencies themselves are said to differ on the method, the War Department preferring discretion in the matter of advance payments. Out of 3764 contracts terminated by the War Department during the war period, through June, advance payments were made in only a few cases and then to prime contractors only. The WPB was said to favor such payments to subcontractors as well. The War Department may object to the Murray bill provision placing termination policy and procedure under the chairman of the WPB.

Queen of Italy Not in Geneva

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Swiss telegraph agency retracted today an earlier announcement that Queen Elena of Italy had arrived in Geneva with Crown Prince Umberto.

The announcement was withdrawn an hour and a half after its issuance. In its later account the agency said the Queen and Crown Prince were probably in Sicily.

(The exact whereabouts of King Vittorio Emanuele has not been announced, but Prime Minister Churchill told Commons this week that the King and his government "are now established behind our advancing lines.") sion, are to give the ships away outright, charter them, sell, scrap, or hold as a merchant marine reserve.

In tracing the progress of "the greatest two-year shipbuilding program the world has ever known," Admiral Land compared September, 1941, with this month. He cited the following figures:

Before, 21 shipyards with about 100 ways, and now, about 70 yards with more than 300 ways; before, about 200,000 workers, and now, about three quarters of a million; before, seven vessels for the month, and now, about 170 expected this month alone.

He also pointed out that construction of a Liberty ship now costs about $160 a ton, whereas a similar vessel of the last war cost $210 a ton.

Five Ships a Day

High production at low cost has been accomplished, Admiral Land said, through standardization, centralization, and prefabrication. While it formerly took more than 200 days to build a Liberty ship, it now takes less than 45.

Admiral Land also disclosed that shipyards are now producing about five ships a day and are expected to step this up soon to six a day.

As to policy on the construction of Victory and Liberty ships, Admiral Land said Liberty ship construction will not be abandoned in the near future, although the emphasis is shifting to the fast Victory ship.

Admiral Land said he understood that Germany has about 300 "live" submarines in her fleet and the fleet is being equipped for surface warfare. He indicated that the Allies would have even an easier time in picking off submarines on the water because of the increasingly efficient Navy convoy and air activity.

Victory Fleet Day

The progress report, supplemented by a news conference, was made in connection with the forthcoming Victory Fleet Day, September 27, second anniversary of the launching of the first Libetry ship, the Patrick Henry.

"Victory Fleet Day has a deep intrinsic meaning to those who have been actively engaged in this the greatest two-year shipbuilding program the world has ever known," Admiral Land said.

"By their sweat and their brains and their determination to see the job through, they have delivered into service with steam up a fleet of more than 2100 ocean-going cargo ships, whose deadweight tonnage of more than 22 million tons is double the size of the Nation's pre-Pearl Harbor fleet."

Beaverbrook In Cabinet as Lord Privy Seal

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 24.—Lord Beaverbrook, one of Russia's best friends in Britain and an outspoken advocate of a "second front" in western Europe, returned to Prime Minister Churchill's cabinet tonight as lord privy seal as a series of changes were announced.

Beaverbrook, owner of the London Daily Express, held the ministries of aircraft production, state, and supply in 1940 and 1941. In February, 1942, he was named minister of war production, but declined to enter the cabinet because of ill health. Oliver Lyttelton then took the war production post.

The new changes apparently were caused by the death this week of Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer. The announcement from Churchill's residence said the appointment of Sir John Anderson to succeed Wood and R. K. Law was named minister of state.

The return to the cabinet of the 64-year-old Beaverbrook as lord privy seal makes him available for any special assignment. It was said, however, he would not be a member of the war cabinet.

The reshuffling, which 10 Downing st. said would be followed by "certain consequential appointments," saw no major changes in the leaders of the fighting branches but it was a general strengthening of Churchill's team in the overall war-making machine.

Viscount Cranborne, whom Beaverbrook succeeded as lord privy seal, was named secretary of state for dominion affairs, the announcement said, adding that he would retain his post as leader of the House of Lords.

The announcement said that Maj. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor Party, who has been secretary of state for dominion affairs, will continue as deputy prime minister and assume the office of lord president of the council, a post formerly held by Anderson.

As chancellor of the exchequer, Anderson will be a member of the war cabinet, the announcement said. The late Sir Kingsley had not been a member of that group.

Law, the new minister of state, who has been serving as under secretary of state for the foreign office, will assist the secretary of state for foreign affairs, Anthony Eden.

R. G. Casey, who has been serving as minister of state, now becomes minister of state "resident in the Middle East," the announcement said.

Navy Is Given Full Rule Over Plant Guards

Seniority privileges of plant guards employed by the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, who have been sworn in as Coast Guard police, must bow to military discipline, the War Labor Board decided yesterday by unanimous vote in a major policy-making decision on the question.

The board ordered the company and the CIO United Automobile Workers to sign a separate collective bargaining contract containing the following provision:

"For the duration of the war, this agreement is in all respects subjects to the provisions of the directives of the Navy Department concernning Coast Guard police, and nothing contained in this agreement shall be construed in any way to interfere with the organization, training, and control by the Navy Department of the company guard force as a part of the Coast Guard police, nor to abrogate or interfere with the duties, responsibilities and rights imposed by the Navy Department upon any employe in such Coast Guard police."

Other Plants Affected

A WLB spokesman stated that Brewster plants at Johnsville, Pa., Long Island City, N. Y., and Newark, N. J., were covered by the decision.

Under the decision, the guards would be permitted to maintain their union membership and negotiate bargaining contracts with Brewster. Last month, a strike occurred at the Johnsville plant in protest against the Coast Guard's arrest of several plant guards who had refused to take posts assigned by a naval officer on the ground that the assignment violated their seniority privilege of choosing more desirable posts.

In announcing the decision, WLB Chairman William H. Davis said, "We expect, of course, that the Navy will give due regard to general rights under the contract wherever possible."

The board continued the existing union shop provision, but placed the union on probation for six months by providing for review of this provision at the end of the period.

Union Gives Promise

Moses Shapiro of the board's staff was given authority to supervise the application of the board's order and to make rulings in the name of the board "where necessary, in his judgment, to meet the critical needs of war production."

Davis said the union had been "irrseponsible," but had promised to "mend its ways." He commented that management also was on probation during the next six months and would be watched closely by the board.

Meanwhile, the company announced the appointment of Henry B. Morton of the West Coast staff of the Kaiser interests to supervise labor relations. Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser recently assumed the post of chairman of the board of the concern at the request of the Navy Department to improve management.

La Follette May Go To 3-Way Parley

committee because as a pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist with great Senate influence his support may be greatly needed when peace treaties come before the Senate to be ratified.

Neither La Follette nor his secretary could be reached for comment yesterday. The Wisconsin Progressive had not been on the floor for some time, following an attack of influenza.

In any case confirmation is not expected until after the forthcoming conference has been held.

Connally issued a formal statement yesterday confirming Post reports that despite passage of the Fulbright resolution by the House the Senate would await results of conferences abroad before committing itself to any postwar peace declaration. He made no mention of the possibility of representation at the conferences.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and of the subcommittee on postwar resolutions, asserted yesterday that the committee should have representation at the proposed tripartite conferences.

Thomas said he had no information about current rumors that such an invitation has been extended but said that he had urged that the Foreign Relations Committee be included in such conferences for a long time.

"I have always pointed out," Thomas said, "that it is logical that the Senate, which has the last word about our foreign relations, should be in at the beginning of any discussion of them."

The scholarly Utah Senator declared that it was "not a good theory of government" for the executive branch of government to negotiate all treaties without consulting the legislative branch on the assumption that only the duty of ratification belongs to the Senate.

"We have only one Government," he said, "not a government by the executive once in a while, the Cabinet once in a while, and the legislative branch once in a while."

Informed sources yesterday said that high ranking representatives of other Allied Nations had urged that the Senate have a representative on hand at tripartite conferences, bearing in mind that the Senate, by the Constitution, will have to ratify any treaty by a two-thirds vote.

By this means nations interested in having negotiations made by the executive branch ratified by this country hope to avoid a repetition of the League of Nations rejection by the Senate.

Hull to acquiesce to their choice. Finally, it was understood, Hull bowed to this pressure and unless plans are changed in the next few days, Douglas is slated to be nominated.

The close understanding of minds between Douglas and Harriman was reported to be the determining factor in his recommendation for the job being vacated by Welles. Harriman took Douglas to London on January 26 of last year to serve as his chief aide as lend-lease expediter for the President.

Only a month later, he sent him to Washington to take the job as deputy administrator of the War Shipping Administration.

Douglas was a member of the House from Arizona from 1927 to 1933, when he resigned to become Mr. Roosevelt's first director of the budget.

By August 31, 1934, he had split so deeply with the President over fiscal policies that he resigned and went back to private business.

'Strip Nips,' Yanks Shout at Japs Who Surrender

Pittsburg, Calif., Sept. 24 (AP).—A Japanese soldier who wants to surrender to United States troops in the Pacific must first take off all his clothing and advance in the nude, says Pvt. Albert S. Vedovelli, a veteran of Guadalcanal.

Vedovelli, under treatment for shrapnel wounds, explained why. "United States soldiers have been fooled by treacherous Japs who feign surrender and then blow themselves and their captors to bits with hidden hand grenades."

Apartment Quest May Lead Back To Indiana Home

"Back Home Again in Indiana" may possibly mean more to A. J. Moore, chief of the machine and tool section of Lend-Lease in the Pentagon Building, than just a song. The reason: he can't find an apartment.

Inserting an advertisement in The Post, Moore wrote: "I must find an apartment or leave Washington. My wife threatens to move to Reno. I love my wife more than my boss and I'll pay $150 a month." His home is in Elkhart, Ind.

Army Cites 7 D. C. Officers For Services

Lieut. Col. Felix A. Todd, jr., who was killed in the crash of an Army transport plane June 30, is among five local men awarded the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct," the War Department has announced. In addition the bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit was presented to Col. August C. Hahn, 6323 Luzon ave. nw.

Presented with awards were Brig. Gen. Fred W. Llewellyn, 5504 McKinley st., Bethesda; Col. Lester Hill, jr., 3051 Idaho ave. nw.; Col. Henry C. Clark, 3940 McKinley st. nw.; Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Greuther, 2745 29th st. nw., and Master Sergt. Richard F. Doolan, 7436 Georgia ave. nw.

Set Up New System

Lieut. Col. Todd, whose widow, Mrs. Elizabeth N. Todd, lives at 212 Granville dr., Silver Spring, was instrumental in organizing and executing the system of instruction in the Infantry Officer Candidate School which was used as an example by other service schools, the announcement said.

Brigadier General Llewellyn, Colonel Hill and Colonel Clark, who are being returned to an inactive status September 30, were cited for meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services for the Office of the Judge Advocate General. General Llewellyn was cited for his achievements when as assistant to the Judge Advocate General he supervised the division of military affairs, reservations, contracts, claims, patents, war plans and litigation. Colonel Hill was commended for his work as chairman of the board of review and Colonel Clark for his revision of statutes and Army Regulations for the settlement of domestic claims and the procurement of legislation for the disposition of foreign claims.

Colonel Hahn received his Oak Leaf Cluster for the performance of outstanding service in the Army postal division.

Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, now serving as chief of staff for the Fifth United States Army now invading Italy, was awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding service as Chief of Staff of the Third Army. The 44-year-old major general, the youngest in the Army, holds the Distinguished Service Cross for plans made in launching the North African campaign. His wife, Mrs. Gruenther, lives at 2745 29th st. nw., and two sons, Donald and Dick, are attending West Point.

Sergt. Doolan, 37, was employed by the Judge Advocate General's Office in a civilian capacity as head of the information section previous to enlisting in the Army. Now stationed in the Northwest Service Command, he was cited for outstanding service in setting up the files and records of the Adjutant General's Office in that area.

Gen. Hunter Will Head 1st Air Force

Brig. Gen. Frank O'Driscoll Hunter, until two weeks ago commanding general of the Eighth Fighter Command in the African and European theaters, has been put in command of the First Air Force, which maintains the air defense of the entire Eastern seaboard, including Washington.

HUNTER

Under his jurisdiction is the Camp Springs Army Airfield, in nearby Maryland, from which fighter planes would defend the Capital in case of enemy air attack.

The fighting "ace," whose spectacular flying in the last war and this one has won him numerous citations, is the first United States air commander to have put the hard-hitting P-47 Thunderbolt into action against the enemy.

The 49-year-old bachelor has been a fighter pilot all the 26 years of his Army life. During the first World War, eight enemy aircraft were officially chalked up to his credit, and his decorations for this and other exploits included the Distinguished Service Cross, the French Croix de Guerre with palm, and four oak leaf clusters to add to his D. S. C. for distinguished heroism.

He was awarded the Silver Star this year for a bombing mission over Europe. His recent work of organizing, training and moving aircraft units to Africa while head of the Eighth Fighter Command is credited with helping give the Allies aerial superiority in the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns, and added to his list of decorations the Legion of Merit.

As commanding general of the First Air Force, General Hunter succeeds Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce, recently appointed commander of the United States Army Air Forces in the Middle East.

Byrnes Lauds War Agencies' Cooperation

War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes yesterday told a press conference, "Since I entered the executive department last October, I haven't felt as good as I do today because of the unusual and splendid cooperation of every one of the war agencies."

"I find it possible to get unity of action," he added.

Asked about complaints registered by the War Labor Board against a magazine article written by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes which criticized the board's handling of the coal wage dispute, Byrnes pointed out that magazine articles were not in the province of the Office of War Mobilization.

"Ask Elmer Davis about that one," he said.

When a reporter asked him if he had received a complaint from WLB on appeal from OWI, he replied:

"I have had so many appeals that I wouldn't want to mention any one of them—it might encourage more of them."

Asked to comment on the charge by Bernard M. Baruch, head of the World War I Industries Board, that inter-agency feuds were complicating solution of the Nation's manpower problem, Byrnes said, "I find the agencies cooperating daily."

Committee Approves Maternity Measure

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved yesterday without change a bill appropriating $18,620,000, for aid to servicemen's wives who become mothers. The bill passed the House unanimously two days ago.

Higher Price Parity Granted Four Crops in OPA Action

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Two groups of farmers yesterday received special above-parity price ceilings from the Office of Price Administration because bad weather has reduced their crops and they are paying increased wages for less-efficient labor.

They were growers of legume and grass seeds and producers of natural oils from spearmint and peppermint.

OPA said neither increase would affect the cost of living, but observers wondered whether the new philosophy would extend to other farmers beset by similar problems. Nearly all 1943 fruit crops were badly damaged by early frosts. The onion crop was hit severely by weather and dairy farmers in drought areas are in a feed shortage and high-cost-of-labor predicament that has almost every Congressman worried.

One theory advanced was OPA will let the prices of many minor farm commodities go up while sitting tight on ceilings measured monthly in the cost-of-living index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, hoping subsidies can be applied to keep the producers of basic foods in business.

Specifically, OPA's justification for pricing 100 pounds of alfalfa seed at $35, producer levels, when parity is around $20, were given as:

1. Smaller crops now available.
2. Rapid decrease of surplus stock carried over from previous years and heavy Lend-Lease purchases of our Allies.
3. Need for stockpile accumulations for postwar rehabilitation use.
4. Domestic demand pronouncedly increased by wartime emergencies.
5. Unfavorable climatic conditions last winter which did much to injure alfalfa and clover seed crops.

Even more complete was the "justification" for high increases in the prices of peppermint and spearmint oil, used primarily in the manufacture of chewing gum, but now in demand as a replacement for menthol in pharmaceutical products. Pointing out the prices are "more than double what might be regarded as natural prices," OPA said growers had their yields cut by continuous and excessive rains, were plagued by a great increase of weeds, had to get their labor in competition with war plants, and had to use a "quality of labor much lower than normal." Fertilizer, fuel, and fertilizer costs also have increased for these growers, it was declared.

*Meantime, Edward R. Stettinius, jr., Lend-Lease administrator, issued a statement saying lend-lease continues to take a relatively small proportion of the Nation's food supply and during the first seven months of this year had reduced its shipments of milk and cheese to 2.5 per cent and 9.3 per cent of the total supply, respectively.

Jams, Jellies, Fruits, Preserves to Cost More

Jams, jellies, fruits and preserves will cost consumers three or four cents more a pound jar, the Office of Price Administration estimated yesterday, under new regulations.

It said it had allowed price increases at the packer level to offset increased costs recognized by the War Food Administration.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter written to his sister, Mrs. Gordon Lange of Swarthmore, Pa., congratulating her on the birth of her boy. Looking 20 years ahead to the time that boy will be grown, Pearson discloses his postwar philosophy.)

MY DEAR SISTER:

Congratulations on the most glorious achievement of life! I would give all my books and all the columns I have ever written to be in your husband's shoes right now.

When I look around at the political bickerings of Washington and the way personal jealousies are put ahead of the war, I realize all the more how great is your achievement and how great is the sacrifice and achievement of all the other American women, who are really bearing the chief burden of the war.

You women give birth to children, you watch over them, you cherish and guard them from sickness and accidents, you carefully educate them. And then after 20 years, you send them off to war.

I remember how Mother felt about your two brothers in the last war. She never knew, I think, that twice I tried to enlist in the Navy before I finally got into the Army. She was hoping all the time that the war would end, and I very foolishly was hoping that it wouldn't.

Youthful Zeal

When it did end, you may possibly remember coming down to the dock in New York to see me off to Serbia. You were only six years old then and probably wouldn't remember the ambition that flamed in my young and enthusiastic breast to help carry out the Woodrow Wilson pledge of "Making the World Safe for Democracy."

During the immediate years of relief work that followed, I found that the real people of Europe were willing enough. They were eager, anxious, but helpless, waiting to be led. They craved permanent peace as nothing else.

I shall never forget those Balkan nights around the campfire high up in the Serbian mountains when our Bulgar prisoners and their Serb guards and our Albanian mule drivers (conscripted against their will into the Serbian army) used to talk about the futility of war and how they might attain permanent peace.

I can still remember their constant reiteration, "Natcha Vilson taku," which meant, referring to war: "Wilson would not have it so."

In the end, we let them down.

Peace Odyssey

You may or may not remember also the subsequent years I spent roaming the world as a newspaperman. My secret ambition, though only mother and father knew it, was to be a diplomat. Incurable optimist, I still cherished that ambition to help in a small way to bring peace to the world. But I didn't have enough money to be a diplomat, and started out to study foreign affairs as a newspaperman. I roamed through China, Siberia, Australia and Japan. Unfortunately the more I saw of diplomats, the more I wanted to be a newspaperman.

Still grasping for that elusive hope that the dying embers of peace could be gathered into healthy flame, I went with Frank B. Kellogg to sign his permanent peace treaty in Paris. I still have the watch that Kellogg carried on that trip. His watch broke and I loaned him mine. The watch I gave him was, in a way, like his treaty. It was not a very good watch, but it was the best Kellogg could get under the circumstances. Likewise his treaty.

He was carving out history. He dared do what European leaders at first jeered him for. Henry L. Stimson, who followed him, also dared take unprecedented steps to head off war in Asia. Both Kellogg and Stimson were ahead of their time. They will go down in history as great men.

Will Be Too Late?

TODAY I fear that there are not many among our Allied diplomatic leaders who dare march out in front. They are waiting for the public to push from behind. We face the most difficult job of our lives after this war is over, yet we are marking time. If we mark time to long, it will be too late.

At night I come out to the farm where it is clean and wholesome and my neighbors have more important things to do than political throat-cutting. And sometimes I wonder why I don't stay out here all the time and just write books or innocuous fiction that wouldn't make people mad and would not get involved in public debates.

Some people think I enjoy getting mixed up in all this turmoil and being called names by the White House. But I don't. And I am glad Mother is not here now because she so worshipped the President that she would almost have a hard time choosing between him and her son, and would be most unhappy.

Call of Battle

OF COURSE, a lot of people would give loud cheers if I retired from the political arena. But it seems to me that if I stayed on in the comparative ease and quiet of the farm at a time like this, I should be just as guilty of desertion as a soldier at the front.

Maybe I take myself too seriously. Maybe under all the alleged cynicism, I am just a boy scout after all. But I still cherish that old ideal that I had when you and Mother and Ellen came down to the dock in New York to say goodby to an enthusiastic youth, sailing off to the backdoor of Europe, thinking he could contribute one small bit to carrying out Woodrow Wilson's ideal of a war to end war.

So for better or for worse, I shall keep on battling. And this time I still hope that Julie and Jonathan and my children and your newest born will not be marching off to war all over again—20 years from now. Perhaps this time we can really make it.

This started out to be a letter of congratulations on the most glorious event that can happen to anyone. It has turned into a sermon and a confession. Please forgive me.

Your brother,
DREW.

Storks Spurn Nazis, Stay in Africa

Boston, Sept. 24 (AP).—The stork, a bird not hitherto noted for its discrimination, has finally become fed up with the Nazis.

According to Arthur J. Orner, congregational educational missionary under the American Board of Foreign Missions in Mount Silinda, Rhodesia, South Africa, these legendary baby taxis have staged a strike and refused to return to their usual nesting places in Germany.

Orner explained that they usually migrate to South Africa for the winter, returning home for the nesting season. This year, he said, they stayed in South Africa.

We've read letters . . . we've asked our friends . . . and by now we know pretty well what our boys are asking for. Many of them are things you might overlook because they sound so trivial. But you can get a lot of little things for him now . . . without any traipsing about from one department to another. We bring you a choice of 8 Gift Packages, any one of them a prize for the boy in service. Every item has been selected with care, first for service regulations, and second, for durability. For instance, only hard-milled soaps, real leather wallets, sturdy nylon ties and such have been chosen. Pick the one that suits his taste best, then come down to The Hecht Co.'s Service Men's Canteen—Street Floor—F Street Building.

And remember, the package is already wrapped . . . ready for you to mail. Ask for a copy of official mailing instructions at the Service Men's Canteen.

It'll cost you an extra $100 Bond to look him in the eye !

He's an American soldier.

Some day, if God is with him, he'll come home.

And when he does, you'll get the biggest thrill of your life if you can look him squarely in the eye and say, "I couldn't help you fight—but I did everything in my power to help you win!"

There's only one way you can say that . . . honestly say it. And that is to help him win now . . . when he needs all the help you can give him.

Today's particular job for you is to scrape together every dollar you can—and buy an extra $100 worth of War Bonds! That's your job in the 3rd War Loan!

It's not enough to buy your regular amount of Bonds. It has to be more. It has to be an extra buy—a little more pressure for the shoulder that's against the wheel.

Remember this—you aren't giving your money. You're lending it to the government for a while. And you're making the best investment in the world.

To Senator Holman

The most hopeful development that has come out of the Gallinger Hospital investigation to date, we think, is Senator Holman's remark that he plans to confer with a group of "responsible and intelligent residents of the District to find out if they are satisfied with the present form of government in the city." There is no doubt in our minds as to what he will find. Indeed, a widespread feeling of dissatisfaction with the District's political setup in general is evident to anyone who mingles in civic circles here.

That dissatisfaction does not spring from the shortcomings of any one official or any group of officials. Most of our local officials are trying to give the District the best sort of government that can be had under the circumstances. The public knows that they are victims of an obsolete system which seems to make them responsible for conditions that are not fully under their control. If the Health Department is lax in enforcement of sanitary regulations or the maintenance of high standards at Gallinger Hospital, the public knows that its appeals for funds have been repeatedly ignored. If the Commissioners appear to have followed the course of least resistance, we remember that they do not really govern the city and they are seemingly responsible to no one. The real power of governing the District is still exercised by Congress, and when neglect of that power results in appalling abuses Congress can be excused on the ground that it is too busy with national and international problems to give detailed attention to local institutions in the District of Columbia. How could any group of citizens with American blood in their veins possibly be satisfied with such a system of government?

Senator Holman has put his finger on the key to the whole disgusting muddle that passes for government in this disfranchised community. The real question is not what sort of answer he will get to his query. Rather it is what he will do about it when the dissatisfaction of the people with the present setup is made manifest. Many Senators and Representatives have discovered the growing resentment of District people over their misgovernment. But no one has as yet made it his business to attack the problem at its base. If the Senator is ready to do that, he will write his name large in the history of this sadly mismanaged city.

P. S. For Posterity

Posterity is likely to think of twentieth century man as a most unstable creature. It was only five years ago, at the opening of the World's Fair, that a group of scientists and scholars solemnly recorded their observations on the meaning of our time and buried them in a time capsule for the edification of those who might care to peruse them 5000 years in the future. Already, however, some of the recorders have become fidgety about what they said. Anxious to avoid any misunderstanding on the part of anthropologists in the year 6938, they have added postscripts to their original remarks. The effect, we fear, will be to perplex rather than to enlighten whatever sentient beings may succeed us on this planet in the far future.

The codicil fashioned by that eminent physicist, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, may prove especially confusing. Five years ago Dr. Millikan warned seventieth century Americans of the menace of despotism to representative government. He was thinking then of foreign dictatorships and their military aggression. Now, however, he feels impelled to caution against the danger from within. He describes this as "the second, or internal, threat arising from too great centralization of power in Washington and the internal corruption that it inevitably breeds, followed as in all Axis countries and some non-Axis ones by the replacement by a party government indistinguished from despotism." Dr. Millikan's postscript contains a frank appeal to posterity. "It is devoutly to be hoped," it says, "that the American voter has read the lessons of history better than have some college professors who have been recent administrative advisers."

Can it be that Dr. Millikan expects the New Deal to be campaigning for its 1251st term in 6938? If not, this counsel from the distant past may gravely disappoint our descendants who will be grappling at that time, perhaps, with the problem of whether or not to form a universal alliance with the people of Mars and Saturn. It is barely possible, of course, that Dr. Millikan is merely using the future as a sounding board for some political advice to his contemporaries. Should the practice persist, the time capsule is liable to prove extremely tedious when its contents are at last noted by those to whom they have been addressed.

International Relief

Creation of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration represents an achievement of the first importance. The four major nations fighting side by side in this war have set up for the first time machinery through which they can work together for the accomplishment of a specific wartime and postwar objective. That fact probably outweighs even the great significance of this new agency as a means of rescuing the people of war-torn areas from starvation, disease, and demoralization after the enemy has been expelled.

We must recognize, of course, that the UNRRA is at present merely a skeleton. It has yet to be staffed with competent men and women representing the nations that wish to share its work. It has yet to acquire administrative funds, equipment, and the wherewithal to feed and supply the victims of that devastation which the Nazis are leaving behind them as they retreat. But it may be taken for granted that the "big four" among the United Nations have negotiated this agreement in good faith and that they will support the UNRRA with something more tangible than good intentions.

There is ample evidence that this international relief agency has been set up with a good deal of care. Active direction of its work will be left to a central committee on which the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China will be represented. Basic policies to be followed will be worked out by a much larger group consisting of a representative from each of the United Nations which decides to participate. But the big four will definitely retain the power of initiative, and the success of the venture is likely to depend in very large measure upon the degree of harmony with which they work toward a common aim.

Central direction of relief and rehabilitation work growing out of the war will be attained through a director general. It is a reasonable guess that this assignment will go to former Governor Lehman. If so, his executive ability and experience as director of our own Office of Relief and Rehabilitation will doubtless speed the work of setting up the new agency and getting its life-saving activities started under favorable auspices. Not only will the director general be charged with the duty of administering relief with dispatch and efficiency. It will also fall to his lot to solicit funds and supplies from the participating governments. Each country will, of course, decide for itself the extent and kind of its contribution to this great cause. But the director general will have to make the requirements of the new UNRRA known and perhaps actively solicit the needed resources from the interested governments. This task alone will make him the key man in the undertaking.

Heavy responsibility will also fall upon the committee on supplies which will recommend to the council policies through which food, clothing and medical aid can be obtained for victims of the war. The United States must expect to provide a large share of the necessary supplies. Yet it is utterly impossible for this country to grow all the food that will be needed to prevent widespread starvation in Europe and Asia, considering our present shortage of manpower. International efforts in the widest sense of that term will have to be exerted.

We have been inexcusably slow in promoting the expansion of agricultural resources in countries free from the ravages of war. The chief reason for this delay, according to the recent food report to Secretary Wickard, is bickering among the overlapping agencies that are working in this field. Now apparently the committee on supplies will take direct responsibility for the encouragement of larger food crops where land, equipment and manpower can be had. But it will need an enormous amount of technical assistance. That seems to imply a prompt necessity for reorganization of the units that are now competing among themselves for direction of United States aid to our food-producing neighbors.

When all the hard work ahead is fully recognized, the effect is to magnify the importance of this undertaking that the nations fighting Hitler have launched. At least the groundwork has been laid for a program that should go a long way toward saving the world from the distress and demoralization that overtook it after the last war. And it is not impossible that this pattern may point the way toward international collaboration in many other spheres.

Legion Hooks Fish

In dealing with Congressman Hamilton Fish, the American Legion convention passed a resolution which refreshingly termed a spade a spade. The Legionnaires recalled some exceedingly unsavory activities of Mr. Fish's past which this newspaper was largely instrumental in exposing to the public view just about two years ago. These activities involved aid to Nazi propagandists and native Fascists—involved the use of the Congressman's official position and of his franking privilege "to disseminate," as the Legion resolution temperately phrased it, "propaganda inimical to the United States."

It is altogether healthy to have these disagreeable memories revived. Hamilton Fish is still a member of Congress. It will not be amiss if we evaluate his present conduct in the light of his past. Apparently he has undergone little change of heart or of mind. For as recently as last April, according to the Legion resolution, a Nazi sympathizer named C. Leon De Aryan, now under Federal indictment for sedition, was using Mr. Fish's frank.

The law governing the use of free-mailing privileges by members of Congress is evidently still not being enforced. Section 335 of the United States Code provides that "It shall be unlawful for any person entitled under the law to the use of a frank to lend said frank or permit its use by any committee, organization, or association, or permit its use by any person for the benefit or use of any such committee, organization, or association . . ." The Legion resolution calls upon the Attorney General "to forever put to an end the misuse of the franking privilege by members of Congress."

After polishing off Mr. Fish in admirable fashion, the Legion went on to proclaim its faith in the type of international cooperation which Mr. Fish has fought so hard to destroy. The Legionnaires believe that the United States can best protect its national interests "by participation in the establishment and maintenance of an association of free and sovereign nations, implemented with whatever force may be necessary to maintain world peace and prevent a recurrence of war." They do not pretend to know precisely what type of organization will be necessary to keep the peace. That question can be decided only when the war is over. But the Legion, like hundreds of other American organizations, is determined to use its influence for joint action with our allies to preserve the security we are now winning at such a terrific cost in lives and human toil. That action quite properly followed the denunciation of Congressman Fish, for it indicates that Fishism is dead, even though the Congressman is still in a position to lend his frank to propagandists of the Nazi stripe.

Up To The WLB

Having turned down one contract negotiated by the United Mine Workers with the Illinois Coal Operators Association, the WLB is now asked to approve a revised agreement designed to meet the objections raised to the earlier proposal. There appears to be a much better chance that the WLB will approve the present plan, even though it would give the miners the $2 per day increase for which John L. Lewis has been fighting so fiercely and destructively.

Part of that increase would be pay for working longer hours—an increase to which no possible objection could be raised. But—and here is the rub—under the agreement, workers would be paid for all the time spent underground. In other words, the miners would get portal-to-portal pay, paid for at the same rate as the time spent in actually mining coal. When the WLB rejected the earlier portal-to-portal-pay plan, it did so on the ground that it was merely a concealed way of granting a wage increase and circumventing the wage-stabilization policy of the Government. Particular objection was raised to the method followed in providing a fixed daily allowance to cover portal-to-portal pay. Obviously, a bona fide system of paying for time spent in underground travel would vary from miner to miner.

The emphasis put upon the unsuitable character of the method originally adopted, as well as subsequent remarks of Chairman Davis of the WLB, suggest that the board might be willing to accept the revised portal-to-portal-pay plan as not in conflict with its wage-rate stabilization policy. In the end, of course, these distinctions between the technically right and wrong method of procedure bring much the same result: an increase in mine wages.

Although there would be no change in basic hourly rates of pay, miners would, under the proposed agreement, actually receive more pay than formerly for each hour actually spent in coal mining. For under the lengthened working week of 42½ hours they are entitled to time-and-a-half pay for the hours in excess of 40 per week. And those 42½ hours include travel time not previously paid for. In terms of earnings, the agreement would give the miners an increase of about $12.50 per week for a six-day week (including minor benefits previously approved by the WLB), raising total weekly earnings to $56.50.

Approval of this agreement would undoubtedly mean that it would become a pattern for the industry in general. For some older mines the portal-to-portal-pay requirement would constitute a disproportionately heavy addition to labor costs that might cause shutdowns and aggravate coal shortages. On the other hand, coal-mine production has been seriously hampered by the shift of miners to better-paid jobs and by the growing demoralization of those miners who remain on the job. Maybe the only practical solution of the industry's troubles lies in acceptance of the Lewis contract, with an accompanying rise in coal prices to cover the cost of concessions. Apparently the "face-saving" devices incorporated in the agreement would permit the WLB to approve the contract without laying itself open to charges of inconsistency.

CRAB APPLE TREE AFTER FROST

Wild plum and hawthorn
Sweetened by the frost—
Black haw and grape, torn
From the wind and tossed

To the homing bird—
Sweet is the cold fruit
As the last song heard.
Now the frozen root

Breaks in the defeat
Of its last hour,
With the frozen, sweet—
Once bitter and sour.

Chile's Future

THE VISIT of Chile's Foreign Minister Fernandez to the United States and his conferences here with our political and economic policy-makers bring to the fore the serious problems that this important South American country faces today and in the postwar. It also means that the best efforts of both countries are being turned toward finding as good a solution for them as the realities of the world situation allow.

Every country in the world today is short on supplies and has or is threatened with inflation. Among Latin-American nations, Chile's inflation problem is one of the most serious, due to three chief causes.

To begin with, Chilean copper and nitrate mines are running at full capacity to turn out war ores. More people have more money than at any time in Chile's recent history.

Second, Chile makes only a part of the things she uses. Supplies are very short.

Third, Chile's political parties have not been able to get together on inflation controls.

Chile's War Problem

Chile's war problem comes essentially from the same basic cause as her peacetime ills. She has to import too much of the goods she uses and depends too heavily on copper and nitrate exports. World demand for these exports fluctuates wildly. In the depression it fell almost to nothing. Chile's economy shrank more than that of any country in the world, since she can buy from the outside only when she can sell there. Today copper and nitrate are booming to the skies, but it is a foregone conclusion that demand will fall again.

How far it falls will depend on a number of factors. Nitrate lost world importance when a synthetic product was invented. Plastics now threaten copper.

The obvious way for Chile to get off her economic roller-coaster is to make more of her own goods. This would decrease her dependence on exports.

Chile realized this as she fought her way out of the depression. But to do this takes money. Chile had none. Mining profits had mostly gone to foreign owners. Capital had not accumulated in Chile.

Export-Import Loans

In the late 1930s our policy of making export-import loans to stimulate sale of our goods abroad gave Chile her chance. She formed a development company and got export-import credits to use in buying American machinery and services for a development program.

Industrialization was a first aim. This requires power first of all. Chile's coal is in her far south and is expensive to mine, but rivers from the Andes give her tremendous potentialities for hydroelectric power. So Chile started building six hydroelectric plants.

A second point on the program was low-cost housing. The destructive earthquake of 1940 made this a national necessity.

The third major development was in agriculture. Most of Chile's farming is confined to her central valley—her north is a desert, her south too wet. The government agency bought imported machinery in 1940 and '41 and sold it to farmers on long-term payments. Improved farming methods stepped up yields. But Chile's land resources are limited. Experts say much of her soil is overworked today.

Chile today has the money to carry on this program and she vitally needs new manufacturing and more food production. But machinery shortages stand in the way.

What Chile wants from us today is what everybody wants—more supplies. She has the same plea that Mexico and Brazil have—that she produces vital war ores. Chile wants to complete her water-power system, to enlarge her steel industry. She wants farm machinery so she can raise more beans and lentils for New World markets and Europe after the war. She wants to develop lumbering, fishing and vegetable canning.

Chileans have been struggling with their problem for a long time and they know that things will probably get worse before they get better. They are making their case now for machinery and supplies as soon as we can spare them.

The United States has made a special effort to help Chile all along. We sent equipment for their power projects long after Pearl Harbor. We have let them have the precious equipment needed to explore for oil in the far south. It is a foregone conclusion that a closer cooperation will grow out of Fernandez's visit here.

But things all over the world will be worse before they are better, and Chile, like ourselves and everybody else, may expect to have to make out with a great deal less than they need till the big job is done.

On The Dnieper

The Russian Offensive Rolls On

THROUGHOUT the grim summer of 1942 one phase that kept recurring in the Russian reports of the fighting in the Crimea, the Kuban, the Donets and Don Valleys and northern Caucasus was that the Red army units fighting to hold the onrushing Germans at bay were "outnumbered."

This expression was mystifying. It suggested, which few believed, that the Germans, with a continent to garrison and hold in subjection, had more men on the Eastern Front than the Russians.

True, Russia's losses in the 12 months' period following the German invasion had been staggering. But German losses in Russia had also been considerable.

There were some, therefore, who chose to regard the Russian insistence on the Red army's numerical inferiority to the enemy as primarily a propagandist device to force the Allies to open a second front in western Europe.

IT IS NOW CLEAR that the Russians were telling the literal truth when they insisted that their forces in the south were outnumbered by the enemy.

But they were outnumbered not because the over-all strength of the Red army was less than the over-all strength of the German invading force. They were outnumbered in the particular sectors. Having lost their main north-south communications west of Moscow, such as the railroad running from Rzhev south to Vyazma, Bryansk, Belgorod and Kharkov or the line from Orel south to the Sea of Azov, the Russians could not easily or quickly concentrate their forces at any one threatened point.

The Germans, on the other hand, were able to move large forces and vast quantities of materiel and supplies from any point in the central sector to any point in the south. This gave them an enormous advantage which they managed to exploit to a very great degree. Had they succeeded in taking Stalingrad and cutting Russia's Volga lifeline, Russia's plight would have been serious in the extreme. Fortunately, that did not happen and in their winter offensive of last year the Russians succeeded in retaking the whole of the line running south from Moscow to Voronezh to Rostov.

TODAY the situation on the Eastern Front is the reverse of what it was a year ago.

Today, it is not the Germans but the Russians who are astride the principal north-south communications east of the Dnieper. The Germans have, in fact, lost possession of all of those they once held, except for the line running from Zaporozhe to Melitopol to the Crimea and that line the Red army is now threatening to cut.

The result is that the Germans can no longer easily concentrate their forces at any point.

Their armies in the region south of Smolensk and east of the Dnieper have been cut up into separate fragments.

In every instance, these isolated units have the unpleasant choice of standing their ground and being cut to pieces or withdrawing to the left bank of the river barrier and thus relinquishing territory which, in many instances, has been in the hands of the invaders since the summer of 1941.

THE RED ARMY has already won victories of tremendous magnitude in the offensive which began last July. But a triumph greater than any it has yet achieved appears to be in the offing with nothing less than Smolensk, Kiev and the Crimea as the possible prize.

Already the Russian forces are within artillery range of Smolensk, the anchor of the entire German line on the Eastern Front and a city whose loss would not only enable the Red army to make it impossible for the Germans to entrench for the winter along the Dnieper, but would also, because of the Pripet Marshes, effectively cut off the German forces below Leningrad and the Baltic region from those in the south.

At the same time approaching Red units are within sight of the church domes of Kiev, have liberated the Kuban, including the vital Black Sea port of Novorossisk, have reached the Dnieper at some points and may soon take Zaporozhe.

IT IS NOT CLEAR whether the German retreat that began with the loss of Orel two and a half months ago has been orderly or not. Certainly it was no strategic retreat. And certainly it exceeds in scope the retreat which the German army on the Western Front began after the Allied offensive of August 8, 1918, and which led directly to the German surrender of November 11 of that year.

It will be recalled in this connection that as the German army was forced back in northern France and Flanders during the closing months of World War I, it systematically destroyed mines, factories and all other installations of military or economic importance.

But the wanton destructiveness of the Kaiser's troops is as nothing compared to the activities of Hitler's retreating armies. Everywhere they are leaving nothing but ruins behind. That is true in Russia. And Naples provides an additional example. With the war lost, the Nazis are already beginning to prepare for the next war by carrying out, as defeat looms closer, a policy of ruination designed to make the victors so weak that they will not be able to recover from it for a great many years.

By the same token we have every reason to expect that when the invasion of Germany herself is threatened the Germans will throw in the sponge and throw themselves on the mercy of those to whom, when they had the upper hand, they showed no mercy whatsoever.

Destructive Emotion

Mrs. Margaret Horvath's hysterical outburst: "I feel that men should go to war when mere babies are going," which was injected into the debate about the drafting of fathers before the Senate and House Military Committees, has made the front page. It will, I fear, do more than create a disturbance and confuse the issue under debate, it may also serve to demoralize those citizens who suffer from a sense of personal persecution wher called upon to make ultimate sacrifices for the war.

No one will disagree with Mrs. Horvath that it is profoundly tragic that the greatest burden of the fighting should be shouldered by young men and boys who have only just begun to "live." But even the most anguished mother would scarcely feel security for her "18-year-old baby" under the leadership of a general who made fighter pilots out of octogenarians or tank crews out of grandfathers. For this is the "reductio ad absurdum" of Mrs. Horvath's argument. It isn't right and it isn't fair that only the young men have to go, but it cannot be otherwise for, to put it very simply, they make the best fighters. War is always bitter, cruel, unfair and wasteful, but when the life of a nation is at stake the task of whipping the enemy effectively and efficiently must take precedence over personal considerations.

Intolerable Advertising

When the head of all our armed forces, while addressing the public in wartime, is cut off sharply at the end of 15 minutes for "previous commercial commitments," we think it time to ask a few questions. The office at WRC admits President Roosevelt would not be so treated. We consider cutting off General Marshall as great an error and insult and one they will regret. JULIA W. McGARVEY.

Union Dues

Every informed person knows that this war was made possible only by the folly of Woodrow Wilson's glaring mistakes of 1918. At that time we had the German army licked and were well on our way to Berlin. He called us off and the result was the present war.

Similarly labor (so-called) is gradually edging itself into a position of setting up a kingdom within our democracy. The time to stop any further encroachment is now. The insulting greed of making a volunteer soldier pay for the privilege of saving tomatoes for us is the danger signal. It is too brazen.

Considering Germany, Japan and the present gang of labor leaders I consider by far the most serious threat to our country, the labor leaders. ROBERT DAVIS.
Arlington, Va., Sept. 18.

A storm of protest, certainly uncritical if not prejudiced, has followed the announcement that soldiers working in a New Jersey canning factory have been required to pay half the regular union dues as a condition of their temporary employment in a closed-shop situation.

What about the "free enterprisers" who sell groceries and other commodities to uniformed soldiers and sailors, for which they demand regular market prices?

What union critics (including many union men, I fear) fail to appreciate is that the unions also have a commodity which they, as business enterprisers, have an equal right to market at a fair price. The union's commodity is the substantially higher wage rates which all employers are willing to pay because of the existence of the institution of unionism, which has been struggled and even died for during many years. The Difference

Dead on a steaming beachhead,
Face in the sodden sand—
Dead for the folks forgetful
Home in Light-Hearted Land.
("Get me a Series ticket!" . . .
"Who do ya think'll win?" . . .
"What do you like at Belmont?" . . .)
Hark to the playboys' din!

II

There by the battered barges
Rigid and prone and done;
Paying the last full measure
There in the tropic sun;
("What is a real hot girl-show?" . . .
"Where will we eat tonight?"
"Let's get a ringside table") . . .
God, do we hear aright!

III

Facing the foe as always,
Gun in his stiffened hand;
Joining the dead who save us
Back where the going's grand . . .
("Hurry! I got the double!" . . .
"Slip me a real good thing!" . . .
"I know a swell new night-club" . . .)
Is it of this I sing?

IV

Dead with a buddy near him,
Each like a rumpled sack;
There with our bravest youngsters
Fate is not sending back;
("Hey, do ya play gin-rummy?" . . .
"Waiter, a good thick steak!" . . .
"Where can we go this week-end?" . . .)
Cut it, for pity's sake!

V

Lad on the beach at daybreak,
Killed in the first attack,
Washed by the tide now ebbing,
Crumpled beside his pack . . .
("Gee, ain't these taxes orful?" . . .
"Look what I gotta pay:" . . .
"Cripes, how they take my money!" . . .)
Can it be this they say!

VI

Blood in a ghastly trickle,
Soiling the sands so white
There where a boy lies lifeless
After the slashing fight . . .
("How can I take more War Bonds? . . .
"Ain't I done all I can?" . . .
"Gee, but a guy's no gold-mine!" . . .)
Strange is the breed called man!

I felt odd when they chucked me in
That ambulance so tight
But had the feeling Adolf would Look after me all right.

I felt suspicious when I was Locked up in Rome anew—
But little voices whispered, "He Is looking after you!"

When dragged away to Ponza I
Began to think it queer,
But had a feeling that my friend

When rushed to Maddalena, well
Suspicions grew quite warm
But Schickelgruber would, I knew
Preserve me from all harm.

When farther off they switched me
I might well have felt quite grim
But thought, "That guy will save me
For this looks too bad for him!"

Canadian Rationing

Canada deserves our respectful attention in other than military matters. We who have Canadian summer homes admire the success of governmental handling of food and automobile problems. The key to this success is that citizens are trusted and are not hampered by thousands of vexatious regulations. Rationing includes fewer commodities and we find the quantities ample. Thanks to their ceiling-subsidy system and efficient distribution, in this village we have never lacked for butter (40c a pound), eggs (40c to 55c a dozen) and meat (roast beef, 40c a pound), certified Jersey milk costs me 9c the imperial quart; prices are in Canadian money, the dollar is 90c United States currency. Automobiles are restricted only by the weekly 3-gallon allowance and the 35-mile limit; the Sherbrooke Record reported that on one day of the Ayers Cliff Fair, at the head of Lake Massawippi, over 1000 cars checked in after 6 p. m.

Canada has her serious political problems, with very vocal isolationists, but on the economic side she sets us an admirable example.

Today And Tomorrow

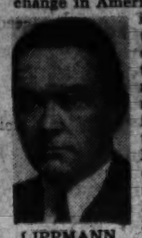
The Fulbright Resolution

THE HOUSE in adopting the Fulbright resolution has registered and has also declared the change in American public opinion wrought by the experience of war. To say that this action means little or nothing is to insinuate that the House of Representatives does not represent the people and that its members are insincere.



LIPPMANN

HOW MUCH the action means may be measured by a statement in Secretary Hull's introduction to the official record of our foreign policy in the ten years before Pearl Harbor. In these ten years we were helpless to prevent the great war, unable to prepare for it adequately, and subject to the awful risk of beginning to fight after all our allies—France, Britain, China, and Russia—were in the direst straits.

Mr. Hull tells us that this happened, though the President and the Secretary of State knew better and would have wished to act differently, because "our foreign policy during the decade . . . necessarily had to move within the framework of a gradual evolution of public opinion . . . away from the idea of isolation expressed in 'neutrality' legislation and toward realization that the Axis design was a plan of world conquest."

THE FULBRIGHT resolution means that from now on the President and his Secretary of State are instructed to move within the framework of a public opinion which recognizes that the security and the peace of the United States requires agreements with other nations. In seeking these agreements the President will now be doing what the people through their representatives have directed him to do.

It follows that as he brings specific agreements to Congress, the question will be whether the opposition is constructive, or is obstructive and destructive, whether it is trying to carry out the popular will, whether it is criticizing in order to improve or to destroy. This resolution does not relieve the Senate or the House of their duty to examine the particular measures. It is no blank check to the Executive. But it reasserts the historic right of the whole Congress to participate in foreign affairs, and it ends the distortion of the constitutional process by which a minority of one house can exert a final veto. It is notice to any such minority that the will of the majority, duly recorded in both houses, is to prevail.

THE SUBSTANCE of the Fulbright resolution is a pronouncement in favor of a foreign policy which is neither isolationist nor conducted on the theory of the balance of power, but rests upon the concentration under rules of law and morals of the power of the great nations capable of guaranteeing peace. The principle at the bottom of it is clearly explained in the introduction to Mr. Raymond Gram Swing's new book which he calls "Preview of History". I do not know of any better short definition of the problem of peace, and of the central principle which the Fulbright resolution expresses, and the great body of informed opinion now supports.

There are, as Mr. Swing points out, three main forms of foreign policy. One is isolation, each State acting alone, which leads to anarchy and aggression. The second is the ancient principle of maintaining peace for a time at least by keeping the power of one state in check by balancing it with the power of other states. The third principle is to concentrate power by agreement of the great states which desire peace.

WE HAVE the essentials of such an agreement today with Britain and we are now seeking to reach it with Russia. We must persevere until we do reach it. For on that agreement will hang the issue of peace or war for the coming generation. But just because so much is at stake, we must be careful not to become over-anxious and even hysterical because the task of reaching agreement is complicated and long. A perfunctory agreement made up out of high sounding generalities would not be too difficult to get. But we need something much better than that, and it is better to be thorough, though it takes longer and seems slow, than to be impatient and superficial.

The making of a substantial agreement which will stand the test of time is not easy between two great powers like Russia and the United States. Each in its own way is just emerging from a long isolation. We speak different languages. We feel and think differently about so many fundamentals of our lives. Rome was not built in a day, and the peace of the world will not be built in one or two conferences by visiting statesmen. It will be built by the patient elucidation of our common interest in security, and an indefatigable search for the common ground when we differ.

LET US not then become hypochondriacs and take our temperatures every day to see whether in our relations with Russia we are sick or well. We are allied with Russia in this great war. We will live in the same world with Russia after the war is won. And the conviction that we have to find the ways of living comfortably, and of working together on the great issues, is much more important than the little episodes of which we tend continually to exaggerate the significance.

Board Urges Freight Rate Equalization

Congressional action to put the markets of the South and West on a freight-rate basis equal with the rest of the country was recommended yesterday by a board of investigation and research created by the 1940 Transportation Act.

The board concluded its analysis of freight-rate differences, which have for years been criticized in the South and West, with the observation:

"These differences are not justified by costs or other transportation conditions. Equality of rate levels, particularly the rate on manufactured articles, would create conditions more favorable than have existed in the past for the development of particular industries in the South and West, since present rate disadvantages would be removed."

Average first-class rate levels in the South are 39 per cent higher than in the East, the report said, and in the West they are 28 to 34 per cent higher.

"It should be recognized," it said, "that high rates within the South and West on manufactured articles, coupled with high interterritorial rates, although tending to discourage manufacture in the South and West for official (Eastern) territory markets would naturally encourage the development of local industries in the South and West for local markets. . . . A proper settlement of the interterritorial freight rate problem from a national standpoint should not depend upon considerations of sectional gains or losses that might result from the removal of existing differences in the rates."

Taking out rate-level differences, the report said, "would permit manufactured products from the South and West to move more freely into Eastern territory markets. Unless rates were equalized on the highest regional levels it would also permit products of Eastern manufacture to move more easily into Southern and Western markets.

"The net result would be the creation of a situation in which each part of the country could develop the particular lines of manufacturing for which its resources were best fitted."

When transportation conditions do not justify differences in rate levels, the report continued, "producers in the higher-rated areas who are trying to compete with those in lower-rated areas have a valid complaint against the rate structure.

"They are entitled to relief even if there are other factors affecting their costs of production which are more favorable than those of their competitors in the lower-rated territory, since rates should not be made to offset natural advantages of location."

The board suggested that it would be simpler for the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) to revise the entire rate structure if it had a mandate from Congress "to bring about uniformity to the extent that it is practicable."

One of the three board members, Nelson Lee Smith of New Hampshire, did not concur with the others, Robert E. Webb of Kentucky and C. E. Childe of Nebraska, in the recommendation for congressional action.

Shield Of The Republic

China And The United States

Manifestly the peace of the Pacific has turned and will turn upon China. All the international wars of the Pacific, including the present one, have turned upon China, and the future of China will determine the future in the whole great basin of the Pacific.

The one certain thing which can be said of the future in the Pacific is that there is no prospect of a settled and stabilized international order. In the West it may be difficult to achieve general security. But at least there is visible the shape of things that could be made to come to pass. There is the Atlantic Community organized for its security. There is Germany stopped from attempting to break up the Atlantic Community or to conquer Russia, and thus constrained to become eventually a nonaggressive state. There is the neutralized borderland. There is Russia strong and safe within its natural and accepted western limits. A settled order of this character is a practical possibility if the statesmen and their peoples can rise to the occasion and take advantage of the fact that the vital interest of all the states concerned is to find security in a stabilized order.

But in the East the whole situation is dynamic, set for epoch-making change of which we cannot foresee the limits. For the objective of the Pacific war, and its most probable consequence, is the emergence of China as a new great power. The emergence of any new great power upon the stage of history must of necessity affect the whole course of history. For how can we calculate the course of a great power which has never existed but is about to appear? All that we know is that with independence, unity, and the industrialization of their country, the vast numbers of the Chinese nation should in the course of time, organize themselves as a great power.

The United States has since 1899 been committed to fostering this development. As soon as we became a power in the Far East by occupying the Philippines, our Government committed itself to opposing the dismemberment of China into spheres of imperialist influence. With some temporary deviations and lapses, the United States adhered to this policy, and became engaged in the present war because it would not renounce the policy.

For the issue which precipitated the Japanese-American war in 1941 was the refusal of the United States to give Japan a free hand in the conquest of China. The Japanese proposal of November 20, 1941, for a general settlement in the Pacific was rejected by our Government on November 26 because Japan demanded the discontinuance of American aid to China as the price of halting her armed advance in southeastern Asia and of withdrawing eventually from southern French Indo-China. The price of peace with Japan was our assent to the Japanese conquest of China.

On its face, as Peffer points out, it is almost inexplicable that "a people coming from Europe to the eastern shore of a fresh and uninhabited continent 3000 miles broad should find themselves in a few generations committed in the lives of their sons and their fortunes to the affairs of a country almost 6000 miles from the western shore of that continent, after consciously having resolved throughout their history to cut themselves off from the affairs of the continent from which they sprang. Yet with Asia, with which there was and could be no community of any kind, not the most tenuous link, there has been conscious, direct, willed concern. With Europe, no entanglement; with Asia, active participation in all its remote, exotic politics."

Mr. Peffer asks, "Why the contrast?" His answer is that the motive of American concern with Asia was, as stated by President Fillmore in 1849, "the consideration . . . of the great trade which must at no distant day be carried on between the western coast of North America and eastern Asia." But this does not explain why the United States was for so long so conscious of its trading interests in Asia and so unconscious of its security in relation to Europe. To explain that, we must again remind ourselves of Monroe's concert with Britain which for at least 75 years made it unnecessary for Americans to think about Europe. Our expansion across the Pacific to Asia was possible because of our security in the Atlantic.

Thus the United States became committed to the conviction that China should cease to be a colony dominated by foreign empires, and become an integrated and independent power—in fact a great military power. Victory in this war will fulfill that commitment at least to the point of giving China a chance to make herself a great power, and probably also to the point of our rendering China active assistance in making herself a great power.

In eastern Asia there will then be Russia, our nearest neighbor, and China, for whom we have waged a great war to insure her the chance to become the great power which her numbers, her resources and her ancient culture make possible. We cannot see further than that now. For China, Russia in Siberia, and North America as it reaches toward Asia are all at the beginning of a new and historic phase of industrialization, and of the development of the newer forms of military power by sea and in the air.

Moreover, the emergence of China as a great power will change the whole order of power within which lie the Philippines, the Indies, Australasia, Malaya, and the immense and awakening subcontinent of India. We cannot know now what a great Chinese power in this region of the world portends, and we cannot afford to freeze our ideas about a situation which will only gradually unfold itself. All we can do is to act on the assumption that the conditions which for half a century have made the integrity and security of China a vital interest of the United States, will as China becomes a great power, make the security of the United States a vital interest to China.

We must realize, however, that the defeat of Japan will be the beginning, not the end, of profound historic changes in the Eastern world. The one end impossible to achieve is a stabilization now in the Chinese lands, in India, and in the Moslem countries.

If stabilization of at least half the world is impossible in our time, then it follows that only by participating in the organization of sufficient lawful power can we hope to hold the impending and unpredictable changes within peaceable channels.

House Group Ignores Rebuke By Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

Dismissing a presidential rebuke as "nonsense" and "absurd," a House Appropriations Subcommittee investigating the loyalty of Government employes served notice yesterday it intends to continue its work.

Chairman Kerr (Democrat) of North Carolina declared the group, which tangled with President Roosevelt over the dismissal of three Federal workers, would meet soon to take up its work where it left off last summer.

It was on recommendation of the Kerr Committee that the House voted to cut off the salaries of Dr. Goodwin Watson, William E. Dodd, jr., and Robert Morss Lovett unless the President submits their nomination to the Senate by November 15. Watson and Dodd are Federal Communications Commission employes, Lovett is Government secretary of the Virgin Islands. Their political and economic philosophies had been questioned by the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities.

President Roosevelt sent a message to Congress assailing the House action as an encroachment upon the executive and judicial branches. He said there were no findings of incompetence against the trio, pointed out that no impeachment proceedings had been instituted, and described the legislative action as similar to a bill of attainder (sentence without trial).

"That stuff about a bill of attainder is a lot of nonsense," said Kerr. "We fully heard every one of those men and every one so admitted."

Representative Keefe of Wisconsin, a Republican member of Kerr's committee, said the three men had assured the committee they felt they had received a "good, fair hearing."

"On the question of interference with judicial procedure raised by the President, I would point out that if they have any claims for court action, they can go into the courts," Keefe added. "We are not stopping them. And so far as impeachment against mere employes is concerned, it's an absurdity. These men do not hold Federal posts subject to impeachment."

Kerr did not say how many cases were pending before his committee, but Representative Dies (Democrat) of Texas said the names of many employes whose Americanism was subject to question had been given to Kerr's group.

The Gallup Poll

Swedes Vote Against Giving Refuge To Axis Leaders or Their Satellites

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 24.—The extent to which public sentiment in officially neutral Sweden leans toward the Anglo-American cause is indicated in the results of a survey just completed by the Swedish Institute of Public Opinion and received by cable here.

This shows that if Hitler and Mussolini are looking for a safe spot to spend their declining years, they would get a cold reception from the people of Sweden. For every Swede who thinks that the Fascist dictators should be granted refuge within the borders of Sweden, more than eight are against giving them the right of asylum.

The survey was begun shortly after President Roosevelt warned neutral countries of Allied disfavor if the neutrals should refuse to hand escaped Axis leaders over to the United Nations for punishment. This warning caused widespread comment and discussion in the Swedish press.

To a representative cross-section of the Swedish public in all walks of life and in all areas of Goetaland, Svealand, and Norrland, the Swedish Institute put this issue:

Should Sweden give persons holding power in belligerent occupied countries asylum if they seek refuge, or should such persons not be admitted to the country?

The vote is:

Would admit anyone	5%
Would admit some	61
Would admit none	17
Undecided	17

The total of those who would admit anyone and those who would admit only some is 66 per cent. This group was then asked to vote on a specific list of leaders. The most likely persons to seek refuge in Sweden would, of course, be Axis leaders and quislings, but for the sake of completeness, and to gauge the sentiment of the Swedish people, such men as Churchill and Roosevelt were included in the list.

The results, shown below, leave little doubt as to where the sympathies of the people lie:

	Adm.	Ref.	Undec.
Hitler and Mussolini	7%	59%
Quisling (Norway)	7	57	29%
Laval	10	42	14
Stalin	15	39	12
Mannerheim and Ryti	32	17	17
Roosevelt and Churchill	43	9	14

The above figures add to the 66 per cent of the population who would admit all or some.

It is interesting to note that many Swedes apparently feel sympathetic toward Mannerheim and Ryti, leaders of Finland engaged in fighting Russia. Many more would admit those two men than would admit Stalin—a possible reflection of Swedish fears concerning Russia's power as it impinges on the Scandinavian countries.

Chamber Head Urges Britain, U. S. to Unify Postwar Trade

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, stated tonight American and British businessmen should cooperate in developing a thriving world trade after the war.

He asserted one of the main keys for an enduring peace would be the elimination of mass unemployment. He added:

"The businessmen of the United States and Great Britain must combine their efforts and enterprise to develop backward areas of the world, to help the people of the world achieve a higher standard of living and to expand world markets. In this we must work with other industrial nations of the world . . ."

Johnston, in a radio address prepared for the NBC network, asserted that politically the United States and Great Britain should join in attempts to "establish stability" in the governments of the world, while economically they should work together in building up the "backward countries."

"Through the industrialization of these nations, purchasing power will be increased and markets developed," he said. "Better and better customers all over the world—that is the objective of the cooperation I should like to see between the United States and Great Britain.

"We have more capital than they. But they have investments throughout the world in need of new capital. Why not pool our assets and marry American capital to British investments? And in this intermingling should be included an intermingling of whatever capital may volunteer itself in the regions of new investments."

Higher Morals Asked Of Chinese Students

Chungking, Sept. 24 (AP).—Smoking, drinking and dancing were forbidden for Chinese students today in an order of the ministry of education warning against "bad deportment and acts in violation of wartime thrift and economy."

The order enjoining a higher moral standard for students set up disciplinary measure including dismissal.

Rail Strikers, Government at Impasse on Dispute

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Sept. 24.—The big red cars of the Pacific Electric Railway stood silent and empty today while spokesmen for more than 2000 striking operating employes voiced determination to stay off the job until the Government proposed a satisfactory solution to their wage demands.

In Washington, however, the White House stated that a three-man special emergency board named to investigate the wage dispute would not consider the case as long as the strike continues.

Officials of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and of the Pacific Electric Co. agreed that the strike, insofar as it involves passenger traffic, is effective virtually 100 per cent.

Earlier today company officials estimated freight movement at as high as 70 per cent of normal but tonight they declared it was only 10 per cent. The decline, they said, followed the refusal of union employes of the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Union Pacific Railroads to take in or out of the Pacific Electric's large Butte Street yard any freight destined for P. E. delivery or coming in via the struck line.

The union represents about 2500 operating employes, said E. L. Smith, secretary of the general grievance committee.

Smith said the next move must come from Washington. There is no dispute between the union and the Pacific Electric management. The company agreed some months ago to increase wages 13 cents, from 87 cents to $1 an hour. The case was reviewed by several Washington agencies and eventually disapproved by Economic Stabilization Director Fred L. Vinson, who trimmed the increase to 3 cents an hour.

The strike, which started at 2 a. m. today, resulted.

"Passenger traffic is at a standstill," said O. A. Smith, company president. "Some freight is moving—some nonstriking crews showed up, and they were put to work. There is a small amount of military traffic, and mail."

The Pacific Electric's rail and bus lines serve an estimated 400,000 persons daily. Its routes extending from Los Angeles to 55 southern California communities, many of them centers of vital war industries or military installations.

In Washington, Los Angeles Congressmen placed partial responsibility for the strike on the Government, which they said had delayed settlement of the issues too long, and had failed to take into account living cost increases in West Coast war centers.

"Conditions are such," said Representative T. F. Ford (Democrat), "that I think the men are entitled to more money."

Representative Jerry Voorhis (Democrat) said that while he did not believe strikes should be employed during the war, "I believe on the whole the workers had a good case. It was significant that the company was willing to give them the increase they asked."

Row Over Charwomen

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—Striking Rockefeller Center maintenance employes voted today to seek other jobs unless the management settled their dispute over the discharge of several charwomen by 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The decision was approved unanimously at a meeting of the Association of Building Maintenance Employes of Rockefeller Center, insurgent group which broke away from the Building Maintenance Craftsmen (AFL).

Pickets appeared for the first time in front of the buildings today but thousands of office employes arrived during the morning rush hour to find partial elevator service available in the 12 affected buildings.

Stratford-on-Avon Is Painted Red By Bacon Devotee

Stratford-on-Avon, England, Sept. 24 (AP).—William Shakespeare's home town was painted red last night—apparently by one who believes that Francis Bacon actually wrote the works attributed to Shakespeare.

Straford inhabitants awoke today to discover crimson letters 2 feet high on the Shakespeare Memorial Theater: "Bacon Memorial Theater." Lady MacBeth's statue bore a red face and Hamlet's monument had the head and feet painted.

Paint was thrown about on the pavements, and to top it all, the flagstaff on the town hall was flying a woman's underwear.

BACK UP THE MEN WHO FIGHT FOR YOU

These American soldiers are going into action. How do you think they like being a constant target for enemy snipers? Of course they don't like it. But fighting is their job now . . . not for glory but because fighting for freedom is the price tag on Victory.

You have a job to do, too. There is nothing glorious about buying War Bonds, but it is your most important duty to help win this war. Are you doing your part as well as you can? Or could you really do more? If you haven't bought your quota, please do so today.

Anacostia Eleven Upsets Central High, 19 to 6

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The correspondence nas been very heavy since the first of the week when this department intrepidly took issue with recent claims that football's spinner play was originated by Fritz Crisler, Michigan's coach, in 1931 when he was coaching at Minnesota.

POVICH

We suggested that Crisler was slow in catching on to the efficacy of the spinner play, because coaches in the East, notably Curly Byrd at Maryland University, had been using the spinner since the early twenties. Since then has come the deluge from Old Grad, former Coach and Old Timer, all of whom claim to have known of the spinner play in the long-haired era of football.

"There was nothing new about the spinner play in 1931, or even 1920, my friend," says Whispering Buck O'Neill, the old coach who retired to sports writing for an easier if not better living. "I first saw the spinner used by "Pop" Warner's Carslisle Indians in 1911 and when John Heisman's teams employed it against the Pitt Panthers. The modern coaches may have refined it, but it can't fool an old football man."

There's some support, too, for Vanderbilt's Dan McGuigin as the originator of the spinner play. A neatly-typed communique from "Very Truly Yours, Old Timer," tells us that two of McGuigin's pupils who later became coaches used the spinner in 1911 while coaching a Southern Prep school team.

Old Timer says "I played football on a prep team in 1911-12, coached by Frank and Vaughan Blake, the brothers who made history under McGuigin at Vanderbilt, following the footsteps of their older brothers Dan and Bob. The records will show that Bob Blake was the man who beat the Carlisle Indians, 4 to 0, with a field goal from the 40-yard line. This was the Carlisle team under Warner, whose star was the Indian, Mount Pleasant, and it was their first defeat in something like three seasons. Don't question the score. A field goal counted four points in those days.

"But back to the spinner. We had a heavy, fast backfield with a light, shifty quarterback named Bill Martin, who was later Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana . . . we ran the spinner as a cross buck with Martin faking the ball to the left halfback heading off our right guard, and the fullback taking the ball through a hole between left guard and tackle.

"This play worked so well that it was further developed by Martin spinning to his left and faking to our left halfback straight into the line and then continuing his left spin on to the fullback or right halfback off guard or tackle on the right side . . . often Martin faked to both backs and spun in behind the man to whom he had made his second fake and carried the ball himself for long gains . . . a third variation saw Martin spinning for two fakes and dropping back, protected by the third back and a guard, for passes.

"Now the Blake boys learned their football from Dan McGuigin and McGuigin learned his football from Hurry Up Yost at Michigan and I'll be willing to bet that Yost used the spinner, which is almost as old as football."

Jim Pixlee, the old GWU coach, now consultant to the Air Forces Physical Training staff, pokes fun at the statements that the spinner was originated by Crisler or Byrd. "Haven't you learned by now," writes Pixlee, "that there is no way to really pin down such original ideas in the realm of football?"

Pixlee declares the "Harvard Hidden Ball" play, accompanied by the hocus-pocus in the backfield in 1912-1914 "was no other than the old spinner, which had been wandering up and down the countryside knocking on the door at many an obscure country football homestead for many years.

"I never saw Harvard teams use the maneuver," says Pixlee, "but I saw what was represented to me as the Harvard Hidden Ball trick way back in 1914 and out in Midwest far from the Ivy of dear old Harvard. Even then the coaches in that region turned up their noses and grunted in derision when credit for its creation was pinned on the expanded chests of Harvard. No coaches I knew could tell us exactly who used it first. It was nothing but a short side spinner from a short punt formation.

"My own guess is that this technique was a matter of evolution and probably started in the days when the standard formation generally in use everywhere was the old balanced line T formation, with the quarter back immediately behind the center . . . I remember teams on which I played using it as early as 1909 . . . I remember such a play pulled in 1911 when Missouri was playing Drake . . . our quarterback was Billy Blees, recently a vice president of General Motors . . . I was at left end. We were using a T-formation and were on Drake's 5-yard line. Blees took the ball from center, turned and faked to the left half, completed his spin and sprinted around left end for a score.

"There's a lot of hooey about who developed what in football. Rockne is generally credited with inventing the shift, but Dr. Williams at Minnesota was using the shift years before Rockne was at Notre Dame . . . most coaches are too proud to use other well-known coaches stuff . . . they generally disguise the idea and dress it up as their own."

Navy, N. C. Preflight Launch Season Today

Two Teams in Fine Shape for Battle At Annapolis; Radick Out of Middie Line-up

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Sept. 24.—Light workouts were the order today for both Navy and North Carolina Preflight as they held last-minute drills on the eve of their scheduled grid contest tomorrow.

Both teams looked in fine shape as they ran briskly through their paces, but there was no heavy work by either the Middies or the Preflight Cloudbusters.

Eearly in the week, veteran Tackle Ed Elliott was reported benched for the game because of a leg injury, and today Navy's coaches reported another casualty, that of Rudolph Radick, a 190-pound guard from Galloway, W. Va.

Radick was out of the running for tomorrow because of shoulder trouble.

Shepard Won't Start

Not in the starting line-up for the Tars, Bill Shepard, 180-pound guard from Edenton, N. C., is a guy to watch when he is sent in for duty.

Described by Coach E. E. (Rip) Miller as "another Bert Metzger," famous Notre Dame guard of the late twentie., Shepard has a lot of poise and determination, and he is a terrific driver in line work.

This 180 pounder is only 5 feet 9 inches tall, but he makes up for that by hitting his opponents low and hard. He has agility and he has heart, two very definite requisites in this game.

Both Under Wraps

But the activities of both teams in general were somewhat under wraps today, as Navy's Coach John E. (Billick) Whelchel and Preflight's Coach Frank Imbrough hoped for the best for their respective teams.

But neither appeared to face a walkover. The Preflight Cloudbusters boast numerous oustanding collegiate stars, but Navy is in top shape because of early season and strict practices.

The game 's 2:30 p. m., EWT.

Temple Thumps VMI, 27 to 0

Philadelphia, Sept. 24 (AP).—A surprisingly adept gang of Temple University youngsters, only one of whom had played before in a college football game, overpowered an equally inexperienced Virginia Military Institute team 27-0 tonight before 10,000 fans in Temple Stadium. The Owls scored once each in the second and third periods, and rolled up two more touchdowns in the fourth.

Rugged Play as Roosevelt Opened High Series With Victory

Trout Stars As Tigers Top Yanks

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 24 (AP).—The New York Yankees' chance to clinch their American League pennant today was frustrated personally by Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who pitched five-hit ball and hit a home run to give the Detroit Tigers a 2-to-1 victory.

The Detroit mound star, gaining his 18th triumph against 11 defeats, engaged in a tight duel with rookie Charley Wensloff and for five innings the contest was scoreless.

Then the Yankees broke into the lead in the sixth, cheering the little turnout of 2,966 paying customers who had come to Yankee Stadium expecting to see the bombers bag their seventh championship in eight years. Bud Metheny singled, Bill John walked and Charley Keller smashed a long single into center for a run.

In the seventh, however, the Tigers tied the score on a double by Joe Wood, an infield out, and a single by Rudy York and in the eighth Trout himself decided the contest with a drive into the lower leftfield stands.

Altogether the Tigers made six hits off Wensloff and Johnny Murphy, who pitched the final frame. It was Wensloff's 11th defeat opposed to 12 wins.

Cards Rout Dodgers, 5-1; Lanier Wins

By the Associated Press

St. Louis Sept. 24.—The St. Louis Cardinals bumped the Brooklyn Dodgers back into third place in the National League today with a 5-to-1 triumph achieved on the seven-hit hurling of Lefty Max Lanier.

Lanier, bolstering his position among the Redbird hurlers who are being groomed to face the New York Yankees in the World Series, kept the Dodgers shutout until the eighth when a single by Al Campanis, a passed ball and another single by Arky Vaughan counted a run.

Athletics Tie Chisox, 3-3, In 16 Innings

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 24. — The Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox battled for 16 innings today before darkness halted hostilities with the score tied at 3-3.

Jesse Flores, running his strikeout string to 107 for the season, went the route for the A's while Bill Dietrich and George Maltzberger shared mound chores for the Sox, the latter allowing only one hit in the last six innings.

The Mackmen scored twice in the sixth to knot the score and neither club was able to tally from there out.

Dobson Hurls 2-Hitter, Wins In Tenth, 1-0

By the Associated Press

Boston, Sept. 224.—Joe Dobson pitched a two-hitter today as the Boston Red Sox beat Cleveland 1 to 0, while Ed Klieman, making his debut with the Cleveland Indians, held the Sox scoreless until the tenth inning.

The lone run of the game came in the tenth when Tom McBride doubled to left center and scored on Tony Lupien's pulled doubled over first base.

The only hit off Dobson in the first nine innings came in the seventh when Manager Lou Boudreau singled to short right. The other Cleveland hit was by Oris Hockett who started the tenth with a single to right and was forced.

Pimlico to Close 25 Stakes Tonight

Twenty-five of Pimlico's imposing array of 29 stakes to be decided during the 30-day autumn meeting starting October 9, will close tonight. Entries must be in before midnight. The list includes the $20,000 added Washington Handicap. Stake money at Pimlico this fall will total $272,500 with an over-all distribution of more than $600,000. Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan already at the Baltimore course is confident that the meeting will draw the majority of first-flight horses in training.

Coolidge, Roosevelt, Western Other Victors As High Series Opens

Colts Stop Wilson, 6-0; Riders Beat Eastern, 15-7; Raiders Halt Tech, 6-2; 8000 Watch Thrilling Schoolboy Battles

One jolting upset, one mild upset and two stiff battles that went according to pre-game figuring, marked yesterday's opening of the District Inter-high football series. The chief feather of the day goes in the hat of Anacostia High which came through with surprising power to defeat Central, champions for two years in schoolboy ranks, by a 19-6 score. Coolidge High gained its first series victory of all time over a favored Woodrow Wilson eleven, 6-0. Western High's strong club had a keen struggle on its hands before downing Tech, 6-2. Roosevelt did the expected in turning back Eastern, 15-7. Upward of 8000 saw the four battles.

Wilson Upset By Coolidge

Coolidge High, the Johnny-come-lately of the scholastic football hereabouts, registered its first victory in high school series history yesterday. Beaten five times last year and held to a single touchdown in the series, the Colts came out yesterday and banged over a touchdown that sent Woodrow Wilson High down to a 6-0 defeat at the Wilson Stadium.

Dick Bergmann crashed 3 yards through center of the Wilson line in the third period to end Coach Gilbert Conn's long quest for a series victory. The marker came after Coolidge had played the entire first half in its own territory, managing one way or another to beat off Tiger scoring threats.

Blocked Punt Pays Off

A blocked punt that struck Howard Tickton and bounced straight up, paved the way for the all-important score. Coolidge recovered on the Wilson 25. Noisy Cannon whipped passes to Addie Bassin and Paul Sickle to give the Colts a first down on the Wilson 5. Wilson's defense braced to stop three tries but on the fourth down with 2 yards to go, Bergmann went over. Wilson's Baesch and O'Neill blocked Bob Webb's try for the extra point.

The game ended in utter confusion. Wilson was carrying a passing attack into Coolidge territory but with seconds to go Bassin intercepted and ran outside. Some fists were swung in the pile-up that resulted and some spectators joined in the action.

Wilson's Bob Henry was a consistent gainer for his side and he was the saprk of several first-half drives that bogged down inside Coolidge's 20 yard line.

Henry Punts Well

Coach Conn used John Schullenberger, his regular punter, only for a splurge of passing that represented the Colts' only offensive moves near the end of the first half. With Schullenberger ailing, the Coolidge punting was entrusted to End Buck Henry, who was making his debut at this art. Henry punted consistently throughout the game, never failing to get them away and his best effort, one of 45 yards, sent Wilson far back and was a factor leading to the touchdown.

Brewer played a strong defensive game for Wilson. Barry Shields, Frank Cullers and Tickton were prominent for the Colts in line play.

Central Is Upset By Anacostia, 19-6

The vaunted Vikings of Central, last year's high school series champions, went down to a 19-6 defeat before a light and speedy Anacostia team yesterday, suffering their first defeat in 12 starts.

Jim Flaherty, Indians' left halfback, scored two of the touchdowns for Anacostia and rendered himself generally the most valuable player on the field. An estimated 2000 persons, mostly Central students, groaned through the upset.

Flaherty proved his value in the first three minutes of play on a 23-yard run around right end for a touchdown. A pass play failed to convert. Central came back moments later as a series of passes from Sweeney to Blakeman brought the ball down the field and another put it over. Central failed to convert.

Flaherty did it again in the second period, after spot passes over the center of the line met little defense and brought the ball on a long march down the field.

Both teams were scoreless in the third period, marked mostly by a series of fumbles. Flaherty took over most of the running in the fourth. A fumble by Central led to the Indians' final score by Peanut Randle. Yahres kicked the extra point.

Roosevelt Away To a Good Start

Riding rough shod over an inexperienced and light Eastern eleven, Roosevelt's orange and purple gridders chalked up a 15-7 victory in the curtain raiser at Roosevelt yesterday. Both Rider scores resulted from surprise passes after a series of powerhouse plays.

The spirited Lincoln Parkers rallied late in second half to halt further threats and allow only a safety. Springing desperation plays in the last two minutes of play, Eastern netted 53 yards on two pass plays and downed the ball on the Riders' stripe.

Sparrow Scores

On the last of three plunges, Halfback Fred Sparrow drove through from the 3-yard line to score the only Blue and White tally. Sparrow kicked the extra point.

The initial touchdown for the victors came in the first five minutes when End "Rock" Dodge took a 14-yard pass from Halfback Ed Mifflin to go over standing up. Mifflin was on the receiving end early in the second period when Fullback "Bunny" Citrenbaum tossed him a spiral good for 5 yards and a score.

Roosevelt claimed its last period safety when Swan, sting end, blocked Nicholson's punt from the Eastern 10.

Couldn't Stop Eastern

Backed up by eight returning lettermen the Riders played heads-up ball but were unable to stop Eastern's speedy backs in the final quarter.

The Riders gained 164 yards to the Easternites' 74 rushing. From five attempted passes, Roosevelt completed two for a total of 19 yards, while Eastern tried six and completed two for a net gain of 53 yards.

Western Scores, 6-2, Over McKinley

Western opened its football season with a bang yesterday as Brian Bell ran Tech's kickoff 85 yards for the only touchdown of the day. The trainers got over a safety in the fourth period to make the final score 6-2.

But the opening bang sputtered out into a series of little pops, for the real action died with that opening play. Western continued to look good through the first period, perked up again in the fourth but all in all it was a desultory sort of a ball game, despite a couple of Tech threats in the second and third quarters.

Ball Hits Bar

The Crimson failed to convert after its touchdown by a scant margin as the ball hit the crossbar. Tech receiving, lost the ball on downs in short order and Western began a march that looked convincing until it lost the ball on a pass interception on the 35. But Tech was unable to do anything with the ball when it got it, and matters continued that way well into the second period, when a series of passes threatened but did not get past the Western 15-yard line.

The second half began with a comedy of fumbles, and Tech lost its scoring chance with a fumble on the Western 4-yard line after Emsweller's passes to Buell had brought the Trainers that far.

Notre Dame Favored Over Pitt in Nation's Top Grid Game

60,000 Fans Expected to See Contest

Navy Selected Over Pre-Flight; Ga. Tech Picked To Beat Tarheels

By Harold Classen
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 24.—When brains were rationed a certain football prognosticator lost his coupon book. The following selections will identify him.

Notre Dame over Pittsburgh, the day's largest throng, 60,000, will trek to Pitt Stadium in hopes of seeing the rebirth of the Panther grid fortunes, but they will be at least a week too early for the first victory.

Georgia Tech over North Carolina: North Carolina has a squad of 92 players, 88 of whom are Navy trainees but the hint is out that Coach Alexander has one of his better clubs. Should be close with a North Carolina victory not too great a surprise. Twenty-five thousand expected.

Army over Villanova: Even with Doug Kenna on the sidelines the Cadets should prove stronger than the Philadelphia Wildcats, who mastered Muhlenberg handily last week. Travel handicaps will hold the crowd to 10,000.

Trojans Picked Over UCLA

Southern California over UCLA: The Trojans are out to convince UCLA quickly that they will not repeat as the Coast Conference titleholder. They are expecting 40,000 spectators.

Tulsa over Southern Methodist: Figuring the impetus Tulsa picked up last year will carry them along.

Navy over North Carolina Preflight: A civil war that will attract 12,000 with the Middies favored because of their veterans.

Princeton over Pennsylvania: Another one that can go either way, but the Tigers should have the edge off their 61-to-12 practice triumph over Lakehurst last Saturday. Officials expect 40,000.

Iowa Preflight over Ohio State: The tip is out that the Buckeyes won't be a pushover but we will have to string along with Messrs. Schwartz and Todd of the pros. Twenty-five thousand fans will be out to see for themselves.

Purdue over Marquette: This could be the day's best game with the Boilermakers' collection of stars appearing too strong.

Great Lakes Favored

Great Lakes over Iowa: An all-service squad meets an all-civilian outfit before 25,000 fans. The result is obvious.

Michigan over Western Michigan: Just who is going to stop the Wolverines this year?

Minnesota over Missouri: The Gophers should win, but don't be surprised if Bull Reece, Missouri plunger, isn't the game's best back.

Northwestern over Indiana: The Hoosiers are in the same league with Northwestern, but hardly in the same class, as 30,000 persons will see.

Camp Grant over Wisconsin: Charley Bachman should have his offense clicking by now, which makes it too bad for the Badgers. Another 25,000 house.

California over St. Mary's: Neither team is what it use to be, but St. Mary's seems to have suffered more, but they'll draw 25,000.

Rochester over Colgate: A battle of fullbacks, Micka vs. Sutch. Rochester's third game, which should be the deciding factor.

Holy Cross over Dartmouth: You'll have to wait until Sunday before finding out how much the recent scholastic losses have hurt Dartmouth.

Yale Gets Nod

Yale over Coast Guard: An easy spot for the Elis after their bruiser with Rochester a week ago.

Duke over Richmond: It's a Duke year.

Louisiana State over Georgia: This is 1943, to Georgia's regret.

Finishing them up in a hurry: Sampson Naval over Cornell, South Carolina over Newberry, Maryland over Curtis Bay Coast Guard, Clemson over Presbyterian, St. Mary's Preflight over College of Pacific, Washington over Whitman, Bainbridge (Md.) Naval over Camp Lejeune Marines, Arkansas over Missouri Mines, Norman (Okla.) Naval over Oklahoma, Camp Davis over Wake Forest, North Carolina State over Newport News Naval Apprentice.

Western Whips Techmen, 6 to 2

Western ran the ball back to the 15 and then kicked out of danger on the third down.

Tech threatened again early in the fourth period, which failed after Emsweller was knocked out of the game with a dislocated wrist. Then, deep in Western territory, Tech fumbled and the ball bounded across the goal line. Bell was on it for a Tech safety, and festivities ended shortly afterward.

Pitt Fans Look to These Boys in Irish Clash Today

Turner Books Cummings for Monday Card

By way of strengthening his show for Monday night in the opening indoor boxing show of the season at Turner's Arena, Promoter Joe Turner yesterday reshuffled the deck and came up with a card embracin gthe names of Nick Latsios, Alexandria Golden Greek, and Taffy Cummings, hard-driving little British sailor.

The Latsios-Cummings match will be an eight rounder of the semi-wind-up variety and will be in support of the feature tussle between Holman Williams, Chicago Negro middleweight, and John Garner, District middleweight and light-heavyweight titleholder, who will clash over the 10-round route.

Originally Turner had Latsios set to box Sam Bacala of Baltimore, but later had a chance to book Cummings. Cummings, in six local appearances, has lost but one match.

Promoter Turner has closed out for two sixes. Tee Hubert, John Carter's middleweight, will fight Speedy Duval, while Jimmy McGriff, up-and-coming local scrapper, will take on Jimmy Gillen.

Gonzaga High Routs NTS Eleven, 47-0

A strong Gonzaga eleven swept over outclassed National Training School for Boys, 47-0, in a game at Eastern Stadium yesterday that was no contest even when the Irish put in their third string team.

Coach "Bo" Richards' men scored in the first five minutes of play and went on to make two more touchdowns in the first period, converting twice. The second team went in at the beginning of the second quarter to score another. The Trainers were scrappy and aggressive, tackling hard and playing for all they were worth, but their mere week of practice told on them; their timing was off and their plays didn't click.

Then the Gonzaga third team went in, and there was no holding those boys, either, for they scored two more touchdowns, to make the score at the half, 41-0.

The Trainers tightened down after the half-way mark and held Gonzaga scoreless in the third period, but the Irish third stringers pushed another one over in the closing minutes of play, just to prove to themselves they could do it. Horan converted for four points on placements and Coakley dropkicked the other conversion.

Md. to Make Debut Against Cutters Today

Spears-Coached Terps Facing Test Against Guardsmen At College Park

The only college in Washington's environs to continue football this season, University of Maryland today opens its grid campaign in Byrd Stadium, College Park, at 2:30 p. m., entertaining the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Cutters, an unknown quantity, but a team that appears to be able to take care of itself on the football field.

Coached by Ensign Marvin Dillner, who learned his football at Minnesota from the same Dr. Clarence Spears who makes his debut today as Maryland's head coach, the Coast Guardsmen have several former collegiate and professional players included on their roster.

Dobler Triple Threat

Dillner has built his offense around Walter Dobler, a triple-threater who starred with North Dakota University. In addition to punting, passing, running and directing the attack, Dobler is also quite adept at field-goal kicking and only recently booted a 30-yarder against Franklin and Marshall in scrimmage.

At ends the Coast Guard club has Joe Hirscher, lanky 188-pounder who played with Marshall College. The tackles include Paul Holland, a semipro player from Rome, N. Y.; John Plitt, who played semipro football on the West Coast, and Bill Tessier, from Tulane, who may play despite a foot injury received in practice this week.

Two Local Boys

Maryland's starting array will include two local boys in Pat McCarthy, a 6-foot 177-pound end who played with St. John's, and Wilbur Rock, a 192-pound tackle who prepped at Central.

Under Spears, the Old Liners have retained only the T formation that Clark Shaughnessy installed last year in his one-year stay. The flashy crimson and white uniforms Shaughnessy outfitted the Terps in are practice togs now, and Maryland once more reverts to its tradtional black and gold.

The line-ups:

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Editor's note: Federal employes write the Federal Diary today. Send contributions to Jerry Kluttz, editor.

Civil Service Commissioner Flemming's recent statement that war service employes, who make up 1,800,000 of Uncle Sam's workers, will be dropped after the war, raises a moral question.

We may assume that some will retain their jobs in spite of returning veterans and new conditions, but probably not many will be so fortunate. Moreover, we must here state that this is not to say our returning servicemen should not be provided for; they should, of course.

However, Mr. Flemming's statement was damaging to the morale of people aiding the war and who have, in all cases, many more months to serve. There are thousands of these people who accepted war service appointments with the hope that by loyal and efficient work they would be able to gain permanent status after the war and continue in Government service. Many were told by their agencies that this would be the case. Others left better-paying jobs in private industries to help the war effort.

It seems inescapable that stenographers and other female civilian employes of the agencies should receive no lower evaluation than the WACS, WAVES and other uniformed women who sit at adjacent desks all through the war and do the same kind of work. Veterans' preference should certainly not be given these uniformed stenographers, who in most cases had to learn their jobs from their civilian sisters. Exceptions should be made, of course, for all who actually see service.

War Service appointees have done a good job during the war and they should not be thrown out right and left or be treated as though they had no rights or problems at all. There is much deserved solicitude for the returning veteran but there semes to be none at all for those who have held the home front, bought war bonds and paid confiscatory taxes, struggled to keep the family together and the Nation a going institution here at home. Somebody had to do that.

Distress is distress regardless of the persons affected. By law the veterans will have what they deserve, but it is high time somebody realized what will be faced by these thousands of other people when the guns have ceased firing. They are citizens too and could not help it if their age, sex, physical condition or other factors prevented their being drafted. Would anyone sincerely say that 100 per cent of the servicemen went willingly or that 100 per cent of the rest stayed home because they wanted to? The decision was Uncle Sam's in all cases. He said who would go and who would stay . . .

Commissioner Flemming is undoubtedly in a position to define the legal rights of the war service employe. The moral side, as in many cases, is not fully presented. It does no good to speak loosely tin can when their services can be of dropping them like an emptied replaced. They, too, have a right to work and earn a living for themselves and families. No one group, however loyal and self-sacrificing, can claim that as its own exclusive prerogative. A. S. T.

Company Requests Permission to Use 52 One-Man Cars

Permission to convert 52 four-motor streetcars for one-man operation will be asked by Capital Transit Co. next Tuesday.

The Public Utilities will hold formal public hearings in the District Building, Room 500, at 10 a. m.

Reason for the request is the shortage of manpower in Washington, and the anticipated further shortage if fathers are drafted.

The company now uses 830 streetcars, and 398 of these are operated by one man. The 432 remaining, 319 streamliners and 79 older models, all require two men to operate.

Divorce Can Wait

Hartford, Conn.—Lou Cohen, theater manager, reported that a woman who planked down $375 for a $500 War Bond told him she had been saving the money to get a divorce, but that she hated Hitler more than she did her husband.

Never Too Old

Benton Harbor, Mich.—Ernest Tabor is 99 years old and still dealing in "futures"—Uncle Sam's. Tabor, whose span of life includes the Civil War, Indian wars in the West, Spanish-American War and World Wars I and II, purchased $2,000 worth of War Bonds.

'Service Flag Day' to Boost Bond Drive

District's Record Now 62 Millions; D. C. Natives to Be Honored Tuesday

More than 60,000 Washington men and women in the armed forces will be honored in the observance of "Service Flag Honor Day" next Tuesday, according to plans announced yesterday by officials of the Third War Loan Drive.

With conclusion of the bond drive set for October 2 by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, the national total of bond sales has reached $12,899,000,000. The goal for the entire country is 15 billion dollars.

"While some city quotas show small bond sales lagging and local quotas in jeopardy, the overall picture has speeded up to a very encouraging degree," according to T. R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance Division. He warned, however, against any elation or enthusiasm and stressed the importance of purchases of bonds by individuals.

After announcing that sales of bonds in the District totaled $62,400,000 through Thursday, or 66.4 per cent of the quota, John A. Reilly, chairman of the District of Columbia War Finance Committee, said the remainder must be subscribed by the closing date of the drive.

"The Washington citizenry that is lagging in bond purchases will have special opportunity next Tuesday to honor natives of the Capital now serving in the armed forces," Reilly explained. "The bond sale will be intensified on that day with the reminder that no finer tribute can be paid those who are battling and dying for freedom than to buy bonds."

The chairman added: "I urge everybody to be both a bond buyer and a bond salesman next Tuesday to increase our sale of bonds to individuals and reach an average purchase here of at least one $100 bond for each of our citizens now serving our country. I trust each of us will remember that 'the money we can't spare may spare a soldier's life'."

M. Ravitz, manager of the Marilyn Bootery, 1344 F st. nw., disclosed that he had sold $30,000 worth of bonds yesterday at his place of business in exchange for 60 pairs of nylon hose. One purchaser bought a $500 bond with her cherished collection of $2 bills.

The "Liberator Club," organized by a group of businessmen here to accelerate the drive by recruiting a membership of at least 350 purchasers of $1000 Series E bonds, turned in an encouraging initial report yesterday as work started toward the $350,000 goal, the cost of an Army B-24 Liberator bomber.

Granville Gude, president of the Board of Trade, who has been chosen to lead the "Liberators," wired the initial subscription from Chicago, where he is on a business trip.

Immediately following this purchase, E. Barrett Prettyman, vice president of the Board of Trade; Edgar Morris, head of the War Finance Committee's business division of the drive, and Maj. Harry M. Cunningham, originator of the plans for the club, handed $1000 checks each for bonds to Brig. Gen. William E. Hall, deputy chief of air staff, Army Air Forces, in a ceremony at the "Back the Attack" show.

Through the cooperation of labor and management, employes of the Capital Transit Co. here were striving yesterday to reach their goal of $300,000 in war bonds to buy a heavy bomber to represent them at the battle front.

The normal payroll deductions of company employes amount to approximately $100,000 monthly and employes decided that with a little additional effort, they could buy the bomber to be known as "Capital Transit Employes."

band on schedule.

"Exhibits will be closed Sunday night at 10 o'clock," said Col. Frank T. McCabe, who returned to Washington at the opening of "Back the Attack" to become officer in charge of the show.

He had spent several months in Los Angeles and Hollywood, in the capacity of technical adviser for the Army during the filming of "This Is the Army."

Exactly 1,453,000 persons had attended the great exposition on the Washington Monument Grounds at "taps" last night, 76,000 throughout yesterday's day and night performances and exhibits.

A huge convoy from Edgewood Arsenal, scheduled to roll into the Nation's Capital by truck, will arrive at the Monument Grounds this morning to participate in the Chemical Warfare Day special show at 5 p. m.

The contingent will include a platoon from the Fifth Chemical Company Motorized, 200 cadets from the Officers Candidate School and a 30-piece band.

Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, chief of Chemical Warfare Service, will make a brief address from the arena stage as a part of the special CWS program and earlier during the regular afternoon performance of the action show

Highlighting the program will be a demonstration by the Fifth Chemical Company showing how the 4.2-inch chemical mortar, which is playing a key role in the battle lines, is set up and fired.

It was similar mortar units on the Sicilian beachheads which successfully broke up two enemy tank attacks threatening to wipe out infantry battalions to which the chemical units were attached.

It was announced hundreds of officers and civilians from the office of the chief of the Chemical Warfare Service at Gravelly Point will be dismissed at 4 p. m. today to see for themselves much of the CWS equipment they have known only as figures on paper.

To Show Flamethrower

During the opening parade around the arena 200 officer candidates from Edgewood, the jeep-drawn mortar carts, a 400-gallon decontaminator truck and the mechanical smoke generator will follow the band in review.

Among the other exhibitions on the special program, Combat Engineers will demonstrate the CWS portable flamethrower, showing how the weapon is used to attack pillboxes and machinegun nests.

The Edgewood Band will play

As part of the Transportation Day program at the regular action show yesterday afternoon, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Wylie, speaking before an audience of 27,000, said.

"On an average, every five minutes of every day the Army Transportation Corps will—

"(a) Originate a troop movement somewhere in the United States.

"(b) Entrain 150 soldiers and detrain another 150 at stations within the United States.

"(c) Load 2 dozen men aboard an Army transport and unload a like number at some port overseas.

"(d) Ship 1000 tons of freight by railroad to Army installations in the United States.

"(e) Unload 15 cars of freight at ports of embarkation for shipment overseas.

"(f) Loan 335 tons of cargo aboard ship for movement overseas, including 20 tons of ammunition which our troops will expend on the enemy.

"(g) Traverse the high seas 260 ship miles carrying cargo—or 2,600,000 cargo ton miles—a large portion of this way through incalculable dangers from submarines and air attack."

A Part of the Attack

General Wylie explained these were not all of the figures—only a sample . . . And that there was a human story behind the figures which he had not time to tell.

"It is a story of blood, sweat and tears," he explained—"with no time for tears."

He told of the tremendous task, danger and difficulty in moving men and material . . . "We take pride," he said, "in the knowledge that in the real sense the job we are doing is not exclusively our job . . . The prosecution of war involves the combination of power and movement.

"All the destructive power that our mighty industry can produce, all the skill and courage of our troops, would count for nothing unless projected to those points of the globe where they can be brought to bear against the enemy.

"Moving them there is our task. But in performing that task we are not merely backing the attack—we are an indispensable part of the attack."

George Maurice Morris, prominent Washington attorney, speaking on the same program in behalf of the Third War Loan Drive said that "in a great community such as ours no man is wise enough to say what each of us should do in our war loan purchases."

" . . . The reputation of our common community," he said, "will suffer if each one does not do his duty."

Although the show grounds are not opened to the public until noon, at 10 a. m. today members of the "Little Club," represented by Mrs. Esther Robenstein and Mrs. Florence Chiaken will present a plaque to be attached to a General Sherman tank to Maj. C. S. Comeaux of the Ordnance Department.

The plaque will indicate that 50 members of the club have purchased enough war bonds in the Third War Loan Drive to purchase an M-4 General Sherman tank. In other words $40,000 worth.

The club incidentally, according to Major Comeaux, has purchased a total of $55,000 in war bonds.

Fruit Sellers Complain of 'Double Deal'

Forced to Purchase Plentiful Goods In Order to Get Scarcer Produce

Local wholesale produce dealers are being forced to buy perishable produce of which there is a surplus in order to obtain even small quantities of scarce fruits and vegetables, it was said here yesterday.

With Washington, and other localities, now wholly dependent on California for fresh oranges, and the great demand for oranges to be processed into canned orange juice, the fruit is scarce in the city. Consequently, one dealer reported that to obtain 25 crates he was compelled to buy 40 crates of lemons, of which there is a glut.

It also was revealed that California shippers had compelled dealers here to buy carloads of honeydew melons in order to get carloads of lettuce. One dealer said the melons also were a glut on the market and that he sustained a loss of $80 when some he bought in order to get lettuce spoiled.

Similarly he was compelled to buy a carload of the currently plentiful Irish potatoes in order to get a carload of the currently scarce onions.

A spokesman for the national OPA said such deals were in direct violation of OPA regulations. Local wholesalers, however, fear that any protest by them, officially, would result in drying up entirely their meager sources of supplies of the scarce commodities.

Pupils Observe Army Display

Thirty-five home economics students from six District high schools attended the "Fighting Quartermasters" exhibit yesterday at "Back the Attack" show to learn how the Army feeds, clothes and supplies millions of fighting men throughout the world.

The group, headed by Mrs. Oona Rush, director of home economics for the District public schools was welcomed by Maj. Gen. E. B. Gregory of the Quartermaster Corps.

Escorted on a tour of inspection by Col. H. Feldman, officer in charge, and Mrs. Mary I. Barber, dietician in the office of the quartermaster general, the girls made notes as they passed through the grounds. They visited the mobile field bakery, the laundry unit, the repair and salvage units and observed a sergeant making a bed "GI" style.

High Schools represented includes: Anacostia, Woodrow Wilson, Central, Roosevelt, Western, McKinley.

Dr. Marshall Forbidden to Accept Call

Presbytery Refuses To Allow Cleric To Transfer to Pulpit in Texas

Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will not be able to accept the call to the pulpit of Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Tex.

"The Washington City Presbytery declined to concur with Dr. Marshall's request to dissolve the pastoral relationship existing between him and the New York Avenue Church," said the Rev. Irving Ketchum, stated clerk of the Presbytery, following a special Presbytery meeting yesterday at the New York Avenue Church.

The Presbytery decision is final in such matters, according to one Presbyterian leader. The congregation's overwhelming desire to retain Dr. Marshall was said to have been the factor influencing the Presbytery's decision.

The congregation recently voted 300 to 9 to retain him.

A Presbyterian minister, who declined to be quoted, told The Post that he did not recall a case during his long ministry where the Presbytery declined to release a pastor to accept another pulpit.

Dr. Marshall could not be reached last night for comment. He came in 1937 to New York Avenue Church, one of the Nation's historic churches, hallowed by the memory of President Lincoln. During the summer, Dr. Marshall announced to his flock that, after "much praying over the matter," he had decided to accept the call to the Dallas pulpit, one of the Southwest's largest churches.

City News In Brief

Charles B. Grayson, 35, Negro, of 1105 2d st. nw., was held for grand jury action under $1000 bond yesterday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on charges of violating the Harrison Narcotic Act.

Agents of the Federal Narcotics Bureau testified they found six grains of morphine in Grayson's possession when they arrested him at Thirteenth and U sts. nw. Wednesday night. The narcotics were stolen, according to police.

On the larceny charge, his brother, Clifford, is now awaiting trial.

Club Honors Founder

Arthur Clarendon Smith, Washington storage proprietor, and founder of the Reciprocity Club of Washington, was honored at a Founder's Day luncheon by the club at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Morgan Beatty, NBC commentator, just returned from London, was guest speaker. Justin Lawrie presented a musical program. Glen Darwin, baritone, formerly with the Metropolitan Opera, sang. Virgil Fox, concert pianist, played.

3 Hikes Tomorrow

A bird walk, nature walk and camera stroll will be available for outdoor enthusiasts tomorrow, the Office of National Capital Parks announced yesterday.

Bird walkers will meet at Lovers lanenon R st. near 31st st. nw. at 7:30 a. m. for a tour of Montrose and Dumbarton Oaks, while the nature walk over a section of the C. & O. Canal towpath will begin at 3 p. m. at Stop 33 on the Cabin John carline. Camera strollers will meet at the west end of the Massachusetts Avenue Bridge over Rock Creek at 3 p. m.

Nursery Workers' Course

A 10-week course for critically-needed volunteer nursery workers will begin October 8 under supervision of the District's nine public school day care centers, Miss Dorothy Pearse, director, announced yesterday.

Sponsored by the Child Care and Protection Committee and the AWVS, the courses will be held at the American Women's Volunteer Service, 1520 22nd st nw., and it is hoped that sufficient volunteers will apply to relieve the current shortage of services to children of working mothers.

Illegal Possession Of Gas Stamps Brings $500 Fine

Judge George D. Neilson in Municipal Court sentenced Frank Smith, 33, of 220 E st. nw., to pay a $500 fine or serve six months in jail for illegal possession of four gasoline coupons.

Smith, a service station attendant, pleaded guilty to the charge. Police said that Smith collected the coupons at a service station at 490 C st. sw., and had never turned them in. They said that Smith admitted selling coupons to a truck driver.

Judge Neilson said that the number of coupons was of secondary importance to the seriousness of the crime itself and said, "violators will be dealt with harshly in my court."

For Servicemen,

Senate Gets Resolution to Alter Garage

Despite outspoken opposition from two of his compatriots, Senator Langer (Republican) of North Dakota yesterday introduced a concurrent resolution to convert the underground Senate garage into sleeping quarters for transient servicemen.

Earlier in the day, Senators Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina and Wiley (Republican) of Wisconsin engaged in a lively discussion on the floor of the Senate in which Wiley introduced a resolution urging the Military Affairs Committee to investigate the best means of handling the problem, but requested that it be tabled following Reynolds' request to defer the motion.

Not a Question of Beds

Wiley claimed a representative from his own office had interviewed military police and servicemen in the station at 3 a. m. recently and had reached the conclusion that "if there were 10,000 beds available, men still would be sleeping in the station."

Wiley added his scout had observed between 50 and 75 servicemen sleeping there—"far under the 1000 observed last Sunday morning by Congressman Tolan, who introduced his resolution in the House on Monday."

Reynolds observed, "We would hate to think that any of our soldier boys were not provided with comfortable quarters when they visited Washington," but added that "certainly not over several hundred soldiers are occasioned to remain here overnight."

Another Proposal

"The Senate garage is considerable distance from Union Station and in bad weather this winter it would be difficult for men to make their way to the garage," the North Carolina Senator said. "Furthermore, conversion of the Capital quarters would involve considerable expenditures of funds. I visited the station this morning and discovered the top floor could be equipped for soldiers and sailors at an expense of only $10,000 and very rapidly—say, within two weeks or 30 days."

Wiley acceded to Reynolds' request for deferment of his motion, but pointed out he wanted the facts "gotten out to the country as an antidote to the suggestion members of the Senate and House have been asleep concerning the needs of our servicemen."

Autos Injure Schoolgirl And Woman

Two persons, one a school child, were injured in traffic accidents here yesterday, as two other victims injured Thursday were still being detained in hospitals.

Injured yesterday was Helen M. Garvey, 42, McLean, Va., who was held at Emergency Hospital for observation after she received shoulder and scalp injuries when st. nw.
struck by a car at M and 20th

Clementine Wallace, 7, Negro, of 407 55th st. ne., was treated yesterday for minor injuries to her head and back when she was struck by a streetcar on her way home from school at 55th and Eads sts. ne. She was treated at Gallinger Hospital and discharged. The car was said by police to have been operated by John E. Soper, 36, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

James Garrett, 14, Negro, of 2032 4th st. nw., was still unconscious at Freedmen's Hospital with head injuries suffered when he collided with an auto while riding a bicycle Thursday night at 6th and Trumbull sts. nw. Police said the auto was driven by Roscoe Harris, 53, Negro, of 214 5th st. nw.

Hugh O'Brien, 49, a Navy man, stationed at Camp Perry, Md., was treated at Casualty Hospital and then removed to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., after being hit by a taxi on Massachusetts ave. and North Capitol st. Thursday night. His injuries were not serious.

Health Dept. 'Favoritism' Rumor Sifted

House Unit Probes Charges of Quick Pay Rises to Some New Employes

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer.

Prompted by letters and telephone calls from irate employes of the District Health Department, the House Civil Service Investigating Committee for the past week has been conducting a quiet inquiry into charges of irregularities and favoritism in promotions, particularly in the sanitation division.

Simultaneous with the probe into conditions at Gallinger Hospital currently being made by a Senate District subcommittee, the House group has requested Commissioner Guy Mason for all official data and records on personnel in the division, it was revealed yesterday.

Charges from employes which provided impetus for the inquiry included protests that some workers had been employed in the department for 15 years without receiving raises, while others were granted more pay after serving only six months.

Shillito Handling Probe

George J. Shillito, chief investigator for the committee, is handling the investigation, which is expected to require "at least two more weeks" for completion.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, said that the position of director of the Bureau of Sanitation has been open since the retirement of J. Frank Butts more than a year ago.

"Neither the Civil Service lists nor the United States Public Health Service referrals have produced a taker for the job," Dr. Ruhland declared. "Sanitation engineers have been in great demand for service in the armed forces, so that it has been almost impossible to find a director. Just recently we have renewed our appeal to the Health Service for an engineer even pro tem.

Complaints Laid to Inspectors

"It is my belief, however, that the complaints to the Civil Service group have come from a number of inspectors who were hoping for reclassifications. The administration took the position that until a new chief was appointed, chauges should not be made. There was no disposition not to grant promotions, you understand; they simply have been withheld until a director is obtained."

Meanwhile G. M. Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, told reporters that he had made a search of the District Building for the committee's request for information, but that up until closing time yesterday, none had come to light. Thornett made the search in the absence of Commissioner Mason, who was not in his office.

Speeches Mark Langston Library Dedication Here

The Langston Branch Library was dedicated last night with speeches from governmental, civic and educational leaders of the city participating. The library is located at 701 24th st. ne.

Among those on the program were Albert W. Atwood of the board of library trustees; the Rev. James O. West, jr., of Calvary Episcopal Church; District Commissioner Guy Mason, Ernest F. Harper, president of the Kingman Park Civic Association; John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority; Miss Clara W. Herbert, librarian; Miss Althea V. Howard, branch librarian; the Rev. Leon S. Wormley, pastor of Zion Baptist Church; Dr. Walter Daniel, librarian, Howard University; William Anderson, manager of Langston Terrace housing development, and Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools.

Thrills in Link Trainer Held Worth Bond Price at Army Show

By Emily Towe
Post Staff Writer

Step right up, folks, and enjoy the thrills of an airplane ride. All the dives, spins, climbs and sharp turns you can take—they're waiting for you in this Link trainer after you buy a war bond.

A free ride in the bright yellow and blue model of an airplane cockpit, a replica used to train Army aviators, will be given bond purchasers today and tomorrow at the Army Air Forces exhibit at "Back the Attack" show. And though the trainer looks like a fugitive from an amusement park concession, you'll feel like a veteran aviator after braving the hectic ride.

After you've signed for that bond, you can climb up into the trainer and find out for yourself if the jaunt is worth $18.75. But there's one thing certain—you'll never forget the jolting turns, the dips, the climbs and that "rough weather" switched on by the instructor to give the novice aviator the experience of "piloting" through a storm.

From the seat of the Link Trainer, you face an instrument board similar to those on the American planes that drone over Germany. An instructor from the Army Air Forces will patiently point out the operating devices, explain the markings to work for on the instruments, and then you're left to pilot your own way to a "safe landing" or a "careening crash."

RIDE FOR A BOND—Corpl. Harold Smith, Army Air Forces, explains a link trainer to Emily Towe, Post staff writer. All bond purchasers at the exhibit today and tomorrow will be given a free ride

The Air Forces offered a preview ride yesterday to this Post reporter so I could tell prospective bond purchasers about the thrills awaiting them. They assured that all mistakes, which would have resulted in a crash right away if the trainer had been a plane would remain forever a military secret.

But in all fairness to you bond purchasers, I must also add that there are mishaps to be faced in one's first ride in a Link Trainer. You push the wheel forward and before you know what's happening, the "plane" is in a "nose dive." And the situation doesn't seem to clear up when you pull the wheel backward because the angle is just as severe in the opposite direction. While you're keeping a vigilant eye on the turn and bank indicator, the ball of the artificial horizon instrument has gone awry.

Finally the "pilot" masters enough of the operation to begin "blind flying." The top is lowered and instructions come through the radio instruments telling when to turn right or left, when to descend or climb. And as if the rider hadn't already bounced around enough, the operator turns on the "rough weather" switch.

It is a hectic experience but it's fun. And I think bond purchasers will agree that it's worth anybody's $18.75 investment.

Victory Sidelights

Dual Users of Coal to Get Supplies on Allotment Basis

Users of coal for dual purposes, such as heating and cooking, or heating two or more establishments, may purchase allotted coal on the basis of the needs of each purpose for which it is desired, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday.

For instance, if the operator of a string of rooming houses needed 200 tons of coal for the entire year, and had 100 tons in, say, two houses, he would be allowed to buy 50 tons each for his other houses. If a user of coal for cooking had half enough heating coal to last him the winter, he would then be allowed to buy half enough cooking coal to last half the winter.

85 Volunteer Blood

Eighty-five employes of the Southern Railway System, 15th and K sts. nw., have volunteered blood donations for the Red Cross, it was announced yesterday. The first group donated blood at the District's center, 51 Louisiana ave. nw., on Monday, while another group made donations yesterday. Others will donate next Wednesday.

Rubber Boots Available

Whether or not their work is deemed "essential," laborers who require below-the-knee lightweight rubber boots for protection in their industries may now obtain such footwear, District OPA officials announced yesterday.

In another relaxation of rationing regulations, certain kinds of rubber boots useful in farming and similar work, but no longer being manufactured for general use, were reported released.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS

"I want something practical and comfortable—you know to walk in . . . an oxford probably . . . with not too high a heel."

"All right . . . Let's try on this servicewomen's model. It's been very popular."

"We-ll . . . it feels all right . . . only . . . haven't you anything not quite so . . . so . . ."

"Here's a perfectly plain leather pump with a medium heel."

"I'll try it—only I'd decided to be very sensible in spending this coupon. What I really need is something I can walk in . . . Oh, that pump does look a lot better than the oxford."

"Wait, I have one like it in suede with an open toe that's a little more dressy . . . Now let's try this."

"Oh, that does a lot more for my foot."

"How does it feel?"

"We-ll—er I think it'll be all right . . . What are those pumps in the case?"

"You mean the suede sandal with the open back and the pincushion bow? . . . I'll get one for you . . ."

"Oh, that looks darling. Of course that's a terribly high heel."

"That shape's very flattering to your foot."

"Of course I really ought to get the oxford but—"

A shoe like that can go places an oxford can't."

"That's right. And anyway I won't have to walk very much—if I'm smart about taxis . . and then everybody says they may increase the gasoline allowance . . . and of course it does look a lot better on my foot. I—I believe . . . I'll take it."

THE MISSING LINK

"Have you a sensible shoe—that doesn't look it."

"Beg pardon?"

"I'd like a shoe I could walk a mile in—also stand on a couple of hours at a cocktail party."

"We have some British walkers—"

"No, no, that isn't what I mean. I want a shoe I can walk on into the office—then go on to dinner or the theater without looking like a clodhopper."

"Here's a classic pump—"

"But the heel's too high."

"Most of the pumps are made with heels that high."

"Then what about an oxford—with a medium heel?"

"Here's a very smart sports model—"

"No, no! Haven't you an oxford with—er well a little more finesse?"

"Here's an open-toed suede model—"

"No, no! You see I want a shoe I can fall back on when I can't get a taxi or crowd on a bus."

"We have some corrective orthopedic types—"

"No, you see with crepe dresses—"

"Here's a very dressy little oxford—"

"No, the heel's far too high. You see, what I really want is one of those new wartime models I've been hearing about—that are supposed to combine comfort with beauty, practicality with distinction, wearability with smartness, to be substantial, yet subtle, to give the foot support and yet flatter it, to symbolize both the chic and the good sense of the New Woman—"

"Beg pardon, Madam?"

GOING UP

"How much are these?"

"That pair is $11.75."

"I really hadn't meant to go over $10. What was the pair I just looked at?"

"They were $10.95. That's only 80 cents more. And of course buying now is different."

"Yes, that's why I want to be sure I get the right shoes."

"That's the intelligent attitude . . . Now here's a pair of suede pumps that should fit you especially well . . . Now how does that feel?"

"Much better than the others. How much are they?"

"These are $13.95. You see they're Twinkletoes. You never go wrong on that make."

"Still that's a lot of money. And they don't feel very snug in the heel."

"Let me try a Svelty on you. They have an especially narrow heel . . . Now isn't that better?"

"Much. What are they?"

"They're $16.95."

"Good heavens! I haven't paid that much for a shoe in years."

"But look at that workmanship. In buying shoes now you can't afford to take anything but the best."

"I suppose not. This is wonderful except that it's cut a little too low for my foot."

"Say, I believe I have the very thing for you . . . Try this. It's a Fairyfoot."

"Oh, that is perfect! And what a beautiful shoe. What is it?"

"Let's see . . . $19.75."

"What!"

"Well, you must remember this is a Fairyfoot. Look at that! All hand sewn!"

"I know but—"

"A Fairyfoot is really an investment."

"I—I suppose so."

"And, of course, you have to think of the future in buying now—"

"That's right, but—"

"And another thing, the Fairyfoot is becoming harder to get every day—"

"I'll take it!"

Mary Haworth's Mail

Appears every day except Saturday in the women's pages. Tomorrow, in Section IV, Miss Haworth discusses a warworker's problem of office morale. Her boss, a brilliant man, fine and kindly, offends the staff by failing to muffle his nose when he sneezes. What can be done about it?

It's About Time

By Dolores Boland

It's about time to use remnants of brilliant velvet or velveteen to make a belt with four little pockets. This is worn apron-fashion over that basic dress of black crepe. Use two colors for these tie-on pockets.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is heartless and cruel to slap a baby. But that isn't all! It also is poor discipline because it makes the baby mad. No one learns in anger.

Once started, slapping is too easy to continue because as a child grows he is increasingly in "mischief." This mischief is made up of the mistakes by which the baby learns. In order to learn, then, the baby must make these mistakes in spite of being slapped by his parents.

Every parent discovers that if she uses slapping as a punishment, she must go on slapping and slapping.

Mrs. E. B. says, "I am a graduate nurse and spend most of my time working with babies. Your articles are just grand (thanks!) and are worth cutting and saving. I find so many mothers need advice on discipline. They seem to think that even a baby of four or five months should have his hands slapped when he reaches for something. They don't seem to realize he is too young to remember for what he was slapped. Do write an article on this."

The child of this tender age is unable to get anything that isn't within reach. The only method necessary at this time is to put out of reach the things he might injure if he got them.

When he is of an age to crawl around the floor and hurt himself, as well as family possessions, he should be in a play pen—home-made or ready-made. In this he can be active, busy and happy with his own things.

Once each day he can be given the run of the house with someone at hand to prevent his harming anything. When an object is removed from his hands, he is told, "Baby musn't touch that," and this is repeated consistently. He learns that way without any slapping.

When he can't be kept in a pen (18 months and over) he must have this patient education in what is his to play with and what are the family possessions and not toys. Put breakable objects out of reach and concentrate on a few things which can't be moved.

Repeat the above phrase and substitute for what he wants some of his own toys. If he finds he can't handle an object because we take it away repeatedly, that is education in letting things alone.

Again there is no need for slapping. He comes to understand some things are his, some not his. And those not his are not to be had for the grabbing. Physical assault has nothing to do with such teaching.

Our leaflet, "Early Discipline," goes into this subject of curiosity and its management. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

You can trim an inch off your waist in 5 days and an inch off your hips in 10—and I'll take my affidavit on it!

You don't have to take my word for it, though, because that is just a good, average record for slimming those two measurements. If you don't come out as well, it's because you either don't need to lose that much or you don't apply the right technique.

To take an inch off your waist in five days you have to use three tricks—stretching, twisting and side-bending. The stretching must be through the middle of the figure, the boneless section. The twist must be smack on the waistline. And the sidebend to the side. Here is an exercise that combines the three.

Position: Stand with feet apart and parallel, arms stretched overhead, chin up, shoulders relaxed, and a thorough stretch through the midriff.

Movement: Twist sharply at the waist, bend acutely sideward, and swoop down and touch fingers of both hands to floor outside one foot. Stand erect and repeat to the other side.

Chance to go wrong: The upstretch must be through the midsection without hunching the shoulders. In twisting, don't let the hips move. In bending, don't let the stomach muscles sag or the hips sway out to other side. There's quite a chance to do this exercise wrong. If you do it, or some other version of the same combination, correctly, you really can trim down your waist in short order.

Hip-slimming takes about twice as long. But, after all, these muscles are so massive you should expect to put in more time. The technique for this is another trio-leg-swinging, backward thrusts of the legs from the hips, and rolling. In leg-swinging, try to bring the leg up to a right angle with the trunk, forward or backward and lying down or standing up. Take it lying down in this exercise.

Position: Lying on side on floor, head pillowed on underarm, other arm out in front with hand braced on floor, legs straight down.

Movement: Swing top leg up from hip, out in front, then forcefully back and up. As you do the exercise, you will feel a distinct tightening of the big muscles. Repeat 12 swings, rest, and perform on the other side.

Chance to go wrong: Almost none! The position on the floor keeps you in line. In standing to do leg-swinging, or in thrusting the leg backward, you may have a tendency to arch the small of the back. Watch it. And make sure that the swing or thrust is from the hip. In the first, the knee can be loose. In the second, it should be held stiff. When you roll to smooth the hipline, the trick is to bring your weight to bear on the part that needs slimming. You can work this out for yourself.

News of the Women's Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds

When the YWCA's board of directors and staff members meet Monday for the first fall conference at 5:30 p. m. the theme will be "Time Out For Tomorrow." A get-acquainted hour will precede dinner in Barker Hall.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

A varied program, followed by an open discussion period, is the highlight of the evening. Donald J. Shank, member of the American Council of Education, talks on "Employed Youth in Washington," while Mrs. Howard Stone Anderson, member of the Race Relations Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches, has chosen for her topic, "Interracial Washington." Dr. Esther C. Brunauer, director of the international department, American Association of University Women, who also is a member of the public affairs committee of the National Board of the YWCA, will conclude the speeches with a talk on "The World We Face." Mrs. John F. Thomas will preside over the panel discussion and open question period.

By the way, the YWCA staff starts the fall season with several new staff members. It is overjoyed that the well-trained social service workers have not deserted the ranks for the glamour of higher salaried industrial jobs.

Here's a bit about the new staff members, so judge for yourself.

Miss Margaret Shreffler, the new Girl Reserve executive, comes to Washington with a wealth of experience and "Y" background. She spent one summer in a Belgian YWCA camp. She has been a Girl Reserve secretary in Detroit, Chicago, and Racine, Wis. This past year she has been a member of the Girl Reserve staff on the National Board of the YWCA. Miss Shreffler will be assisted in her work by Miss Louise Conover, a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, where she majored in sociology, and by Mrs. A. Coburn LeFeber, a graduate of Ohio State in social administration. Both Miss Conover and Mrs. LeFeber have had experience in working with girls in summer camps and Bible schools.

Miss Rose Haynes, who has recently taken over her duties as business and professional secretary, has held similar positions in the Chattanooga and Nashville YWCA's. She left YWCA work to serve a term in business in order to better understand the business girl's viewpoint and to realize more fully her needs. Miss Haynes will be assisted by Mrs. Douglas Mackiernan, jr., a graduate of the University of Maine, who has taught in junior high school and done much volunteer work with young people.

Miss Lillian Stitt, the assistant director of the health education department, comes to us from Oberlin College, where she majored in physical education. She has spent several summers working for the Vermont Church Council, doing rural social work.

Miss Mary Bray is the new secretary of the music department. She is a graduate of Smith College and studied at the Juilliard School of Music under Olga Samaroff. Miss Bray has taught choir, piano, and music appreciation in private schools in Providence, New York City and at the Garrison-Forest School in Baltimore. She has given numerous concerts throughout the New York and New England area.

Club Is Organized

In response to the suggestion of Mrs. Manuel L. Quezon, wife of the President of the Philippines, Filipino women residing in the Washington metropolitan area have organized the Filipino Women's Club of Washington. The organization committee was headed by Mrs. Jaime Hernandez, wife of the Philippine Auditor-General.

The first set of officers are Mrs. Florentino Calabia, president; Mrs. Macario Balco, vice president; Mrs. Solomon V. Arnaldo, secretary, and Mrs. Ismael Mathay, treasurer. Members of the board of directors are Mrs. Eusebio Orense, Mrs. Manuel Adeva, Mrs. Alfredo Gaudiel, Mrs. Jaime Hernandez, Mrs. Mateo Perez, Mrs. Velicio Vera and Miss Remedios C. Vergara.

Monday's Events

Monday's calendar is chock full of interesting places to go and things to do. Potomac Business and Professional Women's Club of Arlington meets 8 p. m. with Mrs. Hugh C. Munro, 614 Nineteenth st. south, Arlington, Va. . . . Bank Women's Club of Washington holds dinner meeting 6:30 p. m. at the Continental Hotel to introduce "bank women" to club members. Miss Mary Craven, president, presides at the closed meeting . . . YWCA, St. Alban's Chapter, meeting 2 p. m. in boardroom. Mr. Eloise Keefer Boell speaks on "Personal Counseling in the YWCA;" board of directors and staff hold fall conference, 5:30 p. m. . . . D. C. League of American Pen Women holds first regular business meeting at 1851 Columbia rd.

Columbia Chapter No. 368, Women of the Moose, meeting last night at the Moose Home, 2200 20th st. nw., completed plans for a new membership drive. October 1 has been set for the opening date and November 12 for the close, according to Mrs. Vava Guice, membership chairman. All new candidates taken in during the drive will be initiated during the "College of Regents" program, November 26.

Bits of This and That . . .

To aid the Third War Loan Drive, the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women will hold a patriotic tea, Sunday afternoon, 3 to 7 o'clock, October 3, at the studio. Mrs. Bertha Shanks Chaney, defense chairman, will act as hostess. Mrs. George C. Gaydash, national art chairman, is in charge of the program, and Mrs. Anna Hurwitz of the Treasury Department will assist at the bond table. At a recent meeting of the group, Mrs. Walter Miles was appointed art chairman of the D. C. branch . . . Mrs. Carrie Kiser was installed president of the Treasury Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, at a recent meeting held at the clubhouse. Mrs. Ethel Beyer took the oath of vice president and Miss Minnie M. Hardy that of secretary. Mrs. Gertrude S. Pierce, department president, and her staff will install officers of the Potomac Unit, No. 40, next Wednesday night, 8:30 o'clock at the Palisades Field House. On October 1, the Victory Unit, No. 4, will be installed at the American Legion Club House. Mrs. Albertine Bradley, is president.

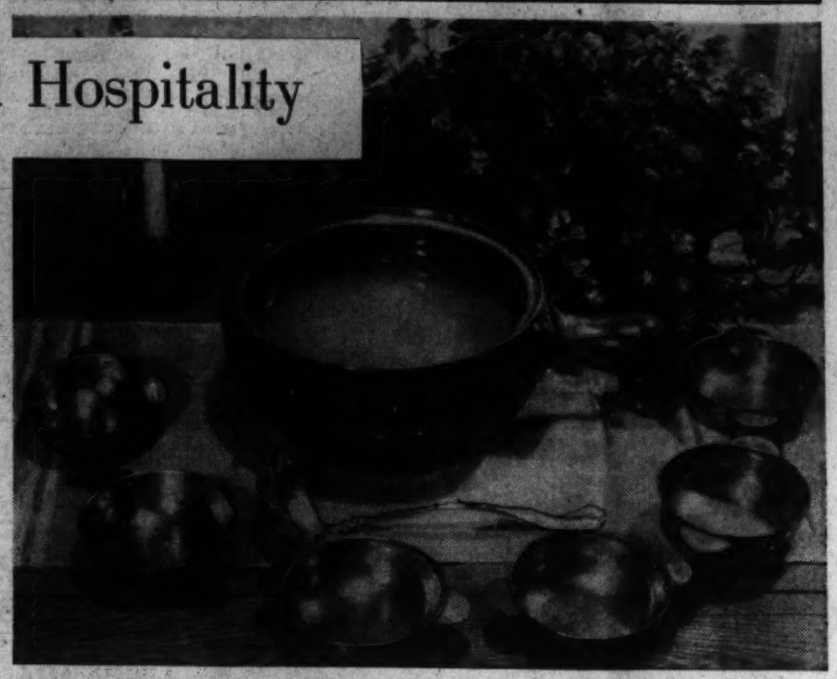
MAKE IT DO . . .

Unrationed Hospitality



By Martha Ellyn

Are you pining for the stuffy, formal dinners of pre-war days? Are you wondering how you can maneuver a company meal with so limited a supply of meat coupons? Well, take some tips from Miss Mary Turner, Home Service Director of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and you can dish up a meal worthy of the most distinguished guests if you use your noggin and her dependable recipes.

A company dinner does not have to consist of a number of courses. If you have been accustomed to serving at least three courses—consomme Florentine, as the starter; mignon of beef Henry IV, the piece de resistance, and Trocadero Lafayette for dessert, then open wide your mind and toss out such notions. Next bring in your best and biggest soup tureen.

Miss Turner has compiled a book which contains recipes for all kinds of delicious soups. She has, of course, kept in mind the availability of foods. So if you keep your hospitality unrationed, and your ration book not completely coupon-shorn, you can "make it do" by simmering one of the stews to perfection according to this home economist's directions.

Several of the recipes contained in the book, "All Kinds of Soups," are given today. But if you want to own this splendid offering of soup recipes, you can obtain it by calling the Home Service Department, Potomac Electric Power Co., NAtional 8800, or by sending a penny postcard requesting the book be sent to you.

Included in this book are recipes for many favorite soups. If you want to know how to make the light soups, such as bouillon and consomme, which usually accompany a substantial meal, and the hearty soups, such as the chowders, thick gumbos, cream soups and purees which are a definite part of a meal—and in some cases a whole meal in themselves—you have the clew now how to get the answer.

You can take your choice which of the hearty soups you want to highlight your menu. Here is a menu which Miss Turner suggests using, which includes Kentucky Burgoo:

Dinner Menu

Kentucky Burgoo
Green Vegetable Salad
Soybean Muffins Butter
Orange Refrigerator Pudding
Coffee

The recipe for the Kentucky Burgoo, as well as several other of Miss Turner's recipes follow:

KENTUCKY BURGOO

Place 1 beef bone, 1 pound stew beef cut in cubes, and 1 disjointed chicken (3 or 4 pounds) in a deep-well cooker with water to cover. Turn to "low" heat and cook for 2 hours, or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken from bones and add 2 potatoes, peeled and diced; 1 large onion, sliced; 1 cup shredded cabbage, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup corn and 1 can tomatoes. Cook until vegetables are tender and add salt and pepper to taste and 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet.

BOUILLABAISSE

Saute 1 chopped onion, 1 sliced leek and 1 crushed clove garlic in ¼ cup olive oil or butter in frying pan over "high" heat until brown. Add 1 cup tomatoes, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, ¼ bay leaf, a pinch of powdered saffron, salt and black pepper. Cook 1 pound steak fish, cut in cubes, and 1 pound scallops or oysters in water to cover until tender. Add to the fried onion mixture. Add 1 pound cooked shrimp and ½ pound lobster meat (each cut into pieces) with ½ cup sherry wine. Thicken with a little flour and cook over "low" heat for 15 minutes. Serve in deep bowls and sprinkle top of each bowl with a little grated American cheese.

YELLOW SPLIT PEA SOUP WITH PIGS FEET

Wash 2 cups yellow split peas and place in deep-well cooker with 2 quarts water, 1 chopped onion, 1 large grated carrot, 3 tablespoons minced celery tops, ½ bay leaf, 4 peppercorns and 2 pigs feet which have been cleaned and split. Bring to boiling point and simmer for several hours, or until peas have cooked soft and meat has fallen from bones (4 to 5 hours). Remove meat and chop. Strain soup. Add meat to soup and season with ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon paprika. Heat and serve with parsley sprinkled on top.

SCOTCH SOUP

Split 2 lamb shanks and brown in 2 tablespoons hot fat. Place in deep-well cooker. Add 8 cups water, 3 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 celery tops, 3 sprigs parsley and 1 bay leaf. Cover and simmer for 2 hours. Cool, strain and chill sufficiently so that excess fat may be skimmed off. Return stock to kettle. Add 1 No. 2 can tomatoes (2½ cups), 1 cup cubed carrots and ¼ cup chopped onion. Bring to boiling point on "high" heat, then slowly add 1 cup uncooked oats. Add meat which has been cut into small pieces and cook over "low" heat for 30 minutes. Add 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and serve hot.

Wanted for 1944 Season

War Food Administration nas set as the 1944 goal 22 million Victory gardens. This is two million more than were planted this year. Conservative estimates place this year's Victory garden harvest at eight million tons of food.

Market Report

Each morning a survey on fresh fruits and vegetables in the Washington wholesale market is made by the War Food Administration. Supplies which were available to retailers up to noon yesterday are given in the following report so that you may have some idea of the products you may find in local grocery stores and markets.

Plentiful—White potatoes, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, squash, mushrooms, apples, limes, lemons and avocados.

Moderate—Cabbage, snap beans, beets, broccoli, turnips, rutabaga, spinach, celery, lima beans, sweet peppers, eggplant, cauliflower and cantaloupes.

Light—Cucumbers, chicory, escarole, carrots, onions, lettuce, radishes, salsify, celery cabbage, leeks, corn, parsnips, garlic, kale, collards, turnip tops, rape, mustard greens, oranges, pears, plums, prunes, grapes, peaches, Persian melons, Cranshaw melons and casabas.

Ration Points

SUGAR—Coupon 14, Book 1, good for 5 pounds through October 31. Stamps 15 and 16, good for 5 pounds each for canning purposes, valid through October 31.

MEATS-FATS—Canned milk, butter, margarine, lard, fats and oils, cheese and canned fish—Red coupons X, Y, Z and brown stamps A and B in War Ration Book No. 3, valid through October 2. Brown stamp C becomes valid tomorrow, good through October 30.

PROCESSED FOODS—Canned and frozen vegetables, fruits, soups, juices, etc.—Blue coupons U, V and W valid through October 20.

GASOLINE — Coupons A-6 good for 3 gallons each, but must last through November 21. Coupons B and C, good for 2½ gallons each, expire according to date indicated in individual books.

FUEL OIL—Coupon 5 good for 10 gallons until September 30. Period 1 coupons in new ration sheets are also valid.

STOVES—All new domestic heating and cooking stoves designed to burn coal, wood or gas were rationed after August 24, 1943. Consumers will make application to their local boards for stove-purchase certificates. No new rationed stoves may be transferred without the surrender of a stove certificate.

SHOES—Coupon 18 extended indefinitely. Airplane stamp No. 1 in War Ration Book No. 3 valid November 1, good indefinitely.

ON CLOTHING CARE

By Ruth Gregory

What's the difference between denier and gauge?

What is finger-pressing?

These are just a couple of the many questions on clothing care that were answered for hundreds of conservation-minded Washington women yesterday. The demonstration, complete with dummy mannequins and charts that carried a visual wallop, was offered in connection with the opening of a new fabric section in one of the stores.

A very bright idea, since the buying and sewing of fabrics is very closely related to the care of same. Just in case you weren't one of the lucky women present yesterday, here are a few of the highlights of the show, which ought to be indelibly impressed upon every woman's consciousness, not only in these war years, but for ever afterward:

LAUNDERING

Whether you're buying fabrics or ready-made garments, you should find out about the content of the cloth. Look for the label—it'll tell you all you need to know. If the material isn't labeled or the salesperson can't tell you, there's always the tumbler test.

The demonstrator pointed this up dramatically with a swatch of red, nonfast fabric which she dipped into a tumbler of lukewarm water. It turned crimson.

Beware of three enemies: (1) washing in too hot water; (2) wringing or twisting of fabrics, and (3) leaving a garment rolled up in a towel to dry (okay to absorb excess moisture, but to be quickly removed and dried naturally).

SWEATERS: (and most woolens) need extra special care. The demonstrator showed how to draw the outline of a sweater on paper before you wash it, and then how to block it down with pins on the outline after it's laundered.

LEATHER GLOVES: Should never be wrung or twisted. When they're dry, "finger-press" them, which means gentle rubbing with thumb and forefinger all over.

STOCKINGS: A very informative demonstration. Lots of women still ask for "3-thread," "4-thread," etc., when they go to stocking counters. It doesn't mean a thing when applied to rayon hosiery.

It's the denier (pronounced "den-yer") and the gauge in rayon hosiery: denier meaning the size and weight of the thread (the higher the denier, the heavier the hose); and gauge being the number of stitches per inch and a half on the machine (39 gauge is coarse-knit, 60 gauge is extremely fine).

If you'll buy stockings according to the wear you give them (measured in terms of denier and gauge), you'll be a lot happier. Buy so-called "de luxe sheers" (50 denier, 51 gauge) for evening wear; "sheers" for daytime wear (75 denier, 45 to 51 gauge); and "service weight" for heavy-duty wear (usually around 100 denier, 42-45 gauge).

To get the most mileage out of rayon hosiery (in addition to careful lukewarm sudsings and thorough rinsing), long-drying is essential (24-48 hours).

IRONING

One of the most widespread domestic tragedies of this rayon era has taken place on the ironing board. Rayon, being made out of cellulose fiber, is susceptible to undue heat—whether it's too-hot water, sun, or iron.

All rayon fabrics should be pressed on the wrong side with a moderately hot iron, using a well-padded ironing board.

The demonstrator has gone now, but she's left behind a stack of very helpful pamphlets, full of all kinds of timely conservation hints. If you'd like to have one of these booklets, we can tell you where they're available. Just call NAtional 4200, Extension 324, between 9 a. m. and 12 p. m.

Earrings for Men

In Elizabethan days, men wore earrings—in one ear. Phenician women pierved their ears up the sides, as well as through the lobes. Grecian girls wore cupids in their ears to attract sweethearts.

In a province in Italy, beaus always brought their intended brides a gitf of diamond earrings and did the ear-piercing themselves with a gold wire attached to ahe earring.

Women Workers Increase

More than four-fifths of the net addition of 1,833,000 to the working force in American factories from April, 1942, to June, 1943, were women, the United States Department of Labor reports. Nearly two million women were engaged in June in the production of basic war materials, actually turning out the planes and other implements of war. Almost as many — 1,454,500—were in textile, apparel and leather industries where uniforms, tents and other equipment are produced. In the food industries, women numbered 262,100.

SHOP AND RUN

For all the women who "live in a shoe" Here's a way to "Make-it-Do"

Trees in Your Shoes

Do your shoes turn up at the toes and get out of shape after a little wear? Most shoes will unless you put shoe trees in them after you take them off. Trees prevent the top of your shoes from sagging in and keep them in their natural shape. We've found a good but inexpensive wooden pair that come in small, medium and large, with a spring attachment to adjust to your size shoe. $1 a pair.

For a Rainy Day—

An unexpected shower may do more than spoil your wave—it may ruin your shoes! But not if you're prepared with these toe rubbers that come in a suede cloth kit. You can roll them up and carry them in your purse. These are prewar models made of real rubber. $1.25.

Put Them on Shoe Racks

You spend your shoe coupons wisely—let's take care of our shoes wisely. Keeping them on the floor and under the bed is one of the quickest ways to wear them out. Avoid this by keeping a shoe rack in your closet. We've found one of stained wood that will keep six pairs off the floor and it's good forever. $1.

Cover Them Up

If you're traveling, if you're putting your summer shoes away, keep them in "shoe socks." These are cotton covers made to keep your shoes from ruining other articles that may be packed in with them, and also to keep your shoes from being scratched or collecting dust after you put them away. 25c a pair.

Let's Make a Shoeshine Box!

You can get a nicely finished wicker shoe stand ($1) with a foot rest on top and a space inside to keep all your shoe-shine tools. We've scouted the town and these are the best fillers we could find for your shoe-shine box.

Wax shoe polish—This is one of the finest English waxes; it comes in all colors and you'll be rewarded for the elbow grease involved. 25c.

Preserve and waterproof the leather—with a good leather conditioner (also made in England) that keeps the leather in good condition and also cleans and polishes. It's particularly good for pampering the hard-working leather in riding boots. Incidentally this comes in wonderful leather colors. If you have a handbag and shoes that don't quite match, you can use this leather conditioner which will darken both accessories to the same shade.

Saddle soap—This is another indispensable. We know of none one that you can also use on luggage, handbags, car upholstery, leather coat, etc. Use a damp sponge and lots and lots of soap for the best results.

Add a spot remover—This one is good for shoes, gloves and hats. It doesn't leave a ring. Non-explosive. 15c.

A shoe horn—the most stubborn of shoes will relent if you use this beautiful long plastic shoe horn that comes in pale pastel shades. 25c.

Polishing cloths—Three large polishing cloths made of heavy flannel-like fabric for 35c. You can also get small dauber and polishing brushes of lamb's wool, 19c.

A new footnote—Do the heels of your shoes get scuffed up? Especially handy if you drive a car are these heel protectors. Slip them on over the heels of your shoes (especially good for suede). 75c.

Call NA. 4200, Ext. 324 between 9:00 and 5:30, for further information.

Mending Raincoats

As soon as a tear appears in a rubber raincoat, mend it at once with a piece of raincoat material clipped from inside hem or pocket or some other place not essential for the wear of the coat. Hold the patch in place under the tear with rubber cement. It will be hard to replace these garments during wartime, so keep yours in as good repair as possible.

'Thank Your Lucky Stars' The Ultimate in Musicals

"THANK YOUR LUCKY STARS." Warner Brothers picturization of an original story by Everett Freeman and Arthur Schwartz, adapted to the screen by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank and James V. Kern, costarring Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore, Alexis Smith, Alan Hale and George Tobias, with Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel, Ruth Donnelly, Don Wilson, Willie Best, Henry Armetta, Joyce Reynolds and Spike Jones and His City Slickers. Produced by Mark Hellinger and directed by David Butler. At the Earle Theater.

WHEN YOU "THANK YOUR LUCKY STARS," it would be all right to add a word of gratitude to the Warner Brothers, Producer Mark Hellinger, Director David Butler, Composer Arthur Schwatz and Lyricist Frank Loesser, too.

In the new, star-stuffed musical that opened its first Washington engagement on the screen at the Earle Theater yesterday, they have compiled a sockdolager of an entertainment, addressed wholly to the spirit of frolic, that is more original, tuneful and clever than most of its predecessors rolled into one.

Not only is "Thank Your Lucky Stars" a de luxe, all-star vaudeville show, but it is held together and given a legitimate excuse for being by a "plot" of tenuous, but tough, fiber.

The producers of something to be presented as a huge charity show, called "Cavalcade of Stars," attend an Eddie Cantor broadcast in Hollywood and develop a tremendous yen to have Dinah Shore on their program—but not Cantor. So when they approach Mr. Cantor on the Shore matter, he moves in as chairman of the committee and director and snarls things into a beautiful tangle.

In the meantime, over in Gower Gulch, a shantytown built of discarded movie sets, where Spike Jones and His City Slickers entertain the never-wassers, Joe Simpson, a "great dramatic actor," who drives a sightseeing bus to eat, has a couple of proteges, Tommy Randolph and "Pat" Dixon by name, singer and song writer, respectively, both itching to crack the "Cavalcade." The profession will have none of Mr. Simpson, because he looks too much like that bum, Cantor!

When a band of studio Indians lure Mr. Cantor away from rehearsals on the pretext of making him a "great white father" for the benefit of Life Magazine, and Master Simpson takes his place, things really begin to get thick.

It is this interruption of the bungled rehearsals that permits the producers to slip in their original acts from time to time, and Simpson's masquerade as Cantor that enables them to put on their final big gala. This is how it is that John Garfield is seen with a comic microphone bit, Dinah Shore can sing her songs, Jack Carson and Alan Hale appear in a song-and-dance burlesque, but "Beadin' North," and Ann Sheridan give out with "Love Isn't Born, It's Made."

When the big night finally arrives, Humphrey Bogart steps in for a caricature of himself, Bette Davis sings and dances "They're Either Too Young or Too Old," with jitterburg interpolations; Olivia de Havilland, George Tobias and Ida Lupino clown through a boogie-woogie number; Errol Flynn does a comic song—with somebody else's voice—Dennis Morgan and Joan Leslie as Tommy and Pat, get their chance and Alexis Smith reveals herself as a graceful dancer as well as dramatic actress. Hattie McDaniel, who also can sing, and Willie Best are in there, too, in an all-Negro knockout, entitled "Ice Cold Katie." The whole thing rolls beautifully, moves swiftly and leaves no space for a dull moment. Even Producer Hellinger and Director Butler found a spot for themselves in the early sequences. If they had had a mind to, they could have made two dandy pictures out of the material they have crammed into this one.

Surprises Pile Up

Beyond the measure of any picture of recent vintage, "Thank Your Lucky Stars" is packed with surprises, principally in the department of song and the dance. One would hardly expect Bette Davis to shine as a song-and-dance artiste, but there she is, rivaling Dinah Shore a close second in all-around effectiveness. Ann Sheridan, as a serio-comic torch singer, it comes as less of a shock, but in the cases of John Garfield, De Havilland, Tobias and Lupino, Errol Flynn and Carson and Hale, amazement gathers added momentum. Dennis Morgan and Joan Leslie have demonstrated their musical capabilities before, but I do not recall Alexis Smith as ever having given the impression of being a Yolanda, until now. The tunes are all catchy and the lyrics zippy. A very zestful business.

The story continuity is put over with equal skill. Edward Everett Horton and S. Z. Sakall are the ideal comics for the producers—especially the jowly Mr. Sakall, long recognized as a comedian of the first rank, but never as good as he is here. Cantor, of course, plays both Cantor and Joe Simpson and has an hilarious time with himself—and everybody else. Ribbing himself continually, he introduces a variety of comedy routines that are something, even for him. Then there are Ruth Donnelly, as a nurse in the asylum to which Cantor "escapes;" Don Wilson, as an announcer; Henry Armetta, as a comedy barber, and don't forget Spike Jones and his gang, over there in Gower Gulch.

Owing to the length and abundant diversion of the picture, the stage bill at the Earle this week is short. Eunice Healy, one of the Capital's favorite tapstresses, scores as always, and Tim Herbert, an attenuated comic with a way with him in impersonations, dancing and tomfoolery bowls 'em over. The Roxyettes appear in two of their ne plus ultra routines, with Eileen Ritter singing "Lay Down That Pistol," from the orchestra pit, and "Sunday, Monday or Always," from the stage. The newsreel is the only screen auxiliary of a super-superlative feature that is a flippant first cousin to "Stage Door Canteen."

Palace

"For Whom the Bell Tolls," Paramount's technicolor film version of Ernest Hemingway's exciting book, is now in its second week at Loew's Palace Theater.

The photoplay is distinguished by many fine performances. Katina Paxinou is outstanding as the Gypsy Pilar; Ingrid Bergman as the girl Maria, Akim Tamiroff as Pablo, the guerilla fighter gone soft, and Gary Cooper as the partisan Robert Jordan are superlative.

The book is followed closely, except that the word "fascist" is mentioned only once in the course of the film about fighters of fascism. The scenic investiture is rugged and magnificent, gloriously set off by the color cameras.

Columbia

"Best Foot Forward," now at Loew's Columbia in its third downtown week, is a lavish technicolor picturization of last year's Broadway musical of the same title.

Harry James and His Music Makers, Lucille Ball playing herself, and a troup of young actors, led by Virginia Weidler, Nancy Walker and Tommy Dix, offer 90 minutes of sheer escapism. The plot is slight—a movie star gets an invitation to a high school prom, and, thoughtful of publicity values, accepts, to the surprise and consternation of the senior who invited her.

Harry James' contribution includes "Buckle Down, Winsocki," "Flight of the Bumble Bee," "The Three B's" and "Wish I May."

Star Reporter

Signe Hasso, latest glamour importation from Sweden, currently in C. B. De Mille's "The Story of Dr. Wassell," once interviewed Wendell L. Willkie for a Swedish newspaper.

Metropolitan

The screen version of Lillian Hellman's "Watch on the Rhine" yesterday opened a third downtown week at the Metropolitan theater.

Paul Lukas contributes an excellent performance as the anti-Fscist Kurt Muller, the part which he played on Broadway. Bette Davis plays his wife and the well-balanced cast includes also Geraldine Fitzgerald, George Coulouris, Donald Woods, Henry Daniell, Kurt Katch and Janis Wilson.

The play is concerned, in the words of Kurt's wife, Sara, with "an anti-Fascist who does something about it."

Grant's Records Going to Sea

Hollywood.—Cary Grant's accumulation of popular, classical and semi-classical phonograph records has gone to sea. So have the records once owned by John Garfield, Director Delmer Daves, and others connected with the filming of Warner Bros.' "Destination Tokyo," story of submarine warfare in the South Pacific.

On a submarine, a small portable phonograph, hooked up to the ship's loudspeaker system by the radio operator, invariably known as Sparks, provides the only audible recreation. Consequently, records become a necessity for men in the submarine service.

Grant, Garfield and the rest of the "Destination Tokyo" company, being well aware of this during filming of the picture, not only gave their own records but are now collecting platters from all their friends.

Three of the Score You'll Be Thankin'

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND, GEORGE TOBIAS, IDA LUPINO as they appear in the Warner Brothers' all-stellar production of "Thank Your Lucky Stars," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement as screen feature for the new week at the Earle Theater. All the big names on the Warner lot, with a few borrowed ones added, are conspicuously spotted up and down the length of this luminous film.

HEDDA HOPPER

'March King' a Problem

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 24.—Twentieth Century is having a time with the life of John Philip Sousa. It bought his story but neglected to get the music rights. Be like buying Betty Grable's head and having another studio own her body. Since Gary Cooper has only four pictures lined up, I might just as well suggest another — "Don Quixote," with Sydney Greenstreet as Sancho Panza. It was made once in Russia with Chaliapin. That was years ago and few people saw it. De Wolf Hopper also did it 27 years ago. . . . Since Alice Faye's hit in "Hello, Frisco, Hello," Metro may buy the song "Sally" and base a story on it for Judy Garland. . . . Gilbert Miller well enough to give a luncheon together with Moss Hart, at which 20 of their friends put up $5000 apiece to pay for the cost of Moss' air force show. . . . Fred Allen's friends are begging him not to return to the air—nervous strain is too great. But his business associates are working just as hard to get him to do it.

ALICE FAYE

Come Now! There's a War On

Mitch Leisen gave a special preview for the gals who wanted to play "Lady in the Dark" but didn't do it, so they could tear it apart. There were Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and Ida Lupino. (Ginger Rogers not invited.) Afterward he fed them filet mignon smothered in champagne sauce and all the trimmings . . . It's costing Rise Stevens plenty to play in "Going My Way." She canceled four opera appearances in Buenos Aires. But don't fret—she'll more than make it up when they see the picture . . . Eddie Peabody turned actor again with his banjo, with Pine and Thomas in "Navy Way" at the Great Lakes Training Station.

Politics, Maybe

Now that "This Is the Army" is cleaning up, I wonder if you've stopped to think about the situation of Champion Joe Louis, who could have made $100,000 in one fight for Army Emergency Relief but wasn't allowed to do it. Yet he spent weeks and weeks waiting to do one short sequence in the picture. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" outgrossed "Sergeant York" by a million. Jimmy Cagney got a cut of the profits, which up to date has netted him around half a million. George M. Cohan's estate didn't do badly, either . . . Arthur Schwartz composer, of "Dancing in the Dark," and by his own admission a better composer than Victor Herbert, is no longer producer of "Cover Girl."

Our Honor Guest

Carl Sandburg, poet, was mighty impressed at "How Green Was My Valley," which he saw in a Metro projection room . . . He met Bob Hopkins, who in turn introduced him to Bunny Waters. Bob said "we do big things out here. Bunny's 6 feet 2 and she's going to be a star." Whereupon Mr. Sandburg replied, "Abraham Lincoln was 6 feet 2, and he did pretty well." Bob said "Shucks! She'll make four times as much money as Lincoln ever did" . . . See where Jan Kiepura, who's doing "Merry Widow" in New York, sang our national anthem and United Nations song, honoring Soviet actor Solomon Michoels. Wonder what's become of his autographed photograph of Hitler which used to occupy the place of honor in his living room—but that was before Hitler marched into Poland and took over Kiepura's hotel.

Ain't It the Truth!

Jack Benny wrote Mervyn Leroy from overseas: "We males can't take much credit for going out on these overseas jaunts to entertain. After all, it's the millions of soldiers who are doing the big job. But these gals!—Anna Lee and Winni Shaw work as hard and under the exact conditions that Larry Adler and I do. Never anything but laughs from them, and thty're always ready for more. Not only are they willing, eager and anxious—they're able. With a source of energy that's inspiring. Brother, if I had my way, I'd either lobby for an act of Congress to see that they're awarded medals or I'd strike off a few gold medals and award them myself to our two.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, September 24.

More than 200 soldiers, who had been fighting in the New Guinea jungle, participated in the Red Cross art contest for troops in that corner of the Pacific. Many of the entrants never had painted before. And some of them didn't receive, until three days after the contest was over, the art equipment they needed . . . One soldier, a Pennsylvania miner, decided that despite the lack of equipment, he'd submit a painting. He cut the canvas from his cot, and from the trees he cut the wood for a frame. For his oils he mixed house-paint with oil drained from an aeroplane, and used herb colorings for the shadings.

GYPSY ROSE LEE

Some Republican backers of Dewey and Bricker were expressing disapproval of Wendell Willkie. "The way we see it," they explained, "the trouble with Wendell is that he's trying to be both Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt." . . . Brigadier General Osborn, head of the Army's Special Services, will have a new job, as a deputy director in a more important echelon . . . Paul Kern, the former Civil Service Commissioner whose fight with LaGuardia touched off the Ed Flynn-paving block row, has been inducted into the Army . . . Henry McLemore, the columnist, will be inducted on October 9, reporting to Camp Blanding, Fla. He'll continue his column from camp.

Last week Ernest Lehmitz, of Staten Island, pleaded guilty to being a German spy. Tuesday his sentencing was postponed by Federal Judge Byers—who, in all likelihood, will sentence Lehmitz to a jail term and not death . . . In the meantime Lehmitz's wife has been without funds and unable to support herself. And so, as is typical of our democracy, she is being supported by Government relief funds—the same Government against which her husband spied.

Moss Hart, the playwright, registered at Doctors Hospital under an assumed name, that of his butler, "Charles Mathias." His pose failed because, when the registrar asked: " Mr. Mathias what's the name of your nearest relative?" Hart absent-mindedly answered: "My father, Barnett Hart" . . . Bill Morgan, the upstate leader who announced that he was grooming himself to become Lieutenant-Governor, instead is grooming himself to become Pvt. Morgan. He'll be inducted soon . . . The Gypsy Rose Lee play, "The Naked Genius," will be brought to New York, after revisions are made in the script. This is Gypsy's first play. When she brought it to George S. Kaufman, the director, one of his criticisms was: "You mention a tea party in the second act. That belongs in the first act." Gypsy turned to her secretary, and instructed her: "Transfer the tea party from the second act to the first."

Stefan Haym, the author of "Hostages," the book from which the forthcoming Paramount film was made, now is a private in the Army. The Army recently purchased 50,000 copies of his book for distribution to soldiers overseas . . . At Fort Dix, Private Haym received an overnight pass to New York and was the guest of a colonel attached to his outfit. The colonel took him to dinner at the Ritz, then to a show, and finally to Sardi's. They then returned to camp . . . The next morning Private Haym was placed on landscape detail. His job was to dig a mud hole directly in front of the office of the colonel who had just been his host.

Gen. Robert Johnson, who resigned as head of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, will receive hospital treatment shortly . . . Curt Riess, author of "Underground Europe" and "Total Espionage," has finished a new one, called "The Invasion of Germany"

Wedding Bells to Ring For Chilean Attache

Senorita Marta Fernandez-Lazcano to Be Bride of Air Attache Next Week

Love is in bloom at the Chilean Embassy.

Wing Commander Teodoro Ruiz-Diez, Air Attache of the embassy, and Senorita Marta Fernandez-Lazcano, sister of Senora de Lopez-Larrain, whose husband is Military Attache of the embassy, are telling the happy news to their friends and adding that their wedding will take place October 1.

The romance of pretty Senorita Marta and this charming young bachelor started shortly after Commander Ruiz-Diez arrived here little more than a year ago from Chile. Senorita Fernandez-Lazcano has been in Washington for two years making her home with her brother-in-law and sister.

The bride-to-be, daughter of Senor Jorge Fernandez and Senora de Fernandez, of Concepcion, has elected to have a simple wedding, the ceremony to be held in the Chilean Embassy. Msgr. Raimondi will read the service at 4 o'clock and a reception will follow. A small group of guests have been asked to attend including members of the Chilean Embassy staff and their wives; the Inter-American Defense Commission, a number of U. S. Air Corps officers.

According to Chilean custom the bride and bridegroom will each have two witnesses in addition to their attendants. The Chilean Ambassador, Don Rodolfo Michels, will be godfather for the bridegroom, and Senora de Michels, the godmother. For the bride, her sister, Senora de Lopez-Larrain will serve as godmother, and her brother-in-law, Col. Guillermo Lopez-Larrain, will be the godfather. Witnesses for the bride will be Gen. Oscar Fuentes, head of the Chilean Air Mission, and his aide, Maj. Marcus Lopez-Larrain, who is a brother of Col. Guillermo Lopez-Larrain. Commander Ruiz-Diez's witnesses will be Commander Gonzalez, head of the Chilean Air Mission here, and the Naval Attache of the Chilean Embassy, Capt. Immanuel Holger.

The bridegroom is the son of Senora Ramona Ruiz and the late Senor Ruiz of Santiago, Chile.

Miss Stokes To Be Bride On October 2

St. George's Episcopal Church in Newport, R. I., will be the setting on October 2 for the marriage of Miss Vivian Stokes to Lieut. Stillman Taylor, USNR.

Miss Stokes is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Drummond-Wolff of London and Newport, and Sylvanus Stokes of Annapolis. Lieutenant Taylor is the son of Lieut. Comdr. Henry Taylor, USNR, of New York and Cold Spring Harbor, and Mrs. Taylor. He has been on active duty since 1940 and served with the motor torpedo boats in the Solomons, where he received the Silver Star from Admiral Halsey.

The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Martin Davidson and a reception will follow at the home of Dr. Alexander Hamilton ice.

Miss Stokes has chosen her half-sister, Miss Carolyn Holcombe, and Miss Nadine Szechenyi, daughter of Countess Szechenyi, for maids of honor, and Mrs. George Eustace Paine, jr., for her matron of honor. Other attendants will be Miss Jean Taylor, Mrs. John R. Drexel 3d, Mrs. Francis Clark, Miss Emily Vanderbilt, Miss Patricia Kane O'Connell and Miss Ann Grambrill.

Georgina Drummond-Wolff will be flower girl, and Carter Brown the page. Ensign Walter J. Taylor will be best man for his brother and ushers will include Peter B. Taylor, Lieut. Hugh M. Robinson, Lieut. Charles D. Dickey, jr., Lieut. Richard T. Wharton, Lieut. Clark W. Faulkner, Lieut. Thomas E. Kendell, Lieut. William H. Chisholm and Lieut. Leonard A. Nikoloric.

MISS MARIE NAOMI PEABODY AND LIEUT. FREDERICK G. SMITHSON

who will be Lieutenant and Mrs. Frederick G. Smithson after their wedding on October 2, at an 11 o'clock a. m. service at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament in Chevy Chase. Miss Peabody is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Winthrop Peabody of Chevy Chase, and Lieutenant Smithson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Smithson of Washington. Among the prenuptial parties planned is a luncheon to be given for Miss Peabody on Tuesday at the Shoreham at which Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields will be hostess. Those who will attend will be Miss Aurelia Hutchison, Miss Elizabeth Galliher, Miss Catherine Murphy, Miss Phyllis Rathbun, Miss Mary Louise Wilson, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Adeline Cary and Mrs. Stuart Lyddane.

Down Virginia Way

By Nina Carter Tabb

Of wide interest in Virginia is the announcement of the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Stabler Osburn of Tappahannock, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nell Carter Osburn, to Eugene Blackford Noland, son of Mrs. Fenton Noland of Airwell, Hanover County, Va., and the late Mr. Noland.

Miss Osburn, who formerly lived at Gloucester Court House, where her father was rector of the Episcopal church for a number of years, attended St. Margaret's School in Tappahannock. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Robert Beverley of Blandfield, on the Rappahannock River, and of Fauquier County, and the late Mr. Beverley. Mr. Noland is a graduate of the University of Virginia and is employed by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Phillips have returned to their Middleburg home from a two-week visit to New York. While there, they took their son, Stephen, to St. Paul's School, N. H., where he is starting his first year.

Another first year student at St. Paul's is Mark Hardin, son of Taylor Scott Hardin. His father accompanied him to school and has joined his wife at the home of her mother at Far Hills, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin are expected back at their home, Newstead, near Upperville, this weekend.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Keith and their twin sons, Taylor and Langhorne, have been spending some time with the commander's mother, Mrs. John Keith, at her home in Warrenton. Commander Keith, who has been on duty at Annapolis for the past two years, left a few days ago for the West Coast, where he will receive further orders. Mrs. Keith and their sons will leave Warrenton shortly for Norfolk, where they will spend the winter with her parents.

Before leaving, Commander Keith attended the christening of his niece, litle Maria Byrd Keith, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. James Keith of Fairfax. He was godfather for the baby, and Mrs. Fielder Dudley of Fairfax was the godmother.

Mr. and Mrs. George Butler of New York, who are now living in Washington, are spending the weekend with his brother and sister-in-law, Col. and Mrs. John C. Butler, at their home, Kelvendon Farm, near Rectortown.

Naval Academy To Play Host To Airmen

Annapolis will play host to a group of Latin-American naval fliers today but they will finish their tour of the Naval Academy in time to return this afternoon for a reception to be given in their honor at the Army and Navy Club.

The "after 6" fete this afternoon will be given by the Pan-American Division of the Navy Department, which has arranged a tour of the East Coast for the visiting officers. This group, which arrived by plane yesterday, has recently finished a training course at Corpus Christi, Tex. Our Navy Department some time ago extended to the Latin-American countries an invitation to send some of their young officers to this country for flight training.

The Brazilian group includes Cadet Frederico Clark Nunez, Cadet Jose Durval de Souza e Silva, Cadet Luis Ignacio Luderitz and Cadet Caio Amorin Pontual. From Chile come Capt. Ernesto Romero, Lieut. Alfredo Gomez-Lobo Guevara, Lieut. Rolando Honorato Chaparre, Lieut. Herman Lopez Angulo and Lieut. Robert Parrague.

The Peruvian contingent is made up of ensigns. They include Javier de Cossio Tudela, Jose Barandiaran Novoa, Luis Barandiaran Pagador, Pio Davila Romero, Juan Salaverry Ramos, Enrique Shroth Carlin, Omar Chioino Carranza, Guillermo de la Flor Valle, Jorge Cayo Murrillo and Gambetta Banchero.

These young fliers will go to Baltimore tomorrow and then to New York. They are expected to return to Washington at the end of the week, when they will be entertained by some of their countrymen in the Diplomatic Corps.

De Mauduit-Collins Date For Rites Set

Miss Yolande de Mauduit, daughter of Mrs. Griffin de Mauduit, whose engagement to Maj. James Laughton Collins, jr., son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James Laughton Collins, was recently announced, has selected October 2 as the date of the wedding.

The ceremony will take place at 5:30 in the afternoon at St. John's Church, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother in Cleveland Park.

The maid of honor was to have been Miss Miriam Douglas Scott, daughter of Mrs. Russell Sard; but Miss Scott, now a member of the Red Cross, is at present on duty in North Africa, so there will be no maid of honor.

There will, however, be four bridesmaids, Miss Corinne Ingraham of New York, daughter of the late Judge and Mrs. Phoenix Ingraham; Miss Dorothea Sowers, daughter of Mrs. William F. M. Sowers, and the two sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Agnes Collins and Mrs. Cordy Weart.

Lieut. William Draper Blair will give the bride in marriage and he and Mrs. Blair will entertain for the couple and the wedding attendants at the Chevy Chase Club on the eve of the ceremony.

Purely Personal

Mrs. Joseph E. Davies has gone to Saratoga, N. Y., after spending several days at the Sherry-Netherlands Hotel in New York.

Mrs. T. G. Reamy, wife of Commander Reamy of Alexandria, Va., will leave today for Berkeley, Calif., to visit her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Wildman, for three weeks. Commander Reamy is on duty here in the Bureau of Ships.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McLean of Passaic, N. J., have come to the Capital for a brief visit.

Mrs. Richard L. Farr and her two sons are in Princeton, N. J., where they will spend the winter as the guests of Mrs. Farr's mother, Mrs. John M. Carnochan.

Mrs. John R. McLean is visiting in New York at the Savoy-Plaza.

Mrs. Whitney J. Oates of Princeton, N. J., has arrived in Washington to join her husband, Lieutenant Oates, USMCR, who is now stationed here.

Mrs. Emil Hurja has joined her husband at their residence in Wesley Heights after spending a few weeks in New York and on Long Island.

Mrs. Robert G. Payne is spending a few days in New York at the Hotel Weylin.

Mrs. Witcha McCullough of Huntington, W. Va., has joined her husband here at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Atwill Is Hostess at House-Warming-Birthday Fete

Party Takes Place in Her Georgetown Home; Dancing Follows Buffet Supper

Gold braid glittered by the yard at the gala party given last night by Mrs. Louise Atwill—a fete which, incidentally, chalked up all sorts of honors for one of the highly popular hostesses of Washington.

Marking her birthday and also serving as a "house-warming" in her new residence at 1400 34th st., the fete gathered in a record number of high-ranking Army and Navy officers, diplomats, Capital officials and several visitors from out-of-town. Guests were invited for buffet supper at 8 o'clock. Later there was dancing on the terrace and a special musical program.

"One of the best parties of the season," said Senator Theodore F. Green, who was among those arriving early and staying on for the dance.

The Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins and the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi were ranking guests in a company that, according to the hostess, "started out to be a couple of dozen guests and soon grew to a hundred." Among others on the guest list were Admiral and Mrs. Herbert Howard, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stuart Godfrey, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, the Inspector General of the Army and Mrs. Virgil Peterson, the Quartermaster General and Mrs. E.B. Gregory, Gen. Henry Munnikysen, Col. Don Lowery, Col. Winant Johnston; the leader of the Navy Band, Lieut. Brindler, and Mrs. Brindler; the leader of the Army Air Forces Band, Capt. Alf Heiberg; Maj. John Lundstead, Maj. and Mrs. Hugh L. Parks and Maj. Ralph Jacobson, all of Bolling Field; Lieut. Ralph McBaine, and many other United States Army and Navy officers.

Ambassador Lawrence Steinhardt, United States Envoy to Turkey, who has just returned to Washington, was a special center of attention in the gathering. Still others there included Representative and Mrs. Albert Thomas, Representative and Mrs. Martin Dies, former United States Minister to Canada James H. R. Cromwell, J. Edgar Hoover, Clyde Tolson, former Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Brig. C. L. Lindeman, Counselor of the British Embassy; Capt. Dermott Dinan of the British Purchasing Commission; the assistant leader of the Army Air Forces Band, Staff Sergt. and Mrs. John Barrow; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones of Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Frederick White, Miss Nannie Chase, Mrs. Edward Treglown, Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred duPont; Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Col. Fred Boy, Mrs. Harold Hinton, Lothrop Stoddard, George Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Earle Wild, Fred Heider, Sergt. J. H. Valdrsec, and many more.

Give Supper Party

Canon Chancellor and Mrs. C. W. F. Smith, and Canon Missioner and Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel of Washington Cathedral, entertained the 60 members of the Cathedral staff at a buffet supper last night.

Following supper the movie, "Target for Tonight," was shown.

Virginia Shanklin To Be Married to Lieut W. J. Mooney

MISS SHANKLIN

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Shanklin of Occoquan, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Doyle Shanklin, to Lieut. William J. Mooney, Army of the United States, son of Charles Mooney of Edenton, N. C.

Miss Shanklin attended Mary Washington College and was a member of Alpha Phi Sigma. Lieut. Mooney attended Lees-McRae College. He is now stationed at Camp Adai, Oreg.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Rep., Mrs. Maloney Have Guests

Representative and Mrs. Paul H. Maloney have as their guests at their Wardman Park Hotel apartment their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Paul H. Maloney, jr., and her daughter Colleen. Mrs. Maloney, jr., and Colleen left New Orleans about a week ago for New York City, where they have been for several days prior to coming to Washington to register Colleen at Holton-Arms School, where she will attend classes this year.

Luncheon Here Today to Honor Senora de Abelli

There will be reminiscences in the air at the luncheon today at the Statler Hotel, at which the Bolivian Commercial Counselor, Rene Ballivian, and Senora de Ballivian will be hosts.

Reason for the "do you remember" conversation will be the spotlighted guest, Senora Crystal de Abelli, wife of the former Bolivian Minister, who served as his country's representative to the United States in 1931-1932. Before her marriage Senora de Abelli was Miss Crystal Hyland of Portland, Oreg. She has just arrived from a visit to the West Coast. Her husband, who served as commissioner to the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915, is now in Bolivia.

Mrs. Miner Visits Her Mother Here

Honored at a round of informal fetes is Mrs. Worthington Miner, who is here as the house guest of her mother, Mrs. Leonore B. Fuller.

The former Miss Frances Fuller is accompanied by her daughters, Margaret and Mary Elizabeth. Her son Peter is at Kent School. Mrs. Miner and her husband, who have lived in Kent, Conn., for the last two years, plan to make their home in New York this winter and will be occasional visitors to Washington.

Mrs. Miner is a niece of the Director and Chairman of the Economic Stabilization Board and Mrs. James F. Byrnes.

Jews to Observe Year of 5704 At Rituals Starting Wednesday

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Local Jewish devout will solemnly trek to orthodox synagogues and reformed temple Wednesday at sundown to begin the observance of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year 5704.

SILVERSTONE

They will pray for the blessings of a worship-free land, and for their persecuted brethren abroad, whose hopes of liberation have been buoyed by United Nations' victories.

Wallace to Speak

Vice President Henry A. Wallace is expected to bring a radio message to Jewish servicemen and servicewomen throughout the world Wednesday at 6:15 p. m. over WTOP.

Simple Maariv services will be observed Wednesday evening, and the New Year formally ushered in Thursday morning with the traditional blowing of 30 blasts of the ram's horn by cantors, summoning the faithful to penitence and reflection.

Rosh Hashanah will be celebrated for two days in orthodox synagogues, and for one day in the Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation.

Period of Penitence

Rosh Hashanah begins a 10-day period of penitence, climaxed by the sacred 24-hour period of Yom Kippur—Day of Atonement—beginning at sundown October 8.

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, spiritual leader of Adas Israel Congregation, 6th and I sts. nw., will preach Thursday morning on "The Place of Zion in American Judaism." His Friday themes will be "The Place of Israel in Postwar America," and "Kol Nidre in the Foxholes." His Saturday sermon will be "The Quest for Atonement."

RABBI METZ

Rabbi Harry Silverstone will preach at Tifereth Israel Synagogue, 14th and Euclid sts. nw., Thursday at 8:30 a. m. on "Facing a New World," and Friday at 8:30 a. m. on "Solving the Jewish Problem." Other services will be Wednesday and Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Cantor Charles Intrater will conduct services.

Arlington Services

The Arlington Jewish Community Center, whose headquarters at 3150 Wilson blvd. in Arlington, are too small for the expected attendance at its High Holy Day services, has been invited by the Rev. H. P. Myers, minister of the Clarendon Methodist Church, to hold these services in the community room of his church at 6th and North Irving sts. Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur services will be conducted by Rabbi Samuel H. Berkowitz, recently appointed spiritual leader of the Arlington Jewish Community Center. Tickets may be obtained at the headquarters of the Arlington Jewish Community Center, 3150 Wilson blvd. (Room 204), September 27 and 28, from 8:30 to 10 p. m.

BERKOWITZ

The Arlington Jewish Community Center is a newly formed organization designed to fulfill the religious, cultural and social needs of every Jewish adult and child in the Arlington community. Rabbi Samuel H. Berkowitz, who has been appointed to organize and direct its program for the year, is well fitted for his duties by his training and experience which are modern and progressive. Rabbi Berkowitz has degrees from Boston University and the Hebrew Teachers College of Boston, and he received his rabbinical training at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York City. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year at Boston University.

Harold C. Wilkenfeld is president of the Jewish Community Center.

Rosh Hashanah services will be held Wednesday and Thursday at 6:30 p. m.; Thursday at 8 a. m. and Friday at 8:30 a. m. at B'nai Jacob Temple, 2504 Naylor Road se., of which Rabbi Morris L. Balir is spiritual leader. Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) rites will be October 8 at 6:25 p. m. and October 9 at 8 a. m., with Yiskor (memorial services) at 11:30 a. m.

Mothers Club to Dine

The Mothers Club of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, will hold a supper meeting Tuesday at 7 p. m., followed by an address by the Rev. L. Ralph Tabor, pastor, on "The Christian Family Lives Its Religion."

Hebrew Union College Head To Speak Here

Rabbi Julius Morgenstern, president of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio, will assist Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation, in conducting High Holy Day services here.

RABBI GERSTENFELD

Through the courtesy of Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor, the facilities of First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., again will be available for additional services of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Rabbi Morgenstern will preach Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Temple, 822 8th st. nw., on "Why?" while at the same hour Rabbi Gerstenfeld will speak at First Church on "The Lord Reigneth."

Rabbi Gerstenfeld will preach Thursday at 10:30 a. m. at the Temple on "The Lord Reigneth," and Rabbi Morgenstern will speak at the same hour at First Church on "Why?"

The Washington Hebrew Congregation will register new children in its religious school tomorrow at the Temple beginning at 10 a. m. Children from the age of 5 can be enrolled. The course lasts for 10 years beyond the kindergarten, with the confirmation of children in their sixteenth year.

Jewish families living in Arlington and Chevy Chase and other suburbs are requested to enroll their children at the temple tomorrow as this will make possible a transportation plan whereby their children will be brought to the school in special car-pools organized by the parents.

Rally Day at Memorial

The Rev. Philip S. Widenhouse, secretary of the Federation of Churches' Commission on Survey and Church Planning, will address rally day services tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. at Memorial United Brethren Church.

Observance Emphasizes Duty Of Sunday Schools at Present

"Is the child in danger of becoming the forgotten person?" is the question Dr. F. E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, raises in connection with Religious Education Week which will be observed nationally by all denominations from tomorrow until Sunday, October 3.

"With many fathers in service, with the possibility of many more being called, with many unable to enjoy family life due to irregular shifts of work and long overtime hours, and with a greater percentage of mothers out of the home than ever before in our Nation's history," he declared, "we in the churches need to give not only increased time to the child, but restudy our churches' program for children.

"The church school must also reach out as never before into the family life of the community. What the religious education forces did yesterday was good, but not good enough for today.

"It's not only the child, however, which needs this added attention, but the young people and adults also are consciously or unconsciously clamoring for light and direction in this confused age.

"A terrific responsibility is placed on the shoulders of the religious education leaders in our churches. They have a shortage of teachers and increased demands for service. The call today goes out to those people in our Capital City who are equipped for such service but have not as yet volunteered their services. The home front of Christian education needs enlisted people."

Sunday Schools Hold Rally Day Tomorrow

Rally Day—marking the opening of fall and winter activities in Sunday schools—will be celebrated by practically all Protestant denominations tomorrow with special programs. The observance will be linked with the launching of Religious Education Week. (See sermon column for Rally Day notes.)

Zion Baptist Endeavor Body Is 50 Years Old

The Christian Endeavor Society of Zion Baptist Church, F st. between 3d and 4th sts. sw., one of the oldest Endeavor groups in the city, will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary tomorrow and Monday at 8 p. m.

The society was organized in September, 1893, by Dr. C. W. Childs, a graduate of Howard University, who was aided by the Rev. William James Howard, the pastor of the church, and by other members.

The society grew rapidly and soon became one of the largest organizations of young people in the city.

A Junior Society was organized within the first year and an Intermediate Society many years later. All three societies are active at the present time.

Dr. Stanley B. Vandersall, general secretary of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, will be the principal speaker each evening when greetings will be brought from visiting endeavorers. There will be special music on Sunday evening and a social hour on Monday evening.

Mrs. S. T. Henson is anniversary chairman; Hobert E. Anderson, society president, and the Rev. A. J. Edwards, pastor.

Religious Series Theme

The Hamline Methodist young adults tomorrow at 8 p. m. will start a six weeks' series of discussions on "World Religions," with "The Religion of the Chinese" as the opening topic and Dr. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, as initial speaker.

Australian Chaplain Flies To Visit Aces

By Henry Bateson
With British Eighth Army

Squadron Leader Fred McKay has charge of one of the largest dioceses in the world. This lean, brown former clergyman, who was associated with flying as the doctor of the Australian Inland Mission, every month flys thousands of miles visiting his scattered parishioners—men of the Royal Australian Air Force.

He was appointed chaplain to the air forces in this area early this year, and at present operates from Cairo in the Middle East to as far afield as North Africa. Already in the few months he has been here he has visited almost every air force station where Australians are operating.

"I am now on my airway to one of three Australian stations I have not yet visited," he said when I met him on a North African airfield waiting for his plane to depart.

"I expect to visit the other two units in the immediate future. I am distributing comforts to all Australians scattered throughout this area."

Essentially a man approachable and with quiet understanding of problems confronting Australians serving in this theater, McKay is doing a remarkable job, and is deservedly one of the most popular padres here. Before coming to the Mediterranean, after leaving Australia at the beginning of this year, he served for two months as chaplain to two Australian squadrons based in England.

Capital Store Sales Up 21% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington department store sales scored one of their best gains of the year in the week ended September 18, rising 21 per cent above volume for the corresponding 1942 period.

The week's sales in the entire Fifth Reserve District likewise showed a substantial increase, being 25 per cent heavier, according to the weekly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

For the four weeks ended September 18, the seven reporting Washington stores showed a sales gain of 4 per cent. The increase for the entire reserve district was 7 per cent in this period.

Nationally, slight gains in retail trade throughout the country over both last year and last week were reported yesterday by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. The estimated increase was 5 to 8 per cent above 1942.

Although many stores did not experience as large an increase in turnover as in previous years due to voluntary curtailmnt of sales events in September, consumer interest continued high in fall and early holiday merchandise.

A tight supply and delivery situation prevailed in wholesale markets, causing most buyers to place orders for spring lines with caution.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Gas Firm Reports August Loss

The Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported a seasonal net loss of $59,766 in August, against a deficit of $50,800 in the same month last year.

Gross operating revenues of $589,561 were $8,693 more than last year's, while operating expenses increased $16,635.

Net income for the first eight months this year was $982,266, an increase of $208,628 over the same 1942 period. Operating revenues of $8,027,654 were $724,989 more than in the same period last year, while operating expenses (including depreciation and taxes) gained $480,452.

Meters in service in the District of Columbia totaled 186,074 at the end of August, compared with 182,131 last year. Gas sales to local customers totaled 658,159 M cubic feet in August, compared with 676,438 M cubic feet last year.

Mortgage Bankers Elect

Harold G. Woodruff, Detroit, yesterday was elected president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. He succeeds Charles A. Mullenix, Cleveland.

Regional vice presidents elected include George B. Underwood, Irvington, N. J., Eastern region; Edward F. Lambrecht, Detroit, Northeast central region; Ward J. Gauntlett, Chicago, Northwest central region; R. O. Deming, jr., Oswego, Kans., South central region; J. C. McGee, Jackson, Miss., Southeast central region, and C. W. Mead, Omaha, Rocky Mountain region.

Governors elected included G. Calver Bowie, Washington.

Charles T. Stewart, Washington, director of the Urban Land Institute, suggested that land in blighted c[illegible] devaluated through Federal aid and then redeveloped.

Assets Set New Record

Combined assets of the 25 associations comprising the District of Columbia Building and Loan League reached a new high of $189,233,934 as of August 31, it was reported yesterday by Secretary W. Willson Camp. This was a gain of $11,979,666 over the same time last year.

Commenting on the combined balance sheet, Mr. Camp said:

"Share money from investing members continued to rise, up $15,940,599 during the year to $171,111,139 while holdings of real estate loans declined slightly, $163,679,407 as compared to $165,218,931 in 1942.

"Cash on hand was listed at $14,066,305, up over $7,000,000 from last year while investments in U. S. Bonds soared sharply to $8,392,835. This item will reflect an even greater rise when the figures for September are compiled, as all groups bought heavily of the Third War Loan for their own account.

"Reserves and undivided profits also reached new highs, climbing from $14,549,510 last year to $16,252,250. Borrowed money as expected dropped all the way from $4,956,700 in 1942 to less than $361,000. Marked activity was noted in the amount of money advanced for construction, new homes and other mortgage loans, August being one of the best months experienced thus far. The statement indicated that total transactions handled amounted to more than $4,333,556, a gain of over half million as against last August."

Kefauver at Parley

Clarence E. Kefauver, executive vice president of the Columbia Federal Savings and Loan Association is among the 27 managers of associations from New England to California who met this week in Chicago to make recommendations for the development of the savings and loan mortgage plan so that home ownership may be easier after the war.

Newspaper Boosts Price

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Toledo Blade announced today beginning Monday the paper will sell for 4 cents a copy instead of 3. The announcement cited a 16 per cent increase in the price of newsprint during the last six months and other mounting costs, including wages.

Allocation Of Retail Goods May Be Asked

The Commerce Department made public last night a report asserting "some Governmental action may become necessary" to solve the problem of allocating scarce goods among retail stores.

Although asserting most manufacturers and wholesalers are attempting to be fair, the report said a survey disclosed new customers, boom areas and firms cut off from normal supply sources have not received adequate consideration.

Six-Point Proposal

Government action could be taken, the report said, through:

1. Sponsorship of joint agreements for voluntary cooperation.

2. Extension of consumer rationing.

3. Greater utilization of price control machinery.

4. Implementation of the existing Governmental statement of policy on allocation (recommendings, in general, that allocations be made in proportion to 1942 purchases, with adjustments to care for population moves and dealers abandoned by other suppliers).

5. Regulation of allocation in selected trades, with voluntary participation by retailers, or

6. A general mandatory allocation order.

The report said most manufacturers and wholesalers reported an allocation problem and the need of some plan to solve it. Of present methods, it said the most common were allocation direct to customers in proportion to past purchases, apportionment of scarce items to salesmen on the basis of their past sales, favoring old customers and selling all buyers an equal amount of individual items.

Inventories Declining

Only two manufacturers and four wholesalers reported a primary principle of favoring larger customers.

The department said the survey grew out of a request to the Office of Price Administration by Chairman Murray (Democrat) of Montana of the Senate Small Business Committee.

Sales by general merchandise stores in the first half of 1943 were at a record annual rate of 10 billion dollars, the department also reported yesterday. It added, however, that 72 per cent of the sales gain since 1939 is due to higher prices rather than larger quantity or better quality of goods.

General merchandise stores are those carrying broad lines of consumer goods as distinguished from stores with specific lines such as furs, shoes, or food.

Citing declining inventories, the department said further sales gains would be restricted by the limited availability of new supplies.

Some Extra Gas Users Not Sharing Cars

Evidence that extra gas rations for car sharers still are carrying some drivers without passengers to and from work was revealed yesterday by the District Traffic Department.

About 30 per cent of all A, B, and C car drivers were reported carrying no passengers during rush hours. Traffic department spotters made the survey from 7 key points, including Highway and Memorial bridges, September 7-15.

However, the spotters said cars contained an average of 2.46 persons each, slightly more than the July average of a similar survey, 2.14.

A meeting of 150 defense traffic officers who are charged with working out share-car plans and certifying drivers for extra rations, will take place in this connection on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the board room of the District Building, the department announced.

Commissioner John Russell Young, originator of the District car-sharing plan, one of the first set up in the Nation, will address the meeting and Director of Traffic William A Van Duzer will preside. Local and national representatives of OPA will attend the meeting, which is being sponsored by the regional committee of the Office of Defense Transportation.

On display for the first time, Tuesday, will be a sample of a zone map, showing car routes and zones worked out by the Traffic Department for use within the 150 local defense transportation committees in arranging car sharing.

One Forfeits $50, Another Is Fined On Dirt Charges

A grocer forfeited $50 and a restaurant owner was fined $50 in Municipal Court yesterday on charges of violating health ordinances.

Bernie Seigel, operator of a grocery store at 2007 14th st. nw., forfeited $50 when he failed to appear to answer charges of having three bushel baskets of decomposed horsemeat and bones near a meat block, dirty windows, decayed vegetables in a display window, many blowflies, and garbage and trash in a rear yard.

John Karayianis, operator of the Goodeats Restaurant at 310 9th st. nw., was fined by Judge Armond W. Scott who found him guilty of having dirty floors with rat holes, dirty shelves, walls, tables, windows, counters, no screens in windows, flies in the dining room, vermin running over utensils, and no soap or towels at the wash basin.

Brahms Interpretation Holds Coolidge Foundation Audience

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents on Friday night the fourth in a series of eight concerts devoted to the instrumental chamber music of Johannes Brahms. Artists: The Coolidge Quartet (William Kroll, David Gillet, Jasha Veissi and Naoum Benditzki), Carlton Cooley, viola, and Sterling Hunkins, violoncello. Program: String Sextet in G major, Op. 36; String Quartet in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1; String Sextet in B flat major, Op. 18.

Last evening's concert in Coolidge Auditorium by the Coolidge Quartet and two assisting artists, Carlton Cooley and Stanley Hunking, reached the half-way mark in the traverse of the instrumental chamber music of Brahms, and was enjoyed by one of the largest audiences thus far assembled for the series. It will always be puzzling why one program in a cycle of this kind should be more attractive to the public than another, particularly in the case of a composer like Brahms, whose music is so uniform in quality and in intellectual content. Yet on this occasion there seemed to be a special magnetic pull in the three works for strings: the B flat major and G major Sextets and the C minor Quartet.

BROWN

The listeners were certainly rewarded for their journey to Capitol Hill, for William Kroll and his associates were in fine fettle and played excellently. Their technical work was of the first order, and their unanimity in the shading of emotional moods made the readings stimulating and full of interest.

One was particularly struck by the dashing vivacity and the irresistible brio of the last two movements of the B flat major Sextet.

This program was again concerned largely with the younger Brahms, for the B flat major Sextet was written at 27 years of age, the G major Sextet at 32 and the C minor Quartet at 40. But the early and the late Brahms are much the same, the principal change being a slowing down of vitality without an alteration in style. From the beginning, even in his ardently romantic phase, he was always a logician in his writing, his respect for form keeping his poetic fancy in check. Even in his lieder, where melodies are not developed, the logic of proportion is maintained. In his larger works, a theme meant for him an idea to be thought out, a subject to be discussed in all its aspects.

It is the element of logic in Brahms that retarded the general appreciation of his music, and he still remains unintelligible to those who do not like his manner of expression. He made no concessions to gain popularity, and kept his eyes on the goal of artistic perfection. This was not because he scorned so-called popular taste, for he was ever devoted to folk music, and one of his characteristics is the combination of folk-like melodies with complexities of technical treatment.

Oust Cox As Probe Head, FCC Aide Asks

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Federal Communications Commissioner Clifford J. Durr yesterday asked Speaker Rayburn (Democrat) of Texas, to present to the House a petition for removal of Representative Cox (Democrat) of Georgia, as chairman of a special committee investigating the FCC.

In a letter to Rayburn, Commissioner Durr recalled that his petition had brought no action from the House Judiciary Committee to which it was referred four months ago.

Not Familiar With Rules

"I am not familiar with the rules of the House," Durr wrote, "but certainly there must be some method by which my petition can be formally brought to its attention.

"The first amendment to the Constitution gives to every citizen the right to petition his Congress for a redress of grievances. Without regard to the thoughts of any individual as to the merits of any petition filed in the exercise of this inalienable right, the absence of procedures for bringing such a petition before Congress would make the right itself completely meaningless."

"Bias" Charged

Durr said he had asked that Rayburn grant him a personal hearing to furnish proof of the complaints in his petition, and that none had been granted. He also sent a copy of the letter of Chairman Sumners (Democrat) of Texas, saying that his Judiciary Committee had "no jurisdiction and no responsibility as a committee' to act on the petition.

"I cannot believe that the House," Durr added, "with full knowledge of the facts set forth in my petition would indorse Congressman Cox as a suitable person to serve as chairman or even as a member of the (investigating) committee."

Rabies Danger Is Termed Scare

The Humane Education Society of Washington last night at the Lee Sheraton Hotel heard an address by C. E. Harbison, dog expert and magazine writer on the subject of dob rabies and its incidence in human beings.

"The rabies scare is overdone," Harbison declared, pointing out that "in the 10 years from 1931 to 1940 no case of rabies in humans was reported in Washington, Maryland or Virginia." He expressed himself strongly opposed to any suggestion of mass inoculation of dogs against the disease, terming it "completely unnecessary."

W. D. Hoover, D. C. Banker, Is Dead at 79

William D. Hoover, 79, chairman of the board of the National Savings & Trust Co. and long identified in local banking circles, died yesterday at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. He made his home here at the La Salle Apartments.

Born in this city, October 6, 1864, the son of A. M. and Harriet (Sims) Hoover, he was a graduate of Washington High school, Emerson Institute and Georgetown University Law Schools, holding bachelor and master of law degrees from the latter.

After being admitted to the District bar, he decided not to enter private practice but to use his legal knowledge in service of institutions with which he has been connected. He was for five years vice president and a director of Real Estate Title Insurance Co. and in 1902, came to National Savings & Trust Co., as attorney and trust officer. He was elected president of the trust company in 1909 and served as its chief executive until 1934, when he was named chairman of the board of directors, which position he held until his death.

Besides his directorship with the trust company, he was a director of Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co., Real Estate and Columbia Title Insurance Co.'s and Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation. He was a member of the Lawyers, University and Chevy Chase Clubs, having served on the governing boards of the two last named organizations. He was also a thirty-third degree Mason and a member of the Episcopal Church.

Two children survive, Mrs. Eleanor S. Landstreet, Huntington, W. Va., and Maj. Reeve Hoover, this city.

WAC Will Be Bride Of Soldier Tomorrow

A1 all-military wedding will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the Memorial Chapel at the Army Medical Center, when Pfc. Eugene Sullivan arrives from Moses Lake, Washington State, to marry WAC Pvt. Alice Cecelia Cummins of Lyndhurst, N. J.

The Rev. Neil P. McManus, S. J., Catholic chaplain at Walter Reed Hospital, will officiate at the ceremony, which will be attended by parents of the bride and bridegroom and 16 WACS and servicemen stationed at the center, where Private Cummings is assigned.

Body of Woman Found Under Span Identified

The body of a woman found beneath Taft Bridge Thursday night was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Helen Margaret Beattie, 50, of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., and a coroner's certificate of suicide was issued.

Mrs. Beattie, a Treasury Department clerk since 1918, was the wife of Joseph G. Beattie, an inspector at the Navy Yard. The husband was unable to advance any cause for his wife's act, police said. She left the apartment about 8 p. m. Thursday, saying she was going after some ice cream.

Woman Gets 7 to 21 Months For War Allotment Forgery

Nella D. Turner, 21, a waitress of 2812 Wisconsin ave. nw., was sentenced in District Court yesterday to 7 to 21 months' imprisonment after she pleaded guilty to forgery and uttering of a $250 War Department allotment check she admitted stealing from Mrs. Mary Ellen Flagg of 415 2d st. ne.

On a second charge, involving the raising of a $3.20 telephone refund check to $80.20, she was sentenced to serve 5 to 15 months, the sentences to run concurrently.

When Miss Turner's attorney pleaded that she be given probation, Justice James M. Proctor showed records indicating she had lived in adultery with an Army private, and bore an illegitimate child, sold for $300 to another family which adopted it.

James A. Barnes, Negro, 36, of 132 Pierce st. nw., was sentenced to one to three years in jail for housebreaking and larceny of $16.90 on August 22, 1943. Barnes, who was captured on a fire escape of the building he had entered at 48 H st. ne., has a criminal record dating back to 1903.

Two 18-year-old Negroes were given 10 to 30 month jail sentences for a pocketbook snatching from an elderly woman from whom they took $66. The youths are Russell L. Kelly of 426 Florida ave. nw., and Phillip L. Harris of 1113 4th st. nw.

U. S. to Spend 70 Million on Tire Expansion

Rubber Director Bradley Dewey announced yesterday about 70-million dollars will be spent to expand tire fabricating facilities to meet fast increasing production of synthetic rubber.

Dewey said an expenditure of 95 million dollars was originally planned, but effective cooperation of labor-management and the return of plants formerly used for ordnance has made large expansion unnecessary.

The rubber director also disclosed Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production Board, had approved plant expansions in Akron and Los Angeles, despite labor shortage in those areas. These additional facilities plus the construction of two small plants are expected to meet present tire fabrication needs.

Sites of the new plants have not yet been chosen, Dewey said, but none would be built in Akron or Los Angeles where efforts will be directed to expansion of existing plants and installations.

Dewey also announced a realignment of personnel, stepping up several top officials to new posts. Among those given new posts were L. D. Tompkins of Wilton, Conn., who was named deputy rubber director. Tompkins has been in charge of the operations division which he will continue to direct.

Funeral Services To Be Held Today For W. A. Lusby

Funeral services for William A. Lusby, 80, of 3725 Jenifer st. nw., will be held at the Blessed Sacrament Church, where requiem mass will be sung today at 9 a. m. Mr. Lusby died at his home on Wednesday. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

He was a native of Washington and was superintendent of the Parker-Bridget Men's Clothing Co. until it went out of business 10 years ago.

He is survived by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clara M. Lusby and four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Services Set Today for Miss Prettyman

Services for Miss Lydia Forrest Prettyman, 70, of Rockville, Md., who died Thursday, will be held at the home today at 3:30 p. m. with interment in Rockville Union Cemetery.

The Rev. John W. Rosenberger, pastor of the Rockville Methodist Church, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. Frank A. Tyler, DD, of Rockville, former pastor of the church.

Miss Prettyman, who for 34 years was a clerk and a deputy in the office of the registrar of wills for Montgomery County, was the daughter of the late E. Barrett and Lydia Forrest Prettyman. She was a native of Rockville and lived there all her life with the exception of 10 years she spent in Baltimore. She retired three years ago.

She was for years a member of the Rockville Inquiry Club and an active member of the Rockville Methodist Church. She was a teacher in the Sunday School and for a short time was a public school teacher.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Eliza Kilgour and Mrs. Anna H. Magruder, and a brother, the Rev. Forrest J. Prettyman, former chaplain of the United States Senate, all of Rockville; three nephews, E. Barrett Prettyman, Kenwood, Md.; William F. Prettyman, Rockville, and Charles W. Prettyman, Silver Spring; two nieces, Mrs. Edith P. White, Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Martha P. Jourolomon, Nashville, Tenn.; 11 great-nieces and nephews and one great-great-niece.

Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

FIRST I WENT TO OUR REGULAR BUTCHER. NOT A SCRAP OF MEAT IN THE SHOP. THEN I TRIED EVERY OTHER SHOP IN TOWN. NO MEAT ANYWHERE. SO, I TOOK THE BUS TO MILDEW CENTER AND COMBED ALL THE SHOPS THERE. NO MEAT. ON THE WAY HOME THE BUS STOPPED AT MILKWEED CORNERS WHERE THERE WAS A DINKY LITTLE SHOP. I GOT OFF. AND WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE I FOUND IN THAT TINY SHOP? THREE LAMB CHOPS! LOOK! THERE THEY ARE!

I Must Find an Apartment or Leave Washington!

I'm working for an important Govt. War Agency—I like my work (even though I came 1,000 miles out of retirement, giving up fishing and golf), but unless I can find a nice, cheerfully furnished apartment, preferably with 2 bedrooms (or a small furnished home), my wife, who has grown used to me after 33 years, threatens to move to Reno. I love my wife more than my boss, however. I'll pay $100 to $150 per month to keep them both happy.

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

JOE PALOOKA — Wise Zahariye — By Ham Fisher

WHERE IS THE AMERICAN, NADA?
I MADE HIM GO BACK IN BED. HE MUST REST.
YOU ARE VERY FOND OF HIM, NADA. I HAVE NOTICED IT THESE LAST FEW DAYS. YOU HAVE GOTTEN SHEEP'S EYES.
YOU ARE INDEED MAD, ZAHARIYE. LIVING ALONE WITH SHEEP MAKES ALL SHEPHERDS SILLY IN TIME.
YOU NEED A MAN, AND ONE SUCH AS HE. YOU ARE A PERFECT WOMAN. HE IS YOUR EQUAL. HE IS A MAN FROM STEAMBOAT SPRINGS—AND HAS A FINE CHARACTER.
GO AWAY. I AM VOWED TO KILL. I HAVE NO TIME TO THINK OF FOOLISHNESS. BRRAHHH!
IT IS GOOD. THE CHILD IS IN LOVE. SHE CANNOT FOOL OLD ZAHARIYE.

JANE ARDEN — Jane Begins to Wonder — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

IF YOU'D GET THAT BIG A KICK OUT OF IT, I WANT TO TAKE YOU THERE
I NEVER DREAMED I'D EVER GO TO SUCH A WONDERFUL PLACE AS THE RITZ—I THOUGHT YOU WERE JUST JOKING—
LUNCHEON AT THE RITZ— SHE'S DOING ALL RIGHT
YESTERDAY A POOR CATERPILLAR, TODAY A DAZZLING BUTTERFLY—HAVE WE BEEN SOLD A BILL OF GOODS?
YOU'RE THE MOST WONDERFUL MAN I EVER KNEW, MR. STUN—IT'S LIKE HAVING A FAIRY GOD-FATHER—ONLY BETTER!
WHY, MY DEAR GIRL—

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

SOON WE WILL HEAR A BULLETIN CONCERNING THE DESTRUCTION OF THE SILVERGATE BRIDGE BY SUPERMAN!
THE NERVE!
WHAT A FOOL SUPERMAN IS! I TOLD HIM THE FUTURE OF THE COUNTRY DEPENDED ON HIS DESTROYING THAT BRIDGE—BUT I DIDN'T TELL HIM IT WOULD BE A BAD FUTURE!
MEANWHILE, HIGH ABOVE THE GREAT SILVERGATE BRIDGE.....
LOIS IS INCAPABLE OF ASKING ME TO DO A WRONG, SO I MUST DESTROY THAT BRIDGE IN SPITE OF THE FACT IT'S A VITAL DEFENSE LINK!
NOW—NOT A SOUL ON THE BRIDGE AT THIS MOMENT, SO—THIS IS IT!!
AND WITH THE TERRIFYING SPEED OF A HURTLING DIVE-BOMBER, THE MAN OF STEEL PLUMMETS DOWNWARD ON HIS ERRAND OF DESTRUCTION!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Keep Your Nose Out of This — By Milton Caniff

I'M NOT GONNA DASH OUT... THERE'S A PADDY OR LAKE... THEY CAN SALVAGE SOMETHING...
I CAN PARA-TRIL IN...
EASY DOES IT... KEEP HER NOSE DOWN... LEVEL OUT... YIPE! GONNA OVERSHOOT, CAN'T CLIMB —DROP THE WHEELS...
CUT THE SWITCH AND...

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

ISN'T YOUR PLACE RATHER FAR FROM ANY BUSINESS SECTION, MR. GLOSS?
WE DEAL ONLY WITH DRESS JOBBERS AND WHOLESALERS, MISS PARKER—THEY MANAGE TO FIND OUR SHOWROOMS!
NO NEED TO PAY THOSE CUT-THROAT DOWNTOWN RENTS!—HERE WE ARE! NUMBO—MR. SHUGG— WILL BRING IN YOUR BAG!
MR. GLOSS—I—I'M NOT SURE I WANT TO...
THIS IS MOTHER GREEG, MISS PARKER!—SHE'LL ACT AS YOUR MAID—AND CHAPERON—WHILE YOU ARE HERE!

MICKEY FINN — Zero Hour — By Frank Leonard

THERE'S A BIG DOG ON THE WHARF, SIR! HE HEARD US AND GROWLED — SO WE CAME BACK!
A DOG, EH? THEN WE'LL MAKE NO MOVE UNTIL DAYBREAK — SOME OF THEM COULD EASILY SLIP INTO THE JUNGLE IF THEY WERE AROUSED NOW!
IT'S LIGHT ENOUGH NOW, ROGERSON— POST THE MEN SO WE'LL HAVE THE ENTIRE PLACE SURROUNDED!
THAT GUARD IS FINALLY WAKING UP, SIR! LOOK AT HIM STRETCH!
AYE, AYE, SIR!!
TOM! IT'S ONE OF THE GERMANS WE HAD THE FIGHT WITH—AT PUERTO LABELLA! THE ONE THAT HIT ME!!
YEAH! THIS IS THE BASE, LIEUTENANT! YOU DON'T HAVE TO FIND ANY TORPEDOES TO BE SURE NOW!
THE MEN ARE READY, SIR!
OKAY! LET'S GO!!

MR. AND MRS. — A Man And His Neckties — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

MY! WHAT A GAY NECKTIE! YOU'RE STEPPING OUT WITH THIS TIE?
S'MATTER
WHY, NOTHING—EXCEPT IT'S RATHER LOUD—ALL THOSE REDS, BLUES AND GREENS
I LIKE IT
DID YOU BUY IT YOURSELF OR DID SOMEONE GIVE IT TO YOU?
I BOUGHT IT MYSELF
SAY! THAT DRESS YOU GOT ON HAS MORE COLORS THAN A SUNSET. WHY DEAR ME ONE LITTLE SPOT OF COLOR?
BUT YOU USUALLY WEAR SUCH QUIET TIES

DIXIE DUGAN — Guests! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Siebel

I HAVE A BIG JOB FOR YOU AND IT'S PATRIOTIC — SO CONSIDER YOURSELF HIRED! THERE'RE NO TWO WAYS ABOUT IT!
YES, MRS. HACKETT — I'M HIRED
STEVEN — BRING OUR GUESTS TO THE SUITE!
I'LL CORRAL THEM FOR YOU, MOTHER

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Caught in the Act — By Frank Martinek

AL, I'LL NEVER FORGET THIS VISIT!
GLAD YOU ENJOYED IT! REMEMBER THE GATE TO AL'S CORRAL IS ALWAYS OPEN!
AL'S A REAL GUY... HONEST AND LOYAL!
YOU SAID IT, HE'S TOPS!
SKIPPER, DON'T LOOK BUT SOMEONE'S IN THOSE BUSHES!
O.K. WE'LL COME BACK AND SEE!
COME OUT! WE'VE GOT YOU COVERED!!
DON'T SHOOT! I'LL COME OUT!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Weggon

TEX, I HAVE GOOD NEWS FOR YOU! I'LL NOT BE SEEING PRINCE GREGOR ANY MORE!
YIPPEE! THEM WORDS IS AS WELCOME AS A WILD DEUCE IN A BOB TAIL FLUSH!
AH NEVER COULD SEE WHAT YUH SAW IN THAT HOMBRE!
I STILL INSIST HE'S A CHARMING GENTLEMAN, TEX—
BUT HIS INTENTIONS WERE—TOO SERIOUS, AND WHEN HE FOUND OUT I WAS TRUE TO STEVE, HE BECAME QUITE ANGRY!
YER WANTED ON THY TELEPHONE, MISS MINNIE!
THAT'S VERY STRANGE! IT WAS PRINCE GREGOR! HE ASKED PERMISSION TO CALL HERE TONIGHT—AND BRING HIS SISTER TO MEET ME! PERHAPS I'D BETTER NOT TELL TEX—IT WOULD ONLY UPSET HER AGAIN!!

DONALD DUCK — A Fat Profit! — By Walt Disney

NO MUM, YOU WON'T HAVE TO EXERCISE!
MY, HOW NICE! MAY I SEE IT?
WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS TRY DONALD DUCK'S REDUCING MACHINE! GUARANTEED TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT WHERE YOUR MONEY SAYS!
NO, MUM, NOT UNTIL IT'S INSTALLED, AND MY TERMS ARE CASH IN ADVANCE! BUT I GUARANTEE RESULTS!
ALLRIGHT, I'LL TAKE ONE! YOUR MONEY SA—
YOU WAIT RIGHT THERE! I'LL HAVE IT INSTALLED IN A MINUTE!
GOOD DAY, MUM!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

WHEN THE RANCHER SEES YOU ARE OUR FRIENDS, CHief, HE WON'T DARE TO RUN MY GYPSIES OFF THIS RANGE!
THE FOOLS THINK I PLANNED THIS AS A PEACEFUL VISIT—WILL THEY BE SURPRISED!
MEANWHILE, AT THE GYPSY CAMP PRISON
KING, WE MUST STOP THEM, BEFORE THEY REACH WILD HORSE RANCH!
IF WE CAN GET OUT THIS WAGON WAS BUILT TO LAST GENERATIONS—I CAN'T FIND A LOOSE PLANK!

"I am the O-P-A!"

"YES . . . ME . . . the American Housewife . . . and YOU and YOU and YOU . . . and thirty million others . . . WE ARE THE O. P. A. . . . WE are the guardians of America's Civilian Economy. It's true that we don't write the rules and regulations . . . but it's WE WHO MAKE THEM WORK! It's WE who have the power to turn "thumbs down" on any commodity when the price goes out of bounds. It's WE who have the responsiiblity to boycott chiselers and black-market operators. It's WE . . . who can and WILL prevent inflation!

"The Office of Price Administration belongs to the American family. It is OUR BUREAU . . . not the Government's. It was established for US . . . as the one best means of guiding our activities, in safeguarding our Nation's economic life.

"Every home in America is an Office of Price Administration. Every housewife is an Honorary Director of O. P. A. It is up to US . . . each and every one of us . . . to function as Protectors of America's Civilian Economy."

AN OPEN MESSAGE TO THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON

The Home Front Pledge Campaign beginning September 27th is an earnest call to every citizen in the District of Columbia—to every citizen in the Nation—to assist the Office of Price Administration in its program of fair prices and a fair share of goods for all Americans.

During this campaign you will be called upon to pledge not to pay more than top legal prices and not to buy rationed goods without ration stamps. Keeping this pledge will mean your active participation in the O. P. A. program.

Also, knowing how to use your rights and how not to abuse them will help you to make a greater contribution toward Price Control and wiping out the Black Market.

The Price Panel of your local board is made up of volunteers who are there to help: to investigate, to educate, when necessary, to refer willful violators to the District O. P. A. for legal enforcement. It is your right to call on them, through the Price Clerk, when you believe you have a complaint. It is your privilege, as a citizen of the community, to join forces with them as a price panel assistant. It is an important war service, as well as a way to do something about prices instead of "just talking" about them.

You will abuse your rights if you assume that every time an over-charge is made it is a deliberate attempt on the part of the retailer to break the law. It is well to remember that in the course of the day's work mistakes can be made by the retailer and that he may appreciate an opportunity to rectify them with you personally. For this reason, it is well to call your complaint to his attention in a friendly, not a hostile, way. On the other hand, should you get no satisfaction from your friendly approach to him, it is your right, as well as your duty, to discuss your complaint with your Price Clerk—for your protection, as well as for the protection of others.

If no buyer would take, and no seller would give, rationed goods without a stamp; if no buyer would take, and no seller would give, goods at a higher than top legal price, there would be no Black Market.

The District of Columbia, through the Home Front Pledge Campaign, is rededicating itself to its responsibilities and rights in wartime buying and selling, and educating itself in practical ways in which its goal may be achieved. We in the O. P. A., as part of this wartime community, pledge our complete support to this campaign.

ROBERT K. THOMPSON,
District Director
Office of Price Administration

HERE ARE THE THINGS THAT WE MUST DO:

1. PAY NO MORE THAN TOP LEGAL PRICES.
2. ACCEPT NO RATIONED GOODS WITHOUT GIVING UP RATION STAMPS.
3. When I question any price, I will talk it over with my dealer, and if I am not satisfied, I will take my receipt to the Price Clerk of my War Price and Ration Board.
4. I will buy only what I absolutely need, so that valuable machines and labor can be used to make airplanes, tanks and guns.
5. I will volunteer my few extra hours a week to serve at my War Price and Ration Board, helping to make price control and rationing a success in my neighborhood.
6. I will help others to know their responsibilities in wartime buying and will express my disapproval, as a citizen, whenever I hear of BLACK MARKET trading in my neighborhood; and I will refuse to trade where I must break the rules.
7. I will back the attack to the best of my ability through regular purchases of war stamps and bonds.
